Vast, Silent Crowds, with Bared Heads, View Stately Procession.

WEEP FOR QUEEN MOTHER

Women Overcome as She Passes—53,000 Persons Afterward File Before the Bier of Edward VII.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 17.—With solemn and impressive state, and amid the reverent silence of many thousands of persons that was more impressive still, the body of King Edward was borne to-day from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Hall, in which temple of hard-won English liberty it will lie till Friday to receive the tribute of the nation to a monarch who deserved well of his country.

A memorandum was issued to-night expressing King George's satisfaction at the admirable manner in which to-day's beautiful ceremony was carried out, and adding that "nothing could have been better than the quiet dignity of the tribute thus paid to the memory of my beloved father."

Never were royal words more truly spoken. From early morning, when the preparations began for the ceremonies of the day, till the doors of Westminster Hall were closed late to-night, after 53,000 persons had slowly passed beside King Edward's bier, all the proceedings were marked by dignity and reverence.

Vast crowds assembled all along the route during the early hours of the morning, and grew in magnitude as 11:30 A. M., the hour for the start of the procession, drew near. The people covered the approaches to Buckingham Palace, they filled the Mall and the Horse Guards Parade, and in Whitehall and about Westminster Hall were great multitudes. Cordons of police drawn across all the approaches to the line of route prevented overcrowding.

Almost in silence the crowds waited until the solemn note of "Big Ben," tolling in dull, muffled tones for the first time in its history, sounded in the heavy air. Then, amid the booming of minute guns, with massed bands playing Beethoven's "Dead March" and the slow beat of muffled drums, the funeral cortège began its progress from Buckingham Palace. It moved with funereal pace through the great ocean of spectators, silent as death.

It was a deeply impressive sight when, with the precision of a machine, the long ranks of soldiers brought their rifles first to the present and then to the ground reversed, and stood motionless with bowed heads.

The Procession.

At the head of the procession were the brilliant uniforms of the army Headquarters Staff. Then came the blue and gold of the Admiralty Lords. Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener marched abreast alone after the first division. After them and the Admirals of the fleet came the second division of the escort and the massed bands of the Brigade of Guards, 400 strong.

All the men in the crowd uncovered as the gun carriage with the casket containing the body of King Edward approached. The air throbbed with the beat of feet marching in slow cadence and with the wailing of the bands.

All in the crowd were deeply moved. The coffin lay with the orb and sceptre on the forefront and the crown on the after part.

Behind the carriage, with firm, slow step, marched on foot King George, in an Admiral's uniform, with his two sailor sons on either hand. After him followed the Kings of Norway and Denmark, British and foreign Princes, and the dead sovereign's household.

Another division of Life Guards came next, and after them came a procession of carriages. In the first sat the Queen Mother. She bowed to the crowd with pathetic grace and dignity. As she passed the affectionate sorrow of the crowds lining the route broke down all restraint, and many women wept.

At Marlborough House the music changed to a Scottish lament, "The Flowers of the Forest," played by pipers of the Scots Guards. The wail of their bagpipes sounded with a more than human note of anguish, and the muffled drums, marking time, broke in with superb effect.

Nearing Whitehall Chopin's "Funeral March" was rendered by the massed bands. When the procession entered Whitehall a new overture for drums, specially composed by Lieut. Rogan, thundered forth with thrilling splendor. Then the "Dead March" of Handel was played, the final burst of triumph echoing just as the body reached Westminster Hall.

Nothing could have been finer than the demeanor of the crowd throughout, or its manifold indications of reverence, loyalty, and love.

At Westminster Hall the body was received by the Archbishop of Canterbury. The coffin was lifted to the shoulders of a detachment of giant guardsmen and carried to the catafalque. The royal mourners gathered about it, and a short service, impressive in dignity and simplicity, was said.

The correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES, describing the service in Westminster Hall, says:

The Service in the Hall.

KIPLING ON EDWARD VII.

"The Dead King" Reproaches the English People for Their Behavior.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, May 18.—Rudyard Kipling has in this morning's Standard a poem entitled "The Dead King," the argument of which is summed up in the line, "Our King asks nothing of any man more than our King himself has done." The concluding stanza is as folows:

We accepted his toil as our right; none spared, none excused him.
When he was bowed by his burden his rest was refused him.
We troubled his age with our weakness, the blacker our shame.
When he heard that his people had need of him, straightway he came.
As he received so he gave, nothing grudged, naught denying.
Not e'en the last gasp of his breath when he strove for us, dying.
For our sakes without question he put from him all that he cherished.
Simply as any that served him he served, and he perished.
All that kings covet was his, and he flung it aside for us.
Simply as any that died in his service he died for us.

The poet in an envoi bids him "who in the realm to-day has choice of the easy road or the hard to tread" and "would sell his soul to remain in the sun" to depart "nor look on our dead."

ACCUSE AMERICAN OFFICERS.

French Fishermen Say They Were Beaten—Complain to the Police.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 17.—The seriousness of a reported difficulty at Toulon between officers of the cruiser New York and native boatmen has apparently been exaggerated. The truth, as I am informed, is that a boatman demanded double pay of two of the New York's officers whom he had rowed to the ship. On their refusal to be victimized the boatman attacked them, and they defended themselves to such good purpose that he returned to shore in a somewhat battered condition.

This happened last night. On landing this evening some men from the New York were received in a hostile manner by the populace and were ordered back to the ship by their officers.

The New York will leave Toulon in a day or two.

TOULON, May 17.—The crew of a fishing boat which was engaged early to-day to take two officers of the American cruiser New York from shore to their ship later lodged a complaint with the police, alleging ill-treatment at the hands of certain officers and men of the cruiser.

The fishermen assert that when one of their number went aboard the New York to collect the fare of their two passengers he became involved in a dispute, in the course of which officers cruelly beat him, while sailors of the warship threw pails of hot water upon his companions in the boat.

The police have made a report to the Maritime Prefect, who, it is understood, has transmitted it to the commander of the New York.

The authorities are doing their utmost to induce the fishermen to withdraw the complaint, but in the meantime the officers of the cruiser decline to make any statement.

MILITIA TO HUNT LOST BOYS.

If Two 6-Year-Olds Do Not Turn Up To-day Companies Will Go Out.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 17.—Two six-year-old boys have been missing from their homes in Bridgeport since the night before last, and unless some clue as to their whereabouts turns up before morning three local companies of State militia will be called out to join the party of searchers which already includes more than a hundred people. The missing boys are Joseph McMahon and Frederick Chambers.

Monday night they joined a crowd at a fire near their homes in East Bridgeport, and since that time they have not been seen, although dozens of false clues have been run down.

To-day the Bridgeport Harbor was dragged for the bodies of the children. Joseph McMahon, father of the McMahon boy, is a bridge builder, and it was thought the boys might have been drowned while playing about the new Congress Street Bridge in course of construction here. The search for their bodies proved futile.

Detachments of police in automobiles are scouring the surrounding countryside to-day. An automobile factory here has placed a number of its cars at the disposal of the police. Many members of the Fire Department have received permission to join in the search, the Chambers boy being a son of Frederick Chambers, a member of the department.

The sympathy of the whole city is aroused, and more volunteers are enlisting constantly in the search. A private banker to-night offered a reward of $100 for the finding of the boys, and this sum will be swelled to several thousands to-morrow unless there is definite news.

NO FINERY FOR RADCLIFFE.

Girls Aghast at Regulations for Their Costumes on Graduation Day.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 18.—Miss Radcliffe has received a sad blow. The perfect dreams of frocks she had planned for commencement have been tabooed by the Radcliffe College senior class Graduation Committee, at which Miss Margaret Glover is chief marshal. The fiat has gone forth. Not a frill nor a furbelow, not a peek-a-boo waist, nor an open stocking, nor a ruffle, nor a fluffy, dainty dress will be allowed at the graduation exercises.

Miss Radcliffe, as she read the posters, wept. Dresses ordered months ago for the great event must be left in their tissue paper. Dressmakers are vowing vengeance. No jewelry of any kind will be allowed and fancy combs and barrettes are declared undesirable.

Here are the rules:

1—Long-sleeved white shirtwaist, (as plain as possible.)
2—Linen collar, (plain or embroidered.)
3—Ties will be provided.
4—Plain white skirt—preferably linen—must be fairly heavy and not ruffled. There should be neither embroidery nor a row of buttons on the front of the skirt.
5—Skirt three inches from the ground.
6—Gown two inches above the skirt.
7—Black hatpins. Absolutely no jewelry. No bows in the hair. Please be careful of the hang of the skirt and gown.
8—Black shoes and stockings. (Oxford ties and plain black stockings. The feet must look dainty and trim.)
9—No fancy combs and barrettes.

Meetings of protest are taking place hourly, and it is believed a petition for a modification of these regulations will be signed by every girl not on the committee which drew them up.

STATE SENATE FOR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

By a Majority of One, It Adopts the Davenport Resolution After an All-Day Debate.

HOUSE LIKELY TO KILL IT

Speaker Wadsworth Will Keep It in Rules Committee—Republicans Split Over the Vote.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 17.—With a majority of just one vote the Federal income tax resolution, introduced by Senator Frederick M. Davenport of Oneida, at the request of United States Senator Elihu Root, passed the Senate to-night, after a debate which lasted all day and until 11 o'clock in the evening. Senator Edgar Truman Brackett of Saratoga allowed his name to be passed on the first roll call, but jumped in at the last moment and saved the day to the advocates of the proposed amendment to the United States Constitution.

The Murray resolution, identical with that introduced in the Senate by Mr. Davenport, has been defeated in the lower house twice, once by a lack of one vote, and once by the lack of two votes, to make a majority of all the members of the House. The Senate resolution will go to the Assembly for concurrence to-morrow. It will, beyond question, be sent to the Committee on Rules there.

Speaker Wadsworth and the other Assembly leaders are bitterly opposed to the Federal income tax proposition, and the Speaker intimated this evening that it would not again be submitted to the Assembly if he could help it. Without concurrence by the Assembly the resolution will be lost.

The debate began in the Senate at 11 o'clock this forenoon. Nearly a dozen Senators delivered long speeches, and it was twelve hours later when the final vote was taken at a night session.

On the final vote all the Democrats, with the exception of Mr. Bayne of Richmond, voted for the resolution, while the Republicans were badly split. Here is the vote in detail:

The absentees were Senators Cordts (Rep.) and Grady and Timothy D. Sullivan, (Dem.) Senator Sclosser (Rep.) of Dutchess was paired with the absent Sullivan.

After the debate came to a close the opponents of the resolution realized that they had lost the day. Then began a series of parliamentary motions, which occupied almost an hour, and Lieut. Gov. White had his hands full in keeping proceedings on an even keel.

No sooner had Senator Davenport asked for a call of the Senate to ascertain the absentees, than Senator Hamilton of Chautauqua offered his substitute resolution for a legislative committee to ascertain the best method of levying a graduated income tax for State purposes. Senator Davenport and Senator Hinman of Broome angrily denounced this as an attempt to sidestep the main proposition and raised a point of order. Lieut. Gov. White overuled them, and Senator Hinman appealed from this ruling.

The Lieutenant Governor said he could not properly do so, and Senator Wagner, one of the Tammany members, suggested that the best way out of the difficulty would be to table the Hamilton substitute. His proposal was adopted by a vote of 33 to 11.

Senator Newcomb offered another substitute resolution providing that Congress shall have the power to declare an emergency, and on the strength of this levy an income tax without prior apportionment among the States, but not for any longer than three years successively at one time. This was defeated by 33 to 12. The vote on the Davenport resolution was then taken, with the result of 26 to 20.

The debate was opened by Senator Frederick M. Davenport of Oneida, who in this as in other matters has been the spokesman of United States Senator Elihu Root in the Legislature.

"In the hour of peril every dollar of property and income as well as every drop of blood should be at the service of the common country," he said. "The State of New York would pay a considerable share of any income tax, and ought to pay it. New York has far more ability than other States, because the rest of the country is working for New York.

"An income tax levied soon and justly in this country is one of the surest avenues by which to escape from radicalism. If the powerful seek to withhold from the Nation the power that belongs to it of right, if the men who have are bent upon legislation which will let the burden fall on those who toil, then that spirit is created which leads the people ultimately to break down every barrier and have their riotous way."

"Do I understand that State, county, and municipal bonds would be subject to the Federal Tax Collector?" asken Senator Henry Wayland Hill of Erie.

"That's my opinion. Moreover, I believe they should be."

Senator J. Mayhew Wainwright of Westchester, one of the most ardent advocates of the resolution, was on his feet in an instant. "Do I understand that the Senator answered this question in the affirmative?" he asked. "I have always understood the Senator to hold the opposite view."

"I don't concede that it would include such securities," Senator Davenport replied by way of correction. "I only want to make it plain that even under the broadest construction of this resolution no injustice would be done, nor would such securities suffer.

"And I want to add that unfavorable action here to-day would make this question a political issue, a question that would return to plague us as one of the hottest issues in the next campaign."

Senator Josiah T. Newcomb of New York made the principal speech against the resolution. He holds with Gov. Hughes that the words "from whatever source derived" would place State and municipal bonds at the mercy of the Federal Tax Collector, and make such securities less marketable.

He goes even further and declares that the Federal Government should have the right to levy an income tax only to meet a great emergency, and then not longer than for three years.

Senator Newcomb has introduced a res-

SEVEN BOILERS BURST AT LEAST 13 KILLED

Plant of American Sheet and Tin Plate Co. at Canton, Ohio, Practically a Ruin.

MEN ARE BLOWN TO ATOMS

Heads and Arms Strew the Neighborhood—One Body Flung Through a House 700 Feet Away.

CANTON, Ohio, May 17.—With a roar heard three miles away a battery of seven boilers at the plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company exploded this afternoon, killing about thirteen employes and injuring about thirty. Among the injured are a half dozen who, it is said, will probably dies before morning. Others, the physicians say, cannot recover from their injuries.

The cause of the explosion is at present unknown. The fireman and engineer who were in the boiler room are dead. No one else about the plant who survived can explain the accident. One workman says that he heard three distinct explosions in quick succession. They came so close, however, that it was all over in an instant. The force of the concussion was terrific. The big plant is in such a state of ruin as to be practically a total loss. A mere shell of the building is left. left.

Identification of the men was difficult, many of them being so mutilated that even their most intimate friends could not recognize the features. Heads were blown off and arms and legs were torn from the trunks. Fragments of bodies were blown several squares from the scene, and bits of human flesh have been picked up on porches and roofs of houses and in trees.

There were 100 persons at work in the plant at the time of the accident. Only about a dozen escaped injury. These and others, who rushed to the plant as soon as the disaster was known, worked heroically to rescue the injured. The ruins soon took fire, but the Fire Department extinguished the flames.

The list of known dead at 8 o'clock to-night is:

George A. Lemley, catcher; —— Royer, engineer; Charles De Witt, engineer; Walter Ringenberger, heater; George Bole, heater; Charles Brown, heater; J. Henry, catcher; Jack Wheeling, Harry Baltzley, H. Lothamer, Peter Wollgoof, P. Dunlap, Charles Richards, and two unidentified men.

Some of tne injuredd are:

Hiram Stulz, left arm broken; Joe Row, right foot hurt; John Vorson, whose injuries could not be learned, and was operated upon; H. V. Perego, seriously hurt; Alonzo Steiner, right shoulder mangled; Charles Gape, struck in the chest with flying débris and badly scalded; Louis Hughes, fireman, struck by débris and leg broken, and A. W. Kaufmann, storekeeper, cut and bruised.

Members of the bereaved families rushed frantically to the plant and thence to hospitals and residences near the ruined shops in an effort to find a trace of their loved ones. It was thought at 8 o'clock to-night that all the dead had been removed from the débris. It was then stated that so far as known the dead numbered twenty, but this did not include those who had died at their homes after removal from the ruins.

The body of one man, unknown, was blown through a house over 700 feet from the plant. The body entered the house from the east side and continued in a straight line through a bedroom and out on the other side of the house to Louis Avenue. The torso of another man was found in the garden of a yard about 500 feet west of the scene. The bodies of seven men, mutilated beyond recognition, were found in the north end of the mill.

"For God's sake, hit me on the head and kill me!" cried one workman to a man who found him. The injured man had an arm torn off and a great hole in his side.

The plant had five mills. All the employes working at Mills 1, 2, 3, and 4 were either killed or injured, while the men in Mill 5, furthest from the boilers, escaped serious injury.

THREE BURNED TO DEATH.

Two More Italians May Die After Possibly Incendiary Tenement Fire.

Three persons were burned to death and two more probably mortally injured in a fire, thought to have been of incendiary origin, in the three-story tenement at 73 Sullivan Street, early this morning.

The building is occupied by three families. C. Spinnetta, who keeps a saloon on the ground floor, lives above it with his wife and family. On the third floor the front flat is occupied by Mrs. Caroline Casino, her son Richard, and two boarders. The rear flat on that floor was occupied by Vincenzo De Biaso, 65 years old, his wife, Adelina, their eight-year-old daughter, Clara, and two sons, James, 22 years old, and Tony, 9 years.

Firemen of several high-pressure companies soon had the blaze under control and a search of the building was made. In a bedroom on the rear of the third floor were found the three other members of the De Biasi family burned almost beyond recognition near the closed door, toward which they seemed to have been groping when overcome.

The two De Biasi boys were hurried to St. Vincent's Hospital by Dr. Miller, who said they were so badly burned that there was little chance for them.

Spinella said that none of the other tenants, as far as he knew, had received threats, and he knew of no enemy who could have started the fire. But the police are investigating it on the theory that it was incendiary. The damage was about $1,000.

MANY ARE WOUNDED IN BROOKLYN RIOT

Two Taken to a Hospital, One Dying, After an Attack on Loyal Men.

SHOT BY THEIR COMRADES

Furniture of Unpopular Foreman Set on Fire—Police Use Clubs Freely, and Make Two Arrests.

In the strike by the Polish workmen in the big jute mills of the American Manufacturing Company, at Wythe Avenue and Noble Street, in Williamsburg, Brooklyn, John Mascos of 72 North Seventh Street, Brooklyn, a foreman, has remained loyal to the company. On that account he was beaten by the strikers several days ago.

It was decided yesterday to move him closer to the mills for his own safety, and so a truck, guarded by seven loyal employes, was sent to take him and his household effects to a house that had been rented for him close to the mills.

The truck was trailed by some of the strikers, and when the seven loyal men went into Mascos's house to get his furniture, the strikers surrounded the truck. Some took the horses from the truck, and others attempted to take the wheels off.

When the seven loyal employes emerged with the first installment of furniture the rioters set upon them, scattering Mascos's household effects all over the street and sidewalks. Some tried to turn the truck over.

Meanwhile the crowd was augmented not only by strikers and their sympathizers, but by the merely curious who wanted to see what the excited gathering was all about. More than a thousand had been thus drawn together when shooting began.

Two Seriously Wounded.

It is not known who started the shooting, though the police arrested two men, but in the fusillade two men fell—Frank Heitko of 93 North Eighth Street and Peter Nosel of 157 Wythe Avenue. Both of these men, it was said, were strikers, who had been shot by their comrades by mistake.

Heitko received a bullet through his left lung and Nosel was shot in the right side of the head. Both were rushed to the hospital, where it was said last night that Heitko might die. Stray bullets wounded several others slightly, it was said, but they escaped in the excitement.

In the midst of the riot some one set fire to one of Mosco's mattresses, that had been thrown to the sidewalk and torn open. The blaze spread to other furniture and some one turned in a fire alarm. That summoned Engine 12 and its tender, from North Ninth Street, which came thundering through the streets and into the midst of the crowd, that had been thinned out somewhat already by the shooting.

Policemen on strike duty at the iron works of Tuttle & Bailly, at North Tenth Street and Wythe Avenue, attracted by the shooting, arrived on the scene about the time the firemen did. They clubbed their way to the fallen men. With feremen fighting the fire, policemen fighting anybody that got in their way, and the strikers fighting each other, the rioting ran into a tangle of cross purposes.

The first set of policemen were joined by the reserves from the Bedford Avenue Station. Two men who were pointed out as having done most of the shooting were arrested—Thaddeus Yozlitis of 69 Beadle Street and Callo Thurnik of 72 North Eighth Street. Both were charged with felonious assault.

Masco Remained in the House.

Following the reserves from the Bedford Avenue Station was Capt. Dooley with all the policemen he could muster. Then the rioters and the curiosity seekers disappeared into the side streets. John Masco was escorted to the new house near the jute mills, but a large part of his furniture had been destroyed.

Masco has been most unpopular with the strikers. He has been attacked on the street several times since the trouble began in the jute mills. Yesterday he remained in his house until the riot was over.

The labor troubles in the mills reached an acute stage several weeks ago, when the Polish employes went on strike. The American Manufacturing Company retaliated by declaring a lock-out, but the mills were reopened a few days ago and all who had been locked out were taken back, though the original strikers were denied work.

These strikers have been giving continuous trouble since, it is charged.

KEENE MARGINS HEAVY.

Counsel Says the Manipulator Had $5,000,000 with the Popper Firm.

From queries directed at witnesses yesterday in the hearing in bankruptcy of Lathrop, Haskins & Co., before Referee Stanley W. Dexter, it was made to appear by Abram J. Elkins, attorney for the creditors, that James R. Keene was in the habit of carrying an account of same $5,000,000 with the stock brokerage firm of Popper, Sternbach & Co.

Both Mr. Popper and Sidney Sternbach testified regarding the operations of Mr. Keene in Hocking stock, and the referee was finally urged to order a production of the accounts of the firm, which show exactly what part Mr. Keene took in the speculations that undermined the Hocking pool.

It seems that Mr. Keene, who has been averse to testifying in this case, had a large margin with the firm, after he had dropped his Hocking operations, and that the firm's operations in Hocking were charged to the "V" account, or the "No. 1" account, or the "No. 200" account, all of which were Keene accounts, when he speculated.

The hearing will be continued to-day at 2:30 o'clock.

Bishop's Correspondence with Vatican Is Said to Have Been Seen.

ROME, May 17.—Evidently ideas as to what constitutes discourtesy differ.

In spite of the denial on the part of Bishop Paret of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Maryland in his telegrams to his coadjutor and Cardinal Gibbons, it is known here that the story telegraphed to America about the refusal to grant the Bishop a Papal audience was absolutely correct.

The details of the incident are known to the whole American colony here, and the correspondence has been seen.

STRICKEN IN HIS AUTO.

L. C. Gillespie Suffers a Stroke While Driving Alone in Orange.

While driving alone in his automobile in East Orange yesterday afternoon Lewis C. Gillespie of 39 North Arlington Avenue, a varnish manufacturer of Jersey City, was stricken with apoplexy. He died before receiving medical attention at the Orange Memorial Hospital.

The auto was descending the hill east of Prospect Street in Park Avenue when Mr. Gillespie fell over his seat, and the auto ran on without a guide past the Ashland School at Clinton Street, where Otto Larson, a chauffeur, jumped aboard and brought it to a stop.

After he had brought the car to a stop Larson was joined by Richard T. Post, who has an office near by, and the two men carried Mr. Gillespie to the office of Dr. George C. Becket in North Walnut Street. The physician was out, and Mr. Gillespie was then carried to St. Mary's Hospital in Orange. He died as he was carried into the hospital.

MARCH KING'S HOUSE ROBBED.

Burglars Get Miss Sousa's $200 Gown—Other Houses Looted.

The police are investigating a burglary Friday night at the home of Samuel Miller, a salesman, on the ground floor of an apartment house at 152 West 118th Street. When Mrs. Miller and her son Leo returned home at 9 o'clock they found the house ransacked and jewelry and silverware worth $2,000 stolen. It is believed the burglars entered with a skeleton key.

Among other robberies reported to the police was that of a lingerie robe worth $200 from the home of Miss Jane Priscilla Sousa, daughter of John Philip Sousa, the musical composer, at 37 Madison Avenue; another of $1,600 worth of clothing and jewelry from the home of Mrs. Lottie Schlussel, 37 West Seventy-fourth Street, and a gold watch and jewelry from the home of Leo J. Kahn, in Cathedral Court, Riverside Drive and 115th Street.

FOUR HURLED FROM HOSE CART

On the Way to a Fire a Tire Bursts and the Horses Run Away.

While the tender of Engine 108 was on its way to a fire at Fulton and Front Streets, Brooklyn, last night, a tire on the right front wheel suddenly burst, at Front and Jay Streets, tipping the tender up on one side and throwing out four of the seven firemen seated on it.

Francis Jones, the driver, sustained a fracture of the right foot and severe bruises of the face. Three other firemen suffered only slight bruises.

Frightened by the sudden tipping of the tender, the horses bolted. The reins, fallen from Jones's hands, dropped to the pavement, until Foreman John Conway climbed out on the pole and grabbed them. He stopped the galloping horses suddenly, and was thrown to the street. His men held the horses, or called an ambulance from the Brooklyn Hospital. Dr. Buddington found Foreman Conway had fractured a rib, and took him and Driver Jones to the engine house. Later they were sent home.

The tender did not continue to the fire, which had started in a heap of rubbish under the Brooklyn Bridge.

LEPER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Despondent by Her Affliction, Woman Tries to Leap from Window.

BALTIMORE, May 17.—Mrs. Providencia Mascari, the leper, despondent by her affliction, tried to commit suicide early this morning, her husband restraining her just as she was about to leap from a window of their home.

Mascari says this is only one of several attempts his wife has made during the last few weeks to end her physical and mental suffering, which has been intensified by the annoyance she has been subjected to by the curious.

Shortly after her case became known here she went to New York City for treatment, but returned here subsequently. The city authorities are having a cottage built for her at the quarantine station.

TWIN CHICKENS.

Mr. Voll of Flatbush Points to the Single Egg Shell to Prove It.

The Van Chick twins have arrived in Flatbush and are just now a centre of attraction there. Robert Voll of Rogers and Church Avenues introduced the twins to the folk of the own-your-own-home quarter of Brooklyn.

Like all the people out in Flatbush, where mouse-hunting catbirds, mosquitos equipped with diamond drills, butter-cup blooms that yield oleomargarine, and such things are now and then reported, Mr. Voll looks upon nature faking with lofty scorn. So, when he announced yesterday that he had hatched two fine chicks from one egg, Flatbush was not a bit skeptical.

Besides, there were the twins, running blithely around Mr. Voll's yard, and also there was the shell of the egg. Certainly no more convincing evidence could be asked for, thought Flatbush.

Up to a late hour last night no one in Flatbush had blamed the phenomenon on the comet.

SIX HOURS TO-NIGHT IN THE COMET'S TAIL

Few New Yorkers Likely to Know It by Ocular Demonstration, for It May Be Cloudy.

OUR MILLION-MILE JOURNEY

LICK OBSERVATORY ESTIMATES.

Length of tail...105°, or 20,000,000 miles
Diameter at crossing.....1,000,000 miles
Beginning of contact........10:50 P. M.
(Allowing 2 h. 50 m. for lag of tail.)
Duration of passage..........Six Hours

By telegraph to the Editor of The New York Times.

LICK OBSERVATORY, Cal., May 17.—At least 105 degrees of the tail of Halley's comet was visible to the naked eye this morning, corresponding in length to a space of 20,000,000 miles. The tail is probably shortening as the comet recedes from the sun. The diameter of the tail at the point through which the earth will pass on Wednesday evening was this morning still 1,000,000 miles. The relative velocity of the earth and the comet on Wednesday evening will be about fifty miles per second. The time of passing through the tail will be, therefore, approximately six hours.

Our observations of the comet's position on Sunday and Monday morning established that the sun will set for California before the transit of the comet's head across the sun begins. Prof. Leuschner's exact calculation, based upon our observations, confirms this fact. The moon, nearly full, will interfere greatly, and perhaps entirely, with optical observation of the earth's passage through the tail. If the tail points exactly away from the sun the New York time of entering the tail should be about 8 P. M. Wednesday. A comet's tail usually lags behind the straight line drawn from the sun through the comet's head. The amount of lag is different for different comets, therefore the most probable time of entering the tail is several hours later.*

W. W. CAMPBELL,
Director Lick Observatory.

*The time of entering the tail for this longitude is computed by the Harvard Observatory to be 10:50 P. M.

For six hours, beginning at 10:50 o'clock to-night, New York time, according to the best calculations, this earth will pass through the tail of Halley's comet. But whether there will be much or any ocular demonstration of the fact to the ordinary man not well versed in astronomy is very much in doubt. The head of the comet will be about 15,000,000 miles away, and the tail will project into space about 5,000,000 miles beyond the earth.

Accepting the estimate of Director Campbell of the Lick Observatory that the diameter of the comet's tail will be 1,000,000 miles along the line of the earth's transit, it may be calculated that the earth in the passage will encounter 48,000,000,000,000 cubic miles of the tail.

Prof. Campbell thinks the tail contains not more than a single solid particle or gaseous molecule to the cubic yard. It is a simple calculation to determine that on this memorable journey we shall encounter 265 sextillions of these particles or molecules. In figures this looks imposing, thus:

265,000,000,000,000,000,000,000.

Assuming the molecules to be the deadly poison cyanogen gas, which has been found in the spectrum of the tail, these figures have an alarming aspect until it is recalled that the physicists estimate that it would require ten thousand sextillions of cyanogen molecules to weigh one pound! It therefore appears that the forty-eight trillion cubic miles of the tail which we shall encounter will weigh almost exactly one-half of one ounce!

Evidently the astronomers have a poor opinion of comets' tails.

Harold Jacoby, Rutherfurd Professor of Astronomy at Columbia University, gave this advice to comet parties last night:

"Parties desiring to 'sit out' through the period of contact with the comet's tail should consult their own convenience, and remain out as long as they are enjoying the experience. They will have as good a time as the hotel they happen to choose provides in the way of dinner, music, and good company.

"In case parties do not care to venture upon the hotel roofs, the next best thing is to gather on Riverside Drive. The view of the Hudson with its steamships passing up and down will relieve the monotony of waiting for something to happen aloft, and will make an evening worth while on its own account."

Weather May Hinder View.

Prof. Jacoby himself will not remain near his telescopes, for, he says, the period of contact with the comet's tail will be one that presents "no job for a telescope." His intention is to visit one of the hotel roofs early in the evening just to see what interest the people have in the comet's tail, and later to mingle with the crowd along the Hudson bank. After he retires he will look over the skies with his naked eye from time to time to see if perchance any faint glow is discernible.

There is a chance that nothing—not even meteors—may be visible, for last night the weather man announced for New York's weather to-day: "Showers Wednesday, cooler in northwest portion of New York." Showers mean clouds, and clouds obscure the heavens.

Prof. Jacoby, speaking seriously, said he felt that the comet is capable of producing only one definite result through its close proximity to the earth—it may possibly stir enough interest in astronomy to cause the erection near New York City of a really sizable telescope—a thing of which Columbia University and New York State in general have been long in need. Prof. Jacoby was more worried about the lack of a good telescope last night than he was about the fiery wanderer now passing between the earth and the sun, with its tail pointed directly away from the sun, and consequently toward the earth.

"The next we shall see of the comet," he said, "will be such a sight as will really set the people on edge who view it, and that will be about everybody on earth. To-night at 11:30 o'clock the line from the earth to the sun through the comet will be straight," he said, "but we shall not be able to see the comet on Wednesday evening because it will set with the sun. The same will be true on Thursday, although I expect to find keen interest on that day in observing the state of the western heavens at sunset. There is just a chance that the comet —the sky terrier shall I call it?—will make its presence known at that time in a glorious shaft of light in the denser twilight.

"But whatever happens on Thursday, there will be a great sight in the western sky on Friday night. That is the real night for comet parties. And Riverside Drive at sunset will be just the time and the place to turn out to see it.

"At that time, too, the great multitude of people will become aware of its presence from actual knowledge for the first time, and the impression will be much more profound than anything which has come from previous prognostications.

"I saw the comet with the naked eye a week ago, and gathered something of an impression of how glorious a sight it will make. I was on a Sound steamer, and getting up early was not so hard as when the problem is seeking an apartment house roof.

"As I left my stateroom there, blazing across the eastern horizon, was a great shaft of light—it was thirty times as long as a full moon—as if thirty full moons had been jammed together edge to edge.

"And when the comet appears in the western sky it will be much more brilliant even than it was then. Look for it right over the spot where the sun goes down. And after the first night or two, look for a shaft of light reaching up into the heavens until it seems like a rainbow cut in two. The comet watcher has only to keep in mind that the comet will always appear just where the sun goes down and that its tail will always shoot straight up into the heavens, directly away from the sun.

Our First Known Experience.

"What is really known about the comet's track?" Prof. Jacoby was asked. "Has the world ever been conscious before of passing through the tail of a comet?"

"No," he replied; "the advance notices on this comet were much more complete than formerly. It happens, in the first place, to be the best-known comet in existence, and the one about which the most accurate records have been made.

"All orbits, including the orbits of comets, are the result of compromises in gravities. Now you have got to get over the idea that because one body attracts another strongly it is likely to draw it smack into it. It doesn't. I made an apparatus in my laboratory the other day to show my students about that.

"I fixed up a little gun capable of shooting a steel ball quite a distance up an inclined plate of glass. The ball shot upward and then rolled directly back into the muzzle of the gun time after time. That was to show what a comet would do if just merely shot out into space to be uninfluenced by any other heavenly bodies after it got a start.

"Then I put a powerful electric magnet under the plate of glass, quite a little distance away from the track of my steel ball. This time when it was shot upward instead of keeping on its straight path or swerving directly into the magnet, as some of my students expected it to do, it shot on past, curving its course toward the magnet, and then finally it swung around the magnet in very much the way the comet is swinging around the sun. On its return course it swung off in a new direction altogether. My students were quite delighted with the oval course taken by the steel ball. It was just such a course as they had seen mapped out for Halley's visitor.

Comets Have No Pull.

"How about the force of gravity?" was asked. "If the sun and moon, when they get into line, make extraordinary tides by pulling at the earth together, would not the comet and the sun, pulling together at the earth, make extraordinary phenomena?"

"Not in the least. I would say they would, except for a very peculiar fact about comets: They exercise no pull upon the earth. In all the years during which comets have been observed, there is not a case on record where one of them has influenced the earth in the slightest manner, so far as the force of gravity is concerned."

"You don't fear a collision, then?"

"No. The comets are related to the meteors, you know, and there have been many meteoric collisions. There are some 4,000 meteoric chips in existence, and I think that many more meteors have been burned up in our atmosphere and have fallen as dust on the earth. Meteoric dust has been found in arctic ice. It is even possible that some of this has come from a comet.

"I believe that the head of a comet is a good deal like the head of a meteor. The fragments that in meteors are chips of solid matter, weighing several tons, have a counterpart, I believe, in the head of Halley's comet, while the tail is composed of particles of solid matter, if it contains any at all, that are too small for even microscopic observation.

Prof. Jacoby said he gave the comet two weeks at least in which to spread the great band of light composing its tail across the sky after sunset, and that during that time the people would not need in the least to fear it, as it would be headed so that it couldn't possibly collide with the earth except by doubling on its trail, which, of course, he considered it altogether too well behaved to do.

The question of the effect of the air on any solid substance that might be in the section of the tail which strikes the earth was brought up.

"The best way to get an idea of what will happen," said Prof. Jacoby, "is to watch a steamboat pushing up the wave in front of its prow. You know most of the power of a boat is used up in making that wave. Well, a piece of comet trying to push toward the earth would make just such a wave in front of it, and it might make an especially big wave on account of the fact that it wouldn't have a good air-cutting prow. Then the wave would make friction, and the friction would make heat, and the comet section would have a rather hard time getting through. Most likely it would burn up or fall with force enough only to cause a purely local disturbance.

"And when you consider that a comet exerts no force of gravity whatever, you can easily figure that it wouldn't be solid enough seriously to interfere with the earth, even if there should be an actual head-on collision.

"If a comet drove straight into us—which it might do if it should come on an orbit near enough to make the earth's attraction for it overpowering—I wouldn't expect anything more than a local disturbance to result. A comet's head, even, must be of very light material."

The need for a new astronomical observatory for New York, equipped with telescopes of the largest size, was discussed by Prof. Jacoby at length. He said that many sites were available, and that while high ground was desirable, it was not at all necessary that the observatory be on the top of a mountain. The only thing he would wish would be to have it at least an hour's ride away from the city, so that it would be entirely free from the locally created smoke and dust.

How an Office Boy Will Play Safe.

The comet displaced the weather yesterday as the piece de resistance of casual conversation. An office boy serving under Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick kept a caller wishing to see his chief waiting for several minutes while he begged to know if there was really any danger, and to tell of his plan to evade it personally. He was going to a reservoir in Brooklyn to sit on the edge through to-night. At the least sign of disturbance in the heavens he planned to jump in, and just bring his nose above water at intervals so as to have all the chance possible of surviving.

Many speculated as to the possible things the comet may do, fear of serious consequences being centred apparently in the cyanogen gas theory, which figures it as possible that the atmosphere may become charged with this gas at midnight to-night. Prof. Jacoby said there wasn't enough of the gas in the whole comet's tail to make any perceptible difference to the earth no matter how much it mixed with the atmosphere.

Mayoral Proclamation Sought.

The comet caused two different disturbances in the office of Mayor Gaynor. The first was in the morning when Robert Adamson, secretary to the Mayor, answered a telephone query of a man who said he was Dr. William Cook, just arrived from Philadelphia.

"What do you wish?" asked Mr. Adamson.

"I want the Mayor to issue some kind of a proclamation about the comet," replied the voice at the other end of the line. "It is a very serious [illegible] the Mayor ought to issue something—to tell the people to be prepared for the worst."

Later in the day a well-dressed woman was observed on the front steps of the City Hall. After she had been there an hour Policeman Conway asked what she wanted. She replied that she was waiting to see the "Judge-Mayor," as she wished to tell him a lot of things about Halley's comet. The policeman decided that she could as well tell the desk Lieutenant at the Elizabeth Street Station, and had her sent there. In her purse were found $165 in cash and some valuable papers. She was sent to Bellevue for observation.

Comet Parties on All Hotel Roofs.

The approach of the comet's tail was the principal topic yesterday at all of the big hotels, whose roofs will hold hundreds of comet watchers, waiting for the phenomena that may or may not happen.

Many hotel patrons are keyed up to the most tense excitement over the approach of the comet's tail. One woman at the Waldorf-Astoria, who has been following closely the predictions of the astronomers, hurriedly left the hotel yesterday for the Adirondack Mountains. She confided to a friend that if she was going to die she preferred it would be in her lodge in the mountains rather than in New York.

While some of the more credulous patrons betrayed considerable alarm, others are content in the assurance of astronomers that nothing unusual will happen.

At the Plaza a new drink, "The comet cocktail," was introduced yesterday, and became popular at once. It was not given out what the ingredients of the drink were, but those who drank it declared that it started with a fiery taste to the tongue, followed by a soothing sensation to the palate, and a general feeling of mental buoyancy.

Orders were placed with a well-known optician yesterday at the Waldorf for the rental of binoculars for the comet watchers on the roof to-night if the sky is clear. Speaker Cannon, who will address the National Association of Manufacturers at their banquet to-night, will be among those on the roof.

Express elevators at all the big hotels, it is said, will make special trips to the roof to-night every five minutes, beginning at 10 o'clock, and preparations are being made for the accommodation of patrons who have planned to look for cometary phenomena.

The Belvedere, on the roof of the Astor, will be opened for the use of comet watchers, and divans and couches will be provided should any become hysterical or faint.

Fifth Avenue hotels were besieged yesterday with requests from residents along the avenue for permission to visit their roofs, that they may be able to dine at home, and await whatever may come where they can see it coming.

LOOK OUT FOR THE METEORS.

Miss Proctor Tells What to Observe and How to Time Them.

Great preparations are being made at all the observatories with regard to the expected celestial display this evening. Batteries of cameras will be leveled at the sky. Yesterday Dr. S. A. Mitchell of Columbia University, New York City, started bright and early for the Yerkes Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., where he expects to make some spectroscopic and photographic observations with regard to the material in the train of the comet at the time it envelops our planet. This is the first time that the opportunity has been provided for actually analyzing the comet, as the devices for determining its constitutional peculiarities were not invented when it last visited our realm.

Every instrument in the Yerkes Observatory will be in use, in charge of experts, who will do their utmost to use to the greatest advantage every moment of the time during which we are submerged in the cometary débris. It is a great event in the annals of astronomy, and the fact that the comet is made welcome at its near approach is proved by Prof. E. B. Frost, who has placed the entire photometric laboratory out doors for the purpose of studying the comet's light.

In a small way, amateurs may add their mite to the valuable information which may be obtained on this occasion by observing the meteoric display which may be of sufficient brilliancy to attract attention. The observations may be of three kinds. First, to obtain continuous records of all the meteors seen, noting the time of their appearance; second, to note the radiant or direction in the sky from which the meteor comes; third, to note the color and compare the brightness with that of some well-known star, such as ruddy Antares, bluish Vega, orange-hued Arcturus, or cream-white Capella. Swift meteors are usually greenish or blue, while those that move slowly are generally red or yellow.

This simple device for recording the time during which the meteor remains visible, from the first moment it flashes into view until it finally fades from sight, was suggested by the late Prof. A. C. Young: "The determination of the meteor's velocity is extremely difficult, as it is seldom possible to look at a watch-face quickly enough, even in the daytime. The usual course is for the observer to repeat some familiar piece of doggerel as rapidly as possible, beginning when the object first becomes visible and stopping when it explodes or disappears, noting also the precise syllable where he stops. By repeating the same sentence over again before a clock it is possible to determine within a few tenths of a second the time occupied by the meteor's flight."

The writer well remembers her experience on the night of Nov. 13, 1898, when she observed the Leonid meteors with three of her friends in the wee sma' hours. Suddenly one would start off, on the well-known legend of the mouse running up the clock, while another more seriously inclined recited the woes of poor pussy in the well. For my own part, I preferred the lamentation of Old Mother Hubbard, but rarely succeeded in getting beyond the tragedy of the bare cupboard.

A meteor usually appears at an altitude of about 80 or 100 miles, and disappears at a height of from 5 to 10. The length of the path is usually between 50 and 500 miles, though in some cases it has been much greater. In 1860 one passed over Lake Michigan, across the country, and fell into the sea beyond Cape May, and in 1876 a great meteor traversed the country from Kansas to Northern Pennsylvania. The velocity of a meteor ranges from ten to forty miles a second in the earlier part of its course, but is rapidly and greatly reduced by the resistance of the atmosphere, so that when the surface of the earth is reached it is often not more than 400 or 500 feet a second. The average speed with which these bodies enter the air is about twenty-five miles a second.

The radiant or point from which the meteors seem to come is a mere effect of perspective. The meteors are all moving in lines nearly parallel when encountered by the earth, and the radiant is simply the perspective vanishing point of the system of parallels. Their paths all appear to converge like the rails of a railway track for an observer looking upon the track from a bridge. The position of the radiant on the celestial sphere depends entirely upon the direction of the motion of the meteors relative to the observer. A lady who observed the wonderful display of meteors in 1833 described the sky as being full of meteors as snowflakes in a storm, and "that it looked like a gigantic umbrella."

In case of cloudy skies to-night observations will be made from balloons. Some will be sent up from the Yerkes and other observatories, and private expeditions are being equipped in New York, Boston, and Philadelphia. In November, 1898, when observations were made of the display of Leonids in that year, the observers at Meudon, Paris, were provided with a balloon which was placed at their disposal by the Aeronautical Society of France. Seeing that the skies were overcast at Paris and in the vicinity, the observers started up in the balloon at 2 A. M., and it had only risen 500 feet when it shot into a beautifully clear sky. The writer, however, prefers to observe from the safe vantage point of The Times tower.

BALLOON TRIP TO VIEW COMET.

Aeronaut Harmon Invites College Deans to Join Him in Ascension.

Clifford B. Harmon of New York has invited the Deans of the Yale, Harvard, Princeton, University of Pennsylvania, Cornell, Columbia, University of Virginia, and Ann Arbor Faculties to make an ascension in his balloon New York from Pittsfield, Mass., for the purpose of studying Halley's comet.

The balloon has a capacity of [illegible] cubic feet of gas, and can accommodate seven persons with necessary impedimenta. It is said to be the best aerial craft of its kind in the United States. It is the [illegible] of the [illegible] Cup, and holds the altitude record of 24,200 feet and the duration record of 48 hours 26 minutes.

ILLUMINATION BY THE COMET.

Prof. Todd of Amherst Looks for a Spectacular Effect.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 17.—"To-morrow night will be a great time for the comet," said Prof. David Todd of Amherst College to-day. "It will be better in the eastern hemisphere than here, but there is a chance that some grand illumination will take place. We do not know exactly what to expect, but we are going to watch every minute.

"Next Monday, if the sky is clear, will be the best time to view the comet. It will be visible in the evening. The moon will be relapsed and the comet will have the whole heavenly field to itself, with no sun or moon to hide it.

"When the earth passes through the comet's tail, and it may be doing it in part to-day, the experience will be no more startling than putting your finger through the beams of a searchlight.

"The tail to-day was divided into two parts; one faint, the other quite brilliant. The one pointing north was the brighter. The other is the one we may be passing through to-day.

"Between the two tails, for they were really two, was a dark space of sky probably three degrees wide. As I remember it, this was the first distinct picture of a double tail that I have seen thus far.

"It will be worth while staying up to-morrow night. The sun may relapse the main part of the comet in the morning, and there may be no meteorites or shooting stars.

"There is a chance that the tail of the comet will flare up and make a picture like the northern lights."

MAY SEE COMET TO-DAY.

Harvard Observers Think It May Be Visible in Afternoon.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 17.—The great sweep of the tail of Halley's comet of 90 degrees, or the distance from the horizon to the zenith, as observed by the Rev. Mr. Metcalf at Taunton and Prof. Whiting at Wellesley College this morning, led the astronomers at the Harvard Observatory to predict that this portion of the comet would be visible to-morrow from 1 A. M until dawn, provided, of course, the weather was clear.

The tail distinctly was seen during the early hours to-day, shooting far up toward the zenith, but fading away at the approach of the dawn. It was believed that the end of the tail would rise shortly after midnight, and with the moon setting about 2 A. M., early risers would probably have a chance of seeing a soft glow in the eastern skies for nearly an hour.

It is said that the comet may be visible to-morrow afternoon in the west, or, perhaps Thursday during the daylight, provided its nucleus increases in intensity.

MAY BE METEORIC SHOWERS.

Prof. Hall Doubts This, Though, but There's No Danger, Anyway.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Although the earth's inhabitants will not know that they are passing through the tail of a comet, neither seeing it nor suffering any injurious results therefrom, beginning to-morrow night about 11 o'clock and for four or five hours thereafter they will be in the midst of the tail of Halley's comet. This estimate was given to-night by Prof. Asaph Hall of the Naval Observatory here.

It is possible, he said, that there will be some meteoric showers accompanying the visit of the comet, although he doubted if there would be any display caused by the minute particles floating about in the gaseous substance of which the comet's tail is composed.

YERKES OBSERVATORY READY.

Experts and a Battery of Cameras and Telescopes Already Prepared.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., May 17.—Preparation for an unscheduled appearance of advance streamers of the comet's tail caused activity last night among the entire staff of Yerkes Observatory. The statement by Prof. David Todd of Amherst University that the earth might enter the comet's tail at any moment was the principal occasion of the vigil.

Adjustment of the apparatus of the outdoor photometric laboratory and the alignment of the battery of cameras was the task of the observers. A continuous series of photographic plates of the skies were taken, to get records of possible meteorites. J. A. Parkhurst, photometric expert of the observatory, and Spectroscopist S. B. Barrett were in charge of the open-air observatory.

Oliver J. Lee, official computer, was in charge of the Snow Observatory, in which a special series of cemeras has been arranged to take a set of plates simultaneously of a wide arc of the sky. This afternoon and evening and all night the observatory will present the appearance of the upper deck of a battleship discharging its guns at an aerial fleet.

More than fifty lenses will be directed at the sky. Photographic plates are stacked up like ammunition for a naval engagement. Cots and blankets are placed by the larger instruments for the observers to snatch a few moments' sleep when possible.

"Nothing has been overlooked," said Prof. E. E. Barnard, "to make this the most complete observation ever taken of a celestial phenomenon. We have almost doubled our capacity for making records to-day."

"We certainly will bring our whole broadside to bear," said Prof. E. B. Frost. "Every instrument in the observatory will be at work that night in charge of an expert. It is the greatest night of the year. The entire photometric laboratory has been set up outdoors on the esplanade of the observatory.

"We have been conservative in our predictions so far. I don't mind saying, though, that I will not be surprised at anything that happens Wednesday night.

"It is impossible to predict what phenomena will result. There is a possibility that a meteoric display will be visivle, but I should hesitate to call this a probability—and then there may be electrical disturbances in the atmosphere, such as auroral displays, but the heavens will be very light on Wednesday, owing to the presence of a good-sized moon, and it is very doubtful whether in such unfavorable conditions very much will be learned."

CHICAGO IS TERRIFIED.

Women Are Stopping Up Doors and Windows to Keep Out Cyanogen.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 17.—Terror occasioned by the near approach of Halley's comet has seized hold of a large part of the population of Chicago. Especially has the feminine portion succumbed. All else is forgotten. Comets and their ways and habits have been the principal topic discussed in the streets, cars, and elevated trains to-day.

Telephones in the newspaper offices have been busy all day with inquiries as to the latest developments in the foreign visitor in the heavens. The principal fear is not that the comet will strike the earth, but that the gas which it is supposed makes up the tail will wipe out all life.

"I have stopped all the windows and doors in my flat to keep the gas out," said one woman over the telephone. "All the other women in the building think it is a good thing, and all are doing the same. Do you think it will keep out the gas?"

Physicians say that there were scores of calls to-day for their services from women who were suffering from hysteria following the reading of the possibilities of danger from collision or from the dreaded gas.

"My patients say that they are nervous and are suffering from a feeling of depression," said one doctor this afternoon. "They add that they have been reading about the comet, and I know that they are simply frightened."

Others calling over the telephone have asked if it is probable "that we will all die at the same time, if the gas is strong enough!" And, "What is the exact time that the first of the gas will strike Chicago, or will New York get it first?"

Prof. Barnard said later:

"The comet will pass between the earth and the sun at about 8 o'clock to-morrow evening, but at that time the sun well be set, and we shall not see it here in its transit across the sun's disk. This will be seen in the Hawaiian Islands, in the Philippines, India, China, Japan, &c. It is doubtful if we shall know, except by calculation, that we have been in the tail of the comet. Possibly, but is is by no means certain, we may have a meteor shower, such as was produced on Nov. 27, 1872, by the passage of the earth through the remnants of Bielo's comet. Possibly there will be some other phenomena of interest, but certainly there will be nothing to fear. Just what we shall see, if anthing, will be told better on May 19."

FIRST METEORIC SHOWER.

Drake University Professor Reports One at 2:30 A. M. Yesterday.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 17.—Prof. D. W. Morehouse, astronomer at Drake University, to-night reported that he saw a brilliant and beautiful meteoric shower at 2:30 this morning in the east.

He stated that the shower was due to Halley's comet.

COMET MAKES BONCI NERVOUS.

Fears He Won't Sleep—Nethersole's Unprotected Dog.

Before sailing yesterday for Europe on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse Alessandre Bonci, the operatic tenor, said that he was afraid of Halley's comet and was not ashamed to own it.

"Of course," said the tenor, "the scientists say that there is no danger, but what do they know about the mysterious laws of nature? I think something will happen, I know not what, but I shall not sleep easy in my berth on this ship until the danger is over."

Olga Nethersole, the actress, who sailed on the same liner, said that she was not alarmed for herself about what the comet might do the ship on the high seas, but on account of her pet hairless Mexican dog Chiquita she was nervous.

"You see, if the tail of the comet touched her my poor pet has no hair to protect herself," said Miss Nethersole.

HALLEY'S COMET B. C. 44.

Its Reappearance Since Then Until Now Reported from History.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The first authentic notice of what is now known as Halley's comet appears in Suetonious' Caesars, where he mentions that just after the assassination of Julius Caesar [in B. C. 44] a comet blazed for seven days together, and it was supposed to be the soul of Caesar now received into Heaven—for which reason Caesar was represented on a statue with a star on his brow. Its historical reappearances are as follows, carefully verified:

First, B. C. 44—Assassination of Julius Caesar; second, A. D. 30—Shortly after crucifixion of Christ in his thirty-third year; He was born B. C. 4; (seventy-four years in terval); fifteenth, A. D. 1066—Conquest of England by William the Conqueror, (seventy-four years interval); twentieth, A. D. 1456—Turks overrun Europe, (seventy-eight years interval); twenty-first, A. D. 1531—(Seventy-five years interval); twenty-second, A. D. 1607—Settlement of Jamestown, (seventy-six years interval); twentq-third, 1683—From which Halley predicted the coming of comet of 1758 or 1759, (seventy-six years interval); twenty-fourth, A. Halley's Comet in 1680.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Among my collection of old books I have one in French: "Sensees diverses, ecrites a un Docteur de Sorbonne, a l'occasion de la Comete qui parut du mois de Decembre, 1680." It was written and is dated Oct. 11, 1681. Isn't this Halley's Comet that creates so much stir and speculation to-day?

The writer of the book, which contains about 800 pages, ridicules the idea that the comet can do any harm to our planet, that its tail, or rays, is not likely to penetrate the ambient atmosphere and vapors of our world. That the comet has power to produce any effect on the earth, and if it had any vertu, couldn't it be as well for good as for evil? And so it goes on; it makes very interesting reading, dating so far back.

DRIVE IN RIVER; EIGHT DROWN.

Too Dark for Them to See That the River Had Overflowed.

GILHAM, Ark., May 17.—Mrs. Wesley Wright and Mrs. Genea Heath and six children were drowned in the Gossattot River at 8 o'clock this evening. They were trying to cross the river in a wagon, and in the darkness did not observe that the river had overflowed its banks.

The Mayor Helps a Civil War Veteran.

Mayor Gaynor received Robert McRitchie, a civil war veteran of Oyster Bay, in his office at City Hall yesterday and personally took him downstairs to the Bureau of the Grand Army of the Republic, where arrangements were made for his commitment to the Soldiers' Home at Bath, N. Y. The Mayor had already promised Mr. McRitchie that as soon as the necessary papers could be made out minster Hall to-day was the impression of its entirely English character.

"A lying in state suggests elaborate ritual, sensuous music, clouds of incense, gorgeous vestments, everything calculated to stir the emotions. In Westminster Hall there was color and beauty and splendor, but there was no attempt to heighten the effect by appeals to the senses.

"The Archbishop of Canterbury, in black and white, the plain service of prayer and praise, the simple order of the proceedings, all matched the quiet gray nobility of the ancient walls, which have served as the cradle of the Constitution and have seen so much of English history made.

"This gathering of notables of the realm was a fitting prelude to the opportunity given to the populace of testifying their affectionate respect for King Edward VII. The King, the Lords, and the Commons, the three estates of the realm, met around the bier not only to mourn—to clasp hands, as it were, in a fresh compact to serve their country. They displayed their eminently practical English nature by turning their faces rather toward the future than to the past. There was no exaggerated lamentation. The special prayer for the occasion was a prayer of thankfulness for the benefits of the dead King's reign. The little homily of the Archbishop of Canterbury bade those who were united by sorrow to remain united in their efforts to overcome all evils and difficulties which might lie in their paths.

English Love of Pomp.

"On the other hand, for all their dislike of theatrical or deliberately worked up emotion, there was shown the love of the English for rich magnificence, for the pomp of statecraft. Here was, in effect, a miniature pageant of English history. Heralds in their brilliant, parti-colored, playing-card costumes, carried us back to Tudor times. The Tudors molded England. No dynasty has left such a permanent mark upon her. The great Tudor sovereigns, Henry VII., the lawgiver; bluff Henry VIII., and great Elizabeth, were essentially English in character, impetuous, tenacious, obstinate, yet with a genius for compromise.

"Again, every one of the uniforms worn by the distinguished sailors and soldiers who stood around their sovereign's bier had its meaning, deep-rooted in the glories of the past. The great officers of state, each with his badge, his wand or baton, his imposing ceremonial costume, were all links with the past.

"The Commons were in plain mourning dress, and the Lords, too, but they would not have had the Speaker in anything but his long-trained, gold-laced gown nor the Lord Chancellor appear without his full-bottomed wig, or fail to have the massive gilt mace borne before him.

"These are not idle trappings. They are symbols of much that every Englishman holds dear.

"The picture when the hall was filled was superb. High above all heads glittered the royal crown, the orb, and the sceptre of kingship, laid upon the rich draperies that hid the coffin from view. Under the glorious stained-glass window at the further end were grouped the white-robed singing children of the Chapel Royal. Beneath them on steps glowed the tabards of the heralds. Then came a long line of uniforms stretching right across the hall.

"Around the coffin were grouped all those who mourned the dead monarch, most near to it Queen Alexandra, still beautiful in her grief, still mistress of herself enough to bow with gentle grace her gratitude for the bent heads and sympathetic glances; King George, a little bent by the burden so suddenly placed on him; Queen Mary, her two sailor-boy sons, her three smaller children, and her bonny daughter with her golden hair. These were only the most noticeable amid a great assemblage of royal mourners, bound by ties of blood. Their suites provided another glowing mass of color, to which uniforms from many lands contributed.

"A splendid spectacle, yet without any effort toward the spectacular; a solemn tribute in a spirit of high seriousness, the tribute of a great nation to a King who shared its practical, unemotional nature, and who would not have wished to be mourned in any other way."

At the close of the service came a deeply touching incident. The Queen Mother rose and moving to the coffin bent for a moment against it, as if bidding farewell.

The Lying In State.

Four o'clock was the hour fixed for the opening of Westminster Hall to the public. At seven minutes before that hour everything was ready and the first of the waiting line of people, which reached over two miles along the bank of the Thames, far beyond Vauxhall Bridge, was admitted through St. Stephen's porch.

In the centre of Westminster Hall, beneath the lofty, vaulted roof, rests the royal coffin on a catafalque of purple. Upon it are the jeweled crown, orb, and sceptre, and the royal standard, and beneath them a cream-colored pall with a miniature royal standard at each corner.

Resting at the foot of the bier, toward the people as they entered, was a great, beautiful wreath from the German Emperor and Empress. It had just been placed there by the German Ambassador. It is nearly five feet in diameter and is composed of white roses, lilies, and orchids. Two broad cream-colored ribbons attached to it bears the imperial crown and monogram worked in gold.

The roses are of the famous Frau Karl Druschki variety, that scentless but perfectly shaped white bloom which King Edward much admired.

Against the head of the coffin rests an exquisite cross of violets and mauve orchids from Queen Alexandra, and on the eastern side is a heart-shaped wreath of bay leaves with a golden inscription on purple ribbon announcing that it comes with sympathy and reverence from the House of Commons.

At each corner of the catafalque this evening stood an officer of the Grenadier Guards, his back to the coffin, his head bowed, the point of his bare sword resting on the ground, his gloved hands crossed on the hilt. Four Yeomen of the Guard, their tall pikes reversed, also stood with bowed heads; so did four members of the Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, with their halberds reversed. The only upright figure was that of a little Ghurka officer, with drawn sword, who stood like a brown statue at his dead Emperor's feet.

All the brilliant watch [illegible] headdresses, and their stillness was like that of the tomb.

By silent, mournful pairs the people went past the bier. Many of them were in working clothes; all were stained with dust after the long wait in the queue. Sorrowful women, Boy Scouts, clerks and shop assistants, folk from suburbs and unambitious streets —they all came to pay their tribute to the King they had loved.

Darkness fell, and the burning candles around the bier paled as the electric lights were turned on. Still the people passed through the hall, gazing with moist eyes on the catafalque, its wreaths, and its watchers.

For the first hour an automatic recording instrument was used to number the persons passing through Westminster Hall. The number from 4 o'clock to 5 was 7,369, an average of over 122 a minute. Sir Edward Henry, the Chief Commissioner of Metropolitan Police, was told that the first thousand entered the hall in between nine and ten minutes. In the second hour nearly 8,000 entered. Later in the evening the rate was slightly higher, and altogether, for the six hours of the lying in state to-day, the total number who passed in and out was 53,000.

At the end of the first hour the persons who, when the hall was opened, were waiting by Vauxhall Bridge, had just reached the entrance. In the last hour, between 9 and 10 P. M., 13,126 persons passed through the hall.

There was no trace of undue haste or hustling.

THE ARCHBISHOP'S PRAYER.

Thankfulness for Blessings Bestowed During Edward's Reign.

LONDON, May 17.—In Westminster Hall, in which the English monarchs down to George IV. gave their coronation festivals, and in which Charles I. was condemned to death and Cromwell was saluted as Lord Protector, the body of Edward VII. will lie in state until Friday, when it will be taken to Windsor Castle, there to be placed temporarily in the vault beneath the floor of St. George's Chapel, and later in the tomb that will be prepared for it in the Albert Memorial Chapel.

Before the removal of the body to-day brief services, attended only by the members of the royal family, were conducted at Buckingham Palace by the Bishop of London.

In the service at Westminster Hall the Archbishop of Canterbury offered the following prayer:

"Lord, Our Heavenly Father, by Whom Kings reign and Princes decree justice, we remember before Thee our late Sovereign Lord King Edward, in thankfulness for the blessings Thou hast bestowed upon us through his reign, for the wisdom of his rule and the faithfulness with which he served the people committed to his charge; for his continual effort to further and maintain peace among the nations and for his watchful care of the sick and the poor."

Addressing the congregation, the Archbishop said that there was reason for thanksgiving for the peace and prosperity of the Empire and for a ruler who was devoted to his people. He charged his hearers to consider well the lesson that death taught.

As the Archbishop concluded, the trumpets and drums sounded and the choir sang "Oh, God! Our Help in Ages Past," the accompaniment ceasing after the first stanza, to be renewed with the last. As the music died away the Archbishop pronounced the Benediction.

MORE MONARCHS ARRIVE.

Rulers of Spain and Greece Met in London by King George.

LONDON, May 17.—King Alfonso of Spain and King George of Greece arrived in London this evening. Both were met at the station by King George, the Duke of Cornwall, the Duke of Connaught, and other royal personages.

Prince Henry of Prussia also reached London to-night, to represent the German Navy at the funeral. He was met by the Duke of Connaught on behalf of the King.

These, with the arrivals of other representatives of foreign courts and deputations from German and Spanish regiments, made the West End a constant scene of attraction to the large crowds that gathered there.

ROOSEVELT STAYS AT HOME.

Does Not Take Part in Ceremony—Mrs. Roosevelt Sees Procession.

LONDON, May 17.—Ex-President Roosevelt, special American Ambassador at the funeral of King Edward, did not participate to-day in the ceremony attending the removal of the King's body from Buckingham Palace to Westminister Hall.

Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Roosevelt, Kermit Roosevelt, American Ambassador Reid and Mrs. Reid witnessed the procession from a house in Carlton House Terrace. Mr. Roosevelt did not see the procession. He spent the morning answering his accumulated correspondence.

The Right Hon. Sydney Charles Buxton, President of the Board of Trade, called on Mr. Roosevelt in the morning.

The ex-President spent most of the afternoon in the formal return of calls. He has not as yet seen Seth Bullock, Deputy United States Marshal in South Dakota, who is now in London, nor does he know where Mr. Bullock is stopping. He presumes that the deputy will hunt him up later.

KAISER STARTS FOR LONDON.

Will Cross from Flushing on the Imperial Yacht Hohenzollern.

BERLIN, May 17.—The Emperor left here to-night for London to attend the funeral of King Edward.

He will cross to England from Flushing on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern.

King Manuel in Paris.

PARIS, May 17.—King Manuel of Portugal arrived here this evening, remaining for the night at a hotel. He will continue on his way to London to-morrow morning.

Memorial Service at Grace Church.

There will be a memorial service next Friday, the day of King Edward's funeral, at Grace Church. The service will begin at 12:30 P. M. Music will be provided by the Grace Church choir. No seats will be reserved and the public are invited.

Aldermen Vote a Roosevelt Holiday.

On motion of Alderman Callahan, the Aldermen voted yesterday to request Mayor Gaynor to declare June 18, the date of the arrival here of ex-President Roosevelt, a holiday "with pay" for city employes.

Commander Peary in Vienna.

VIENNA, May 17.—Commander Peary arrived here this evening. He will lecture before the Austrian Geographical Society to-morrow evening, and at the conclusion of the lecture the society's gold medal will be presented to him. The explorer was entertained at dinner to-night by Ambassador Kerens. He will be the guest of the President of the Geographical Society at luncheon to-morrow.

Dr. Aked's Condition Improves.

The condition of the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, was said last night to be slightly improved. According to Dr. A. R. McMichael, who has charge of the case, the clergyman's temperature has remained at about 104 for the last few days. His friends are now hopeful for his olution calling on the Legislature to memorialize Congress with a view to having submitted to the various States an income tax resolution carrying out these ideas. He began his speech by regretting that the question of party expediency had been raised.

The Davenport resolution, he said, would commit the State to a bestowal of powers on the Federal Government, which every court had declared it should not possess, the power to tax real estate and the power to levy a direct tax without prior apportionment. This, he declared, would amount to taxation without representation.

"No craze in our history ever appeared less opportunely," said Mr. Newcomb. "Throughout the country a readjustment of political standards is in process. To those who look with hopeful eyes on the reforms of political methods, now so palpably in progress, I utter a solemn warning. If these reforms are found to give opportunity to narrow injustice toward persons and property, they will be overthrown by an inevitable reaction."

Mr. Newcomb maintained that the income tax proposal had been made merely to satisfy some Western Republicans and so save the Tariff bill, and went on:

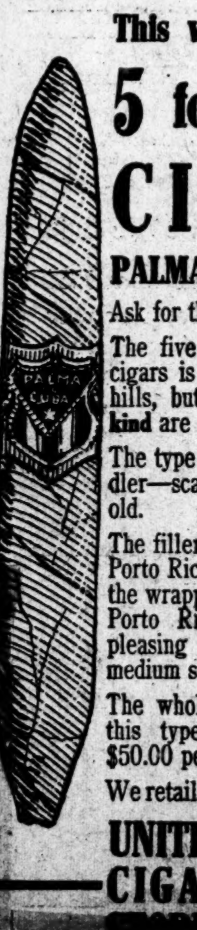
"But is the income tax amendment required in order to compel wealth to bear its due proportion of the burden of government? I deny it. Wealth already bears its burden and bears it for the most part willingly.

"Then let us consider the wording of the proposed amendment. The striking thing about it is that it apparently authorizes a tax utterly unique with us. Federal taxes heretofore have been required to be either apportioned or uniform. The proposed amendment, by its wording, strikes off apportionment, but does not substitute uniformity. Is it possible that the demand for an income tax is so insistent that a decision of the courts even as to the uniformity could not be risked? The omission can scarcely be charged to inadvertence."

Senator Harvey D. Hinman of Broome, in advocating the passage of the Davenport resolution in its present form, delivered a diatribe on the system of indirect taxation in this State.

"We are piling extravagance upon extravagance under our present system of taxation," he said.

"If the people back in the country knew how dearly we are making them pay they would get up on their hind legs and kick the roof off the Capitol. The men who have stood for this amendment are wise and honest and far-sighted. If you want to create a political issue you can do it right now. As for me I shall take to the cyclone cellar when the storm comes this Fall."



CIGARS UNITED

Because the chain store plan saves money and reduces prices its steady, permanent growth is inevitable in the United States as in older countries. United Cigar Stores bring the factory to the smoker and retail cigars at wholesale prices.

This week it's a 5 for 25c CIGAR

PALMA DE CUBA

Ask for the Bouquet size.

The five cent price for cigars is as old as the hills, but cigars of this kind are new.

The type is a mere toddler—scarcely six years old.

The filler is half and half Porto Rican and Havana, the wrapper shade-grown Porto Rican, making a pleasing combination of medium strength.

The wholesale price for this type of cigar is $50.00 per thousand.

Sanatogen THE FOOD TONIC

Your Nerve Supply Governs Your Power To Act

MODERN civilization—modern life—modern strife calls for enormous nervous work. Destruction is often more rapid than construction. You develop headaches, your nights are sleepless, you lose appetite and interest in ordinary duties. These are signs of a depleted nerve supply—warnings that complete breakdown and exhaustion are impending. Your doctor will advise a tonic—ask him about Sanatogen.

A scientific combination of Albumen and Sodium Glycero-Phosphate—two of the best known brain and body builders. It comes to you in the form of a fine white powder, easily dissolved in your daily beverage—coffee, milk, chocolate, etc. Sanatogen is endorsed and prescribed by thousands of physicians in every civilized country as well as by famous authors, clergymen, actors, statesmen, etc.

VOTED IN THE NAME OF EX-JUDGE O'BRIEN

Though He Was Out of Town, the Primary Raiders Put Him Down for Williams.

PROSECUTION'S CASE ALL IN

But Not Until After Much Evidence on How the Tammany District Leader Beat Up Rival's Watcher.

When Deputy Attorney General Ezra Prentice rested the case of the people against Roswell D. Williams, Tammany leader of the Seventeenth Assembly District, and his six henchmen who were indicted with him for conspiracy to violate the primary laws, Clark L. Jordan, attorney for the accused men, pleaded yesterday for delay. He said he would require time to prepare his opening address, and Justice Wheeler, who is hearing the case with a jury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, granted him until this morning. Peter J. Galligan, Philip Donohue, Robert Quinn, John Dunn, Thomas J. O'Rourke, and John Bingham are the men on trial with Williams.

Testimony given late in the day showed that the Williams workers had credited ex-Supreme Court Justice Morgan J. O'Brien with having voted at the primary, when, in fact, he was out of the city on that day.

Williams personally pummeled a watcher for Daniel A. Golden, rival of Williams for the leadership, according to testimony given by Eugene Schellenberger, who was on duty at the polling place, 627 Columbus Avenue, on last primary day. Schellenberger identified Williams, Galligan, Donohue, and Quinn as members of the party which attacked and sacked the polling place after driving up in taxicabs.

"They brushed past the inspectors and pushed the watchers to one side," he said. "They all gathered round the ballot box and I saw these four men putting bunches of ballots into it. Then a policeman came in and said: 'You'll have to get out of here.' Williams said: 'We're going out.' One man picked up the pile of Golden ballots on the table."

"Which man was it that picked up the ballots?" insisted Mr. Prentice. The witness indicated Galligan, and continued: "Then I grabbed him by the arm and he pulled me along toward the door. I shouted for a policeman to arrest him, but he jerked himself free and started to run. The policeman caught him and brought him back. Then all the crowd rushed at me and gave me a terrible beating and kicking. Quinn knocked me down first and then Williams knocked me down again. This was on the sidewalk and in the middle of the street. After they had finished with me I was all black and blue and had one finger broken. The policeman let the man who had stolen the ballots get away, because I was too dazed by the beating to make a complaint."

John M. Manning, a policeman, who was detailed to the inside of the polling place, also described the raid. He said that while he was looking out the door an automobile and four taxicabs, each containing five or six men, drew up in front. The men got out and rushed into the place, which was a cigar store not more than ten feet wide and about sixty feet long.

"There were about ten or twelve who rushed in at first," the policeman testified, "and then fifteen or twenty more came in. They rushed to get back of the guard rail, but only four or five succeeded. They all held up folded white papers in their hands, like ballots, and said they wanted to vote. I told them they would have to get in line, and then there was a scramble, in which the rail was torn loose and the tables thrown around. I succeeded in clearing the room of the crowd after about two or three minutes."

"Do you know Roswell D. Williams?" asked Mr. Prentice.

"I do."

"Was he there with the crowd?"

"He was the first to come into the polling place."

"Where was he while the rumpus was going on?"

"Inside all the time."

The witness testified that after the raiders went out the Golden ballots were missing, and that many of the ballots were found scattered over the sidewalk. He said that Schellenberger had told him that he had been assaulted, but was not able to pick out any one to make a charge against.

Patrolman John J. McEmory, attached to the Church Street Station and detailed to the outside of the polling place, corroborated Manning's testimony as to the details of the raid, but he said he did not know Williams and was unable to identify any of the defendants.

Samuel Sachs, a clerk in the cigar store used as the polling place, gave similar testimony.

"It was all I could do to keep the store cases from being smashed," said Sachs.

Adam Mitchell, a Golden watcher, described the arrival of the automobiles, telling substantially the same story the two policemen told on the stand.

Mr. Prentice read into the evidence, by permission of the court, a long list of names of electors living in the Seventeenth Assembly District who assert that while their names were voted upon they did not cast the ballots.

FOR THE AVIATION CONTEST.

The Aero Club to Decide on the Place on Next Tuesday.

The location for the international aviation championship meet will be decided on Tuesday, May 24, at a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Aero Club of America. Several sites on Long Island have been considered, but there are several financial matters to be cleared up before the meet is awarded.

The question confronting the board makes it a difficult matter to award the aviation tournament. It has been suggested that a contest of limited proportions be held. This is opposed by members of the Board of Directors, who want the event to be the biggest ever held in the history of aviation, with a prize list of sufficient size to attract all the prominent foreign aviators. The latter plan is the most popular and will probably be accepted.

Wilbur Wright and Roy Knabenshue will be in the city the latter part of this week and will probably be consulted as to the site for the meet. Belmont Park has been mentioned as an available location, but there is not enough room, and [illegible] that it will be seriously considered.

ENDS TAX DISPUTE WITH METROPOLITAN

City's Claims for Franchise Arrearages Settled on a 65 Per Cent. Basis.

OTHER CONCERNS TO PAY

Street Railway Company Agrees to Add $3,750,000 to the $2,640,000 Already Paid on Account.

A basis of settlement for the payment of the arrearage franchise taxes due the city from the Metropolitan Street Railway Company and other corporations was arrived at yesterday in the Supreme Court before Justice O'Gorman. The matter will now go to the Mayor and Controller for their approval, which is expected to be given. Attorney General O'Malley and the Corporation Counsel have already sanctioned the agreement.

The basis of settlement is practically on the 65 per cent. allowance on which the Third Avenue Railroad has settled its total franchise tax indebtedness. The Metropolitan has already paid $2,640,000 into the city treasury on account, and under this agreement it will increase this total to $6,390,000 by paying $3,750,000 more. This arrangement is exclusive of the Manhattan Elevated Company, the Second Avenue, and Central Park, North and East River lines, whose indebtedness will be settled on much the same basis.

With the final approval of this plan of payment practically all the arrearage franchise taxes due the city will be settled, with the exception of the claim against the New York Central Railroad.

The original claim against the Metropolitan system on franchise taxes was $7,500,000, and the putting into effect of an agreement by which the receivers and the bondholders of the company will pay the major part of this is regarded as interesting, in view of the fact that in the reorganization scheme recently drawn up there was a decided intimation that the road would pay only the $1,500,000 in old damage claims pending against the New York City Railway Company, as lessee, if it received a material reduction in the franchise taxes from the city and the courts.

The Mayor made a decided point of the holding up of these claims on the stump last Fall, and he has all along taken the position that the railroad people should pay them no matter under what scheme they reorganized the system or what concessions they received from the city.

Attorney General Pleased.

Mr. O'Malley was highly pleased at the result of the litigation yesterday. He has been in town for several days conferring on the subject with the Corporation Counsel and William N. Cohen, who has been the Special Deputy Attorney General acting in the cases since the discharge of Daniel F. Cohalan, about whose bill for $48,000 in the lighting cases the controversy between the Mayor and William R. Hearst centred. Mr. O'Malley issued the following statement yesterday:

"With the settlement of this morning there is a practical end of all the litigated special franchise tax cases in Manhattan. On Jan. 1, 1909, none of these special franchise tax cases for upward of nine years had been paid. All were practically in litigation, and were pending before referees.

"From 1900 to 1905 little headway was made, owing to the litigation involving the constitutionality of the State franchise law; that question having been litigated in all the State courts and finally in the Supreme Court of the United States. Thereafter little or no progress was made, as the method of ascertaining the value of the special franchise was a new question, and was being hotly contested by the various companies at every possible point in every franchise district of the State.

"It was thought that more speedy disposition of the matter might be made if the Legislature enacted a law permitting the cases to be transferred from the Third, or Albany, Department to the localities in which the special franchises were situated, and if, instead of references, the cases might be tried in the duly constituted courts. At my suggestion the Legislature passed such a law, and almost immediately afterward all the cases were transferred to different sections of the State.

"Through the courtesy of Presiding Justice Ingraham, an extraordinary term was called for the Borough of Manhattan, over which Mr. Justice O'Gorman was designated to preside. A first session was held on the first Monday of January of this year, and it is from that date to this in which the entire cleanup has been had and upward of $20,000,000 in tax payments have either been actually made or are about to be made into the City Treasury.

Assessing the Values.

"In the settlements that have been made the rulings of the courts have been respected. The first principle established was that of equalization; the State board assessing property at its full value and the legal authorities below the full value. The special franchise being real property, the Court of Appeals had held that in each locality the assessment must be equalized to the rate imposed in that locality upon real property. In other respects where modifications have been indicated by the courts they have been made.

"Now that the old litigations are out of the way it will be a comparatively easy matter if any injustice is claimed by the corporations hereafter in the State boards of valuation, to have a speedy and quick determination of the questions involved.

"In Brooklyn an extraordinary term is now pending, with Mr. Justice Marean presiding. Very substantial progress has been made in Kings County in the settlement of cases, and it looks as if most of them there will be settled without trial.

"In the Ninth Judicial District, comprising the Counties of Westchester, Orange, Rockland, &c., more than 200 cases were disposed of before Mr. Justice Morschauser, and all the litigation there cleaned up and the taxes paid to the localities.

"Extraordinary terms were also convened in the Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Judicial Districts, with practically like results. Up State the only cases now remaining unsettled are the steam surface street crossing cases. Owing to a decision made by a referee in Buffalo, to the effect that the special franchise tax law does not apply to steam service crossings, the settlement of those cases is necessarily delayed until that question is determined in the Court of Appeals."

Charles Mahoney Seriously Ill.

Charles Mahoney, for many years manager of the Hoffman House Café, is seriously ill at his home in West Ninety-third Street. He is best known to the public as having handled large sums put up in wagers. A decision of Justice Gaynor, now Mayor, freed him of a charge of bookmaking two years ago.

HEIKE PUT ON TRIAL FOR SUGAR FRAUDS

With Six Former Employes, Sugar Trust Secretary Must Answer for Conspiracy.

GOVERNMENT CASE OPENED

Prosecution Promises to Trace Dishonest Weighing Practices at Piers to the Company's Books.

The trial of Charles R. Heike, Secretary and Treasurer of the American Sugar Refining Company, and six former employes of the trust, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government in the entry of sugar on the piers of the Havemeyers & Elder refinery in Williamsburg at less than its true weight, got fairly under way yesterday before Judge Martin in the criminal branch of the United States Circuit Court. With Heike on trial are Ernest Gerbracht, the former Superintendent of the Havemeyers & Elder refinery James F. Bendernagel, the former cashier of that plant; Harry W. Walker, the dock boss under Spitzer, who has already been convicted for sugar frauds, and two checkers named Halligan and Voelker, who worked with the Government weighers.

It became obvious from the start that the hardest sort of a battle would be made first, to keep the Government from molding the chain of legal connections between Gerbracht, Bendernagel, and Heike and the wrongdoing at Williamsburg, and, second, to convince the jury, if possible, that the differences in the weight between the Government scales and the city weighers' returns, which the Government assumes to be correct, resulted from obsolete scales and careless weighing at the Government scalehouses.

Follows the Old Line of Defense.

This same line of defense was put up in the trial of Spitzer, Bendernagel, and four former checkers on charges similar to the present ones last Fall, and was unsuccessful as to all the defendants except Bendernagel, whom the Government failed then to connect with the sugar weighing frauds closely enough to convince the jury that he had a part in them. The present trial gets its larger interest from the circumstances that compel the Government to trace the sugar frauds through the refinery at Williamsburg into the offices of the Sugar Trust in Wall Street, where Heike received the reports of the weighing, and in his dual capacity as Secretary and Treasurer, signed the checks to pay both the duty and the importers from whom the sugar was purchased.

This is the make-up of the jury, which was completed yesterday morning: Ernest Terry, 15 Murray Street, foreman; Robert T. Alberts, stationer, 35 Warren Street; Percy E. Williams, advertising, 156 Fifth Avenue; George L. Leask, broker, 37 Wall Street; Wilfred J. Stone, Secretary, 5 West Fifty-seventh Street; Albert Tallon, 43 West 126th Street; Joseph R. Malone, cashier, 28 Fifth Avenue; L. Edward Mueller, coal, 111 King Street; Arthur E. Petit, 24 Stone Street; Walter H. Gants, Jr., clerk, 42 Wall Street; John D. Barnes, salesman, 66 Reade Street, and Charles E. Laidlaw, broker, 45 Broadway.

Winfred T. Dennison, who with Felix Frankfurter is assisting Henry L. Stimson in the prosecution, made the Government's opening to the jury. He declared that the Government would prove that by a system of frauds in the weighing of sugar at the Havemeyer & Elder Refinery millions of dollars of duties had been lost extending over a term of ten years.

Tracing Fraud to the Books.

"We will try to show," said Mr. Dennison, "that this structure of fraud was not confined to the docks of the Sugar Trust in Williamsburg, but that it permeated the entire bookkeeping system of the trust and reached the office of the Secretary in Wall Street."

Mr. Dennison then rehearsed the specific fraudulent entries of sugar which are set forth in the indictment, and told of the existence of what was known as the "Roly Poly Gang" of checkers, who were charged with checking up the Government weighers, and, as a matter of fact, undertook to manipulate the scales under the direction of Spitzer, the dock boss, who is already in prison. The Government's counsel declared that the members of this gang got special consideration and extra pay, and named the defendants Voelker and Halligan as members of it. He followed, finally, the course of the records created in the weighing into the main office in Wall Street, where Heike received them.

When Mr. Dennison was through counsel for the defense moved to dismiss the indictments because the Government's opening had not charged any one with the commission of a crime. The motion was denied, and the prosecution called several witnesses from the customs organization to testify to the regular course of business in handling sugar imports, both as regards the Collector's office, through which the duty is figured and collected, and the Surveyor's office, through which the weighing is done.

Stanchfield Makes a Point.

The testimony of these witnesses was without feature, except that the cross-examination of Acting Surveyor George J. Smythe brought out from John B. Stanchfield, and leading counsel for the defense, a line of questions as to how, since the raid on the Williamsburg piers in November, 1907, when the fact that the scales were tampered with was discovered, employes of the trust were not allowed in the scale houses to watch the Government weighers. Mr. Stanchfield also made Mr. Smythe admit that since that November raid the employes of the trust had not been allowed to clean the trucks on which sugar in bags is carried to the scale platforms, nor to clean out the mass of sticky mixture of sugar and dirt that accumulates under the scales.

The defense in the former trial made a strong point of testimony along these lines as tending to show first that since November, 1907, there had been no means of telling whether the Government weights were correct; second, that the tare allowed for the trucks had operated against the sugar company since that time, and third, that the mass of sugar allowed to gather beneath the scale platforms interfered with the correct registry of the scales.

The jury is not locked up in this trial. Judge Martin told them when the day's adjournment was taken that he would trust them to read the newspapers and not get a prejudiced view of the evidence they were to consider.

OHIOANS NOMINATE ANTI-CANNON MEN

Republicans Pledged Against Speaker Generally Win in First Congressional Primaries.

KEIFER IS PROBABLY BEATEN

Ex-Speaker Had Said That the Tariff Was Not High Enough—Monnett Is Nominated.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 17.—Almost all the Republican Congressional candidates named in to-day's State-wide primaries are pledged against the re-election of Speaker Cannon. The Congressmen known to be renominated, except in the cases of Messrs. Longworth and Goebel, of the First and Second Districts, and possibly one other, have pledged themselves against Cannonism.

The primaries, the first under the Congressional primary law in the State, drew a light vote. Senator Dick, unopposed for re-election, was cut heavily, many voters writing in other names.

Congressmen believed to be renominated are Messrs. Longworth, Republican, First; Goebel, Republican, Second; Cox, Democrat, Third; Denver, Democrat, Sixth; Sherwood, Democrat, Ninth; Johnson, Republican, Tenth; Douglas, Republican, Eleventh; Taylor, Republican; Twelfth; Anderson, Democrat, Thirteenth; Sharp, Democrat, Fourteenth; Joyce, Republican, Fifteenth; Hollingsworth, Republican, Sixteenth; Ashbrook, Democrat, Seventeenth; Thomas, Republican, Nineteenth; Howland, Republican, Twentieth; Cassidy, Republican, Twenty-first.

Other nominees include George R. Young, Republican, Third; J. H. Cooke, Democrat, Fourth; R. D. Roe, Republican, Fifth; J. D. Post, Democrat, Seventh; T. C. Mahon, Democrat, Eighth; T. K. Hamilton, Republican, Ninth; Edmund Willis, Democrat, Tenth; H. C. Claypool, Democrat, Eleventh; Frank Monnett, Democrat, Twelfth; J. D. McLaughlin, Republican, Thirteenth; George White, Democrat, Fifteenth; A. B. Critchfield, Republican, Seventeenth; J. J. Whitacre, Democrat, Eighteenth; E. R. Batherick, Democrat, Nineteenth; William Gordon, Democrat, Twentieth; H. J. Buckley, Democrat, Twenty-first.

Congressman Kennedy and Julius Whiting of Canton, Republicans, are fighting neck and neck in the Eighteenth, neither as an anti-Cannon man. In the Fourteenth George Chamberlain, anti-Cannon, and H. D. Brown, unpledged, are fighting closely. Congressman Ralph Cole, pledged against Cannon, is leading in the Eighth against F. B. Willis, also against Cannon, for the Republican nomination. In the Fifth Congressman Ansberry, Democrat, seems to have won, while in the Sixth Jesse Tayler, Republican, is leading.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, May 17.—Reports from the Seventh District indicate that Gen. J. Warren Keifer of this city will lose the Republican nomination for Congress. Clark County gives Keifer 2,531 and Dr. R. M. Hughey of Washington Court House 1,397.

The campaign against Gen. Keifer was made largely on his alleged statement that the schedules in the Tariff bill recently passed were "not high enough."

"EVERYTHING FOR THE AUTOIST BUT THE AUTO"

The largest shop in America devoted to Auto Apparel & Requisites

Consider the significance of this fact and all that it means to you in the positive assurance of satisfactory selection. The combined stocks of all similar departments elsewhere would afford you less latitude for choice. But add to the magnitude of our displays the still more important fact that we are—and have always been—the foremost specialists in America in the production of Auto Garments, and the argument as to why you should buy here becomes unanswerable.

We maintain the year round a corps of expert designers for the creation of our exclusive models in Auto Apparel for Men and Women, in addition to which we are American representatives for

O. Strom et Fils, Paris, France. La Belle Jardiniere, Paris, France. Kenneth Durward, London, England.

Besides the above names of world-wide renown, we are also distributers of the creations of a score of lesser lights—all of them experts in their chosen specialty. The rare individuality of Saks models is due to the years we have spent in concrete effort to produce apparel exactly adapted to the needs of the autoist—in striking contrast the makeshift garments which are commonly found in other shops,

Dust Coats for Men

The full, liberal sweep of our Coats instantly distinguishes them from the commonplace garments. Absolute ease and freedom of movement are assured by this elsewhere oft-claimed but rarely existent feature.

Attention is also directed to superiority of finish confined to garments shown by us, such as the extra stays and strong sewing of seams which make for good service and retention of shapeliness.

OFFER PRIZES FOR INDUSTRIAL SAFETY

Manufacturers' Committee Suggests That Way of Improving the Condition of Laborers.

WOULD INDEMNIFY INJURED

Present Legal Delays Needlessly Irritate Workers and Cause Expense to Proprietors, Committee Declares.

Compensation for the accidents that happen to workmen in the course of their work and various means of reducing the number of these took up most of yesterday's session of the National Association of Manufacturers at the Waldorf. General dissatisfaction was expressed with the present system of employers' liability, on the ground of its unfairness both to the employer and the employe and the ill-feeling which it stirred up between labor and capital through the litigation necessary for the adjustment of a claim.

The committee of the association which has been considering the whole question coupled the adoption of a system of indemnity with the provision of better means for prevention of accidents. It proposed that the association offer annual prizes of $10,000 for the safest plants or the best safety devices brought to its attention each year, and urged individual manufacturers to offer other prizes through the association to stimulate invention along these lines.

This proposal will not be voted on till to-day, but it was received with such favor by the members present that there was talk of establishing a fund in memory of James W. Van Cleave, the income of which should be devoted to this object.

Present Liability Law Denounced.

The present system of employers' liability was denounced by the committee for four reasons. It is, they said, costly to the State and to the employer and of little benefit to the victims of accident. It causes great delay in the settlement of cases through the necessity of their waiting till they can be adjudged in the courts. It breeds antagonism between employers and employes, and when at length a settlement is reached both sides are likely to feel that full justice has not been done to them.

Nearly all manufacturers at the present moment insure against accidents, and the effect of this was sketched by James A. Emery in the course of a speech he made dealing with "Legislative Facts and Tendencies." He pointed out that it prevented the compensation being fixed at all on humanitarian grounds. The employer was no longer dealing directly with his employe, and a workman, however long and faithfully he had served in a factory, found that he must apply for compensation for his mishap to an outside concern, the only idea of which was to make as large profits as it could. The result was that he was embittered long before a settlement was reached.

Another objection to these liability insurance companies was urged by Henry L. Rosenfeld, insurance assistant to the President of the Equitable. Not much more than half of the premiums paid by the employers, he said, were actually distributed among the injured workmen. Taking the statistics of twenty leading companies in the State of New York, he found that the compensation paid to the injured was only 53.9 per cent. of the premiums paid by the employers, and that 33 per cent. went in claim expenses. The rest was taken as the profits of the insurance companies on the business.

To this the manufacturers objected, on the ground that while they were willing to pay their injured employes, they did not see why they should be burdened with these other heavy expenses. A good deal of discussion took place as to the system which could be substituted for the present one.

In his address Mr. Emery took the ground that to make the employer, as has been proposed, liable for every accident which took place in his factory was morally unjustifiable, and probably was unconstitutional. He advanced the idea that mutual associations should be formed to which both employers and employes should contribute, which should compensate for injuries according to a definite plan. Any employe might choose between accepting compensation from this association or suing in the courts in the present fashion, but he could not do both. Mr. Emery expressed the belief that it would not be difficult to obtain permissive legislation for the creation of such associations in any States in which it might be necessary.

The committee of the association made two suggestions for the remedy of the existing unsatisfactory state of affairs, but did not decide whether compulsory or voluntary measures should be adopted. In the first place it advocated systematic efforts to prevent accidents, and, secondly, indemnity insurance for unpreventable accidents.

To Prevent Accidents.

An address on industrial accidents was given to the association by Prof. Frederic Rensen Hutton, in which he illustrated with stereopticon views the simplicity of the devices by which serious accidents could be made impossible. He asked the support of the manufacturers for the American Museum of Safety, the object of which was to provide the latest information on the means to prevent accidents of every kind.

At the conclusion of the discussion of the problem the committee of the association offered resolutions calling for the establishment by the association at the earlist possible moment of mutual contributory accident insurance, to which both employers and employes should subscribe, and for the automatic payment by this means of indemnity to the victims of accidents and their dependents without litigation or other friction. It was also recommended that the National Association establish a department to gather statistics and study other matters connected with the prevention of accidents.

In a supplementary report the committee considered the question of sickness and old age pensions. It decided against any form of compulsory contributions to funds for such purposes as contrary to American ideas, and true thrift and economy, but it supported voluntary sickness and old age relief by private employers.

In his Presidential address yesterday morning John Kirby, Jr., expressed his dissatisfaction with the present political parties, and raised the cry for the formation of a new party, which should look more closely after the manufacturing interests of the country than either of the present two do. He said:

"The issues that brought into existence the Republican Party have practically passed away. New conditions confront us which threaten the destruction of the very principles on which our fathers founded this Government, and which the politicians of both parties seem to vie with each other in their willingness to sacrifice for political expediency.

"Has not the day dawned for the formation of a new political party that shall give voice to the same sentiments that created the party of Frémont and Lincoln, a party which shall serve the same high purpose, and which shall be powerful enough to hold the Nation in balance against the demagogues of existing parties?"

Mr. Kirby advised cautious action with regard to the proposal for a National incorporation law and declared President Taft's corporation tax law to be fundamentally wrong. In view of the fact that the constitutionality of the tax had not yet been tested, he suggested that the members of the association make their reports and pay their tax under protest.

After attacking the Moon Anti-Injunction bill as a breach of the pledges to uphold at all time the integrity of the State and Federal courts made by the Republican Party platform, Mr. Kirby quoted the parable of the Ten Talents in the Gospel of St. Matthew in defense of large aggregations of capital, and went on to attack Samuel Gompers.

"We need men," he said, "who will combat the evil influences of organized labor, and who will meet the mollycoddles who fall in line with its empty platitudes and pernicious theories. Ten years ago Samuel Gompers declared that in ten years organized labor would control the country's commerce and industries. To-day his type of trades unionism stands condemned by public opinion. Gompers's prophecy was the offspring of his wish, as it was when he predicted and worked for the election of Bryan in 1908. His main issue in that campaign was anti-injunction, and the people gave him a dose of injunction that certainly ought to kill or cure him as a factor in politics."

Mr. Kirby closed with an allusion to the late Mr. Van Cleave. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the session of the convention was suspended to allow of a memorial service being held for Mr. Van Cleave, as just at that hour he was being buried in St. Louis. The service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Edward Young of the Bedford Memorial Church, Brooklyn. He paid an eloquent tribute to the virtues of the deceased President of the association, and a quartet sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and "Lead, Kindly Light."

GAYNOR VISITS BRONX PARKS.

The Mayor Pauses on His Tour to Start Off a Baseball Game.

Mayor Gaynor made a tour of inspection of the parks in the Bronx yesterday afternoon in an automobile with Thomas J. Higgins, Commissioner of Parks in the Bronx, and Chairman Spencer of the Park Commission of the City Club. He expressed himself as pleased with the condition in which he found the parks, but said nothing as to any plans the tour had suggested to him.

After inspecting the zoological and botanical gardens at Bronx Park and taking luncheon in the restaurant there, the party porceeded to Pelham Bay Park, going over the athletic grounds, golf links, and bathing beach. Then they motored to Van Cortlandt Park, where the Mayor pitched the first ball in a baseball game between Squadron A of the Navy and West Point. He left after the second inning.

Emerging at 242d Street and Broadway, Mayor Gaynor inspected the Ferris wheel and dancing resort of James Thom, concerning which many complaints had been made by residents of Riverdale, including George W. Perkins and the Delafield and Morris families, on the ground that it provided a noisy Sunday. The Mayor did not say what impression he carried away from the place, and whether or not he would revoke the license.

After visiting in turn Crotona, Clermont, and Macomb's Dam Parks, the party returned to the City Hall.

IF HE IS MAYOR IN 1919.

Mr. Gaynor Tied to a Long-Term Promise to Willie Wertheimer, Now 12.

Mayor Gaynor received nearly a hundred boys and girls from Public School 123, Brooklyn, at the City Hall yesterday. They were all members of the Volunteer Aid Association of the Street Cleaning Department, and were brought over by Reuben F. Simons, who organized this bureau among the school children of the city under the administration of Commissioner Waring.

Mr. Simons made a short speech of introduction and then the Mayor said:

"I never could understand why the streets of Brooklyn are so clean, but I can understand it now. Where are your white wings? I dont see your white wings. So you keep track of the streets in Brooklyn. Well! That is good, to teach the people not to litter the streets with paper and to attend to garbage and refuse, also to keep areaways clean. Yes, you do a great deal of good by teaching the people neatness that way. Do you have a public show every year?"

"Yes, Mr. Mayor," replied Mr. Simons. "We have a parade. We'll have one July 6."

"Oh, yes," said the Mayor, "I remember now. I used to see the parade."

The Mayor then addressed a small boy and asked him his name.

"Willie Wertheimer," was the reply.

"How old are you?" he inquired.

"Twelve years," said the boy.

"Well, it will be nine years before you are 21," said the Mayor. "Remember, if I am Mayor nine years from now I will make you Street Cleaning Commissioner. If I am Mayor when you are 21 years old you are to come to me and remind me of it."

VETOES ALDERMANIC CONSENT

Mayor Can't See Why They Need to Sanction Dental Frills.

Mayor Gaynor sent to the Aldermen at their weekly meeting yesterday his veto of a resolution permitting William S. May, a dentist in West 125th Street, to maintain a carriage man in uniform on the sidewalk in front of his office. The message of the Mayor read:

> This resolution is wholly unnecessary. Dr. William Sullivan May may dress his men and also himself in any costume he sees fit without permission of the Board of Aldermen.

Alderman Walsh introduced a resolution providing that when Police Sergeants and patrolmen, who have received medals of honor during their period of service, retire they shall receive the pensions of Lieutenants. This was referred to the Committee on Police.

ECUADOR RUSHES TROOPS TO FRONT

Colombians Offer Their Services in the Event of War with Peru.

THIS COUNTRY MAY MEDIATE

Secretary Knox Believed to Contemplate Action with a View to Settling the Dispute.

GUAYAQUIL, May 17.—More troops are being rushed to the frontier.

An artillery brigade, splendidly equipped, left here last night for Machala, in the southwestern part of Ecuador.

Congress will meet in extraordinary session on June 1 to deal with the trouble with Peru. A decree convoking Congress was issued to-day. The sessions will last for fifteen days, during which time the situation will be thoroughly discussed.

The first Red Cross Ambulance Corps has been organized and will soon start for the front.

Colombians continue to offer their services to Ecuador in the event of war with Peru. An alliance between Ecuador and Colombia has been in existence since 1908.

It is announced here that Gen. Clement, the French military instructor, has been appointed Commander of the Peruvian Army and that the Peruvian Secretary of War has started for the frontier.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—There is reason to believe that Secretary Knox contemplates taking some immediate action having for its object the re-establishment of peaceful relations between Peru and Ecuador.

The State Department officials, however, decline to discuss the matter at this time.

POLICE HERO STOPS RUNAWAY

Ryan, Who Has Two Medals, Swerves Horse Out of Children's Way.

Patrolman Joseph Ryan of the East Eighty-eighth Street Station, who in the police parade a few days ago received a medal from Mayor Gaynor for saving a man from drowning, yesterday stopped a runaway horse at Avenue A and Eighty-first Street just as 2,000 children were leaving Public School 96.

Ryan was assisting the smaller children across the street when he saw a horse attached to a delivery wagon coming at top speed through Eighty-first Street. Ryan ran to the runaway, threw his arms around the horse's neck, and swung it into Avenue A, saving a crowd of little children who were directly in its path. At Eightieth Street he was able to bring the horse to a standstill.

Ryan led the horse back and found the driver midway between First and Second Avenues, on Eighty-first Street. He was Sander Spitzer, a furniture dealer of 330 East Ninetieth Street. Spitzer said that as he was driving across Second Avenue the horse became frightened and bolted, throwing him out. As Spitzer was badly hurt, Patrolman Ryan took him to the office of Dr. Lievhof at 1,531 First Avenue, where his wounds were dressed.

Ryan has two honor medals, one he received a few days ago, and one which he received several years ago.

DEVERY LOST $10,000.

"Best Chief's" Recent Tirade Against Wall Street Explained by Suit.

The reason for Mr. Devery's recent tirade against Wall Street was revealed yesterday, when it was learned that "the best Chief of Police New York ever had" considers he lost $10,000 in stock transactions. He is suing Charles S. Bryan and Charles Walker, of the defunct stock brokerage house of Bryan & Walker, for the amount, alleging that they failed to obey his orders and sell the stock, when he would have made a profit.

Long Islander Weds a Chinese Girl.

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, L. I., May 17.—John A. Petry of this place to-day married Miss Hilda S. Singleton, whose parents have a Summer residence here. The bride is the daughter of Joseph M. Singleton, a wealthy Chinaman, whose city residence is at 173 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn.

The best man was Charles W. Renner, and the bridesmaids Miss Helen Scott and Miss Jennie Petry. The bride was educated at college, and is an accomplished musician. Her mother was an American woman, as is likewise the second and present wife of the bride's father.

Appeal for a Twin Baby Carriage.

If you have a baby carriage built for two that you are not using you could do nothing better than send it to the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, at 105 East Twenty-second Street. Two little pickaninnies, twins, glorying in the forenames Florence Odessa and Ruth Onita, are anxiously waiting for such equipage to take them for their first spin through the Park. Their mother is not strong enough to carry them about, and as their father died of tuberculosis a little more than a month ago, Florence O. and Ruth O. have not seen much of the Park or even of the street. The association will be glad to call for the carriage in any part of the city.

QUEENS GRAFT INDICTMENTS.

Two Former Borough Officials and a Clerk Said to Have Been Named.

From a matter of speculation as to whether the evidence of graft was conclusive enough to form the basis for indictments the question of the hour in Queens has shifted to "Who's been hit?"

Three indictments have been found, and every one in Queens last night was busy going over the list of those eligible for a place among the indicted. The only certain result they came to was that Borough President Gresser was not on the list.

Both the District Attorney of Queens County and Commissioner Fosdick on being asked direct questions said that Gresser was not about to be taken into custody.

A report, lacking corroborative evidence, was filed with the Grand Jury involving President Gresser. Since then a supplementary report, said to contain much evidence, has been prepared, and it will go to the Grand Jury immediately after the batch of indictments is handed up on matters considered last week.

The chief of these matters concerned Mathew J. Goldner, formerly head of the Sewer Department, about whom a special report was prepared by Commissioner Fosdick. There were rumors in Queens yesterday that several well-known citizens were preparing to make hurried exits to Europe. In the District Attorney's office, however, assurances were made that none of those most concerned in the forthcoming Grand Jury report will be found absent and unaccounted for.

The Grand Jury will deliver its findings to Justice Garretson in the Queens County Supreme Court this morning. Two of the three indictments are said to be against former borough officials, while a third is against a clerk in one of the departments.

NO AUTOS FOR THOMPSON.

Commissioner Asked Aldermen for 7—Mayor Quoted Against Him.

A request of Water Commissioner Thompson for money to pay for seven automobiles for his department was voted down yesterday by the Board of Aldermen after a long discussion.

"The Mayor is the law, and he has said walking is good, so let the Commissioner walk," declared Alderman Walsh.

What Doctors Say About
ALCOHOLISM

Continual and abnormal indulgence in whisky, beer or wine eats away the stomach lining and creates a morbid craving for a stimulant. No amount of "will power" can restore the tissues burned and seared by alcohol.

Practically all physicians advise medical treatment in cases of chronic Intemperance. Hospitals and sanitariums all over the land treat patients for the disease of Drunkenness, many of them using the Oppenheimer Treatment, recognized as the best and most effective Treatment for Alcoholism.

TO SUCCEED GEN. HENRY.

Capt. W. R. Fearn of the 71st Regiment Being Considered.

Since the appointment of Gen. Nelson H. Henry as Surveyor of the Port of New York, there has been considerable discussion in National Guard circles as to who would succeed him as Adjutant General of the State Militia. According to officers of the State Militia yesterday, Capt. W. R. Fearn, Quartermaster of the Seventy-first Regiment, is being considered for this post.

The appointment will be made by Gov. Hughes. Capt. Fearn has served with Gen. Henry on Gov. Hughes's military staff, and has been connected with the Seventy-first Regiment for fifteen years. He did strike duty in Buffalo and Brooklyn. Incidentally, he is sexton of the Broadway Tabernacle.

W. K. Vanderbilt Home from Europe.

William K. Vanderbilt arrived here yesterday on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie from Europe. He was met at Quarantine by William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., on a Southern Pacific tug, but his father said he preferred to proceed on the liner to her pier. As is customary on his return to the United States, Mr. Vanderbilt refused to talk about any subject, and hurried away from the pier in his automobile.

CENTRAL TO CONNECT WITH ALL SUBWAYS

Underground Passage from Grand Central Terminal and Elevators to All Levels.

SERVICE BOARD HAS PLANS

McAdoo System, the Steinway Tunnel, and New Subway Extension Will Be Tapped.

The Public Service Commission received yesterday a letter from Vice President Ira A. Place of the New York Central Railroad, making formal announcement that plans were under way in connection with the new Grand Central terminal for the construction of a joint concourse connecting the railway station with all the rapid transit lines in Forty-second Street. Drawings of the concourse accompanied the letter of Mr. Place. One of these drawings THE TIMES reproduces herewith. It shows a cross section of Forty-second Street in front of the Grand Central terminal, with the concourse and the various lines which it connects.

Briefly, the Central proposes to build immediately below the surface of Forty-second Street and extending from the Interborough Subway station at the Vanderbilt Avenue corner of the present station a passageway extending east under Forty-second Street to the elevator shaft at Lexington Avenue, which connects the surface of the street at that point with both levels of the proposed Broadway-Lexington Avenue Subway and Steinway Tunnel underneath.

It will be recalled that the plans of the Hudson & Manhattan Railway, or the McAdoo system, for its Grand Central extension contemplates a general concourse beneath the northern half of Forty-second Street, between the westerly side of Park Avenue and the easterly side of Depew Place, with stairways connecting with the train platforms on the third level below Forty-second Street. This McAdoo concourse is pierced by the main elevator shaft to serve both the McAdoo tubes and the Steinway Tunnel beneath them, and to the east of the main elevator shaft. As indicated in the drawing which THE TIMES prints, there is a second elevator shaft connecting the McAdoo train platform with the Steinway Tunnel platform.

The proposed joint concourse fits in admirably with the McAdoo concourse on the level below it, inasmuch as the latter comes just about midway between the ends of the joint concourse and affords an easy and natural outlet to the levels below. The connections with the Lexington Avenue Subway on the east and the Interborough Subway on the west are indicated plainly on the drawing, and it is noticeable that, as the engineers have prepared the drawing the entrance to the main elevator shaft comes right at the foot of the stairs leading to the Third Avenue elevated extension and immediately in front of what will be the main entrance of the Grand Central Station when completed.

Mr. Place's letter conveying to the commission the drawings which embody these physical details follows:

Grand Central Terminal,

The Hon. William R. Willcox, Chairman
Public Service Commission, First District, 154 Nassau Street, New York City.

Dear Sir: There will be handed to you with this a portfolio consisting of nine sheets, containing plans and profiles proposed by our engineers of connections between the stations of the following-named companies and the new Grand Central Terminal:

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company.

The Hudson and Manhattan Company.

The New York & Long Island Railroad Company.

The proposed Lexington Avenue Rapid Transit line.

The essential feature about these plans is the common concourse, plan of which is shown on Page 8, and profiles of which are shown on Pages 7, 8, and 9.

Particular attention is called to the suggestion of our engineers that the new Lexington Avenue Subway station be located at Forty-second Street instead of Forty-third Street. That seems to be necessary in order to carry out these plans, and also to get any proper connection with the new Grand Central Terminal.

A change is also suggested in the location of the station of the New York & Long Island Railroad.

While there has been some informal conference, and perhaps correspondence, with some of your engineers and with the engineers of one or more of the companies above named, it seems to us that it is a matter of such vital importance to those interested in all of the stations which will be located at this point that there ought to be some general conference at which, not only the general interests, but any particular interest of each may be considered.

Our own work has progressed to such a point that it is important that the plans for these connections should be definitely determined in the near future. I am advised that your commission is progressing rapidly with the matter of the Lexington Avenue route, and also with certain proposed changes in the Interborough station. It would, therefore, seem to be appropriate for your commission to give consideration to this matter in order that harmonious action may be had by all parties interested. Another reason for this suggestion is that, as to the principal portions of these proposed plans within the lines of Forty-second Street and Lexington Avenue, this company has, of course, no authority to act. It is largely a matter which must be determined by your commission and by the city authorities.

The plans and profiles are submitted for your consideration. Our engineers will be glad to confer with the engineers of the commission, or with the engineers of any of the companies interested, or to attend a conference of all interested at any time which may be mutually convenient. There will undoubtedly be important questions both as to the physical features and as to the expense of carrying out these plans.

The end which we assume all will wish to attain is the most convenient means of passing from any one of these stations to any other by each one of the many passengers who will make use of them.

I should be glad if you will take the matter into consideration and advise me of any action taken by you with respect to these suggestions. Yours respectfully,

IRA A. PLACE,
Vice President.

The Public Service Commission, it was learned yesterday, has already been consulted about the Central's proposal in an informal way, and as a result it can be said that no physical difficulties are now known in the way of building the concourse as outlined. The commission at a meeting yesterday instructed its engineers to prepare a report on the subject, and meantime its legal staff will discuss with the lawyers for the New York Central the legal phases of the undertaking.

PROPOSED JOINT CONCOURSE CONNECTING NEW GRAND CENTRAL STATION WITH RAPID TRANSIT LINES IN 42nd ST.

LONG ISLAND ROAD DECLARES ITS FARES

Commutation to New Terminal Will Cost 95 Cents a Month More Than to 34th St.

NO ADVANCE IN OTHER RATES

So Commuters Having Offices Near Seventh Avenue and Can Walk Will Save Some Carfare.

President Ralph Peters and Traffic Manager A. L. Langdon of the Long Island Railroad both denied yesterday that any increase in the regular or commutation rates on that road is to be made either before or after the Pennsylvania terminal at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-third Street, Manhattan, is opened. But when the terminal is in use, an additional 95 cents a month will be charged on the New York tickets to the terminal over the previous rates to the foot of East Thirty-fourth Street for the additional distance between that point and Seventh Avenue. Traffic Manager Langdon announced this.

Speaking for President Peters, his secretary, Mr. Woodward, said that there would be no change in either the straight or commutation fare on the road between any point on Long Island and Long Island City. He mentioned that there is now a charge of $1.05 a month added to the commutation rate to Long Island City to cover ferriage to the foot of East Thirty-fourth Street.

When the Pennsylvania tunnels under the East River are opened and the Long Island trains run into the Seventh Avenue station, Manhattan, the cost will be $2 a month more than if the commuter bought his ticket to Long Island City, or 95 cents more than to the foot of East Thirty-fourth Street.

Mr. Woodward illustrated the new rates by means of the present rates to Flushing and Bayside. The sixty-trip monthly commutation fare between Flushing and Long Island City at present is $5.10, and to the foot of East Thirty-fourth Street, Manhattan, by ferry, $6.15, an addition of $1.05 for ferriage. The first rate of $5.10 to Long Island City will remain unchanged. But instead of paying $6.15 a month to be landed at the foot of East Thirty-fourth Street, the commuter will pay $7.10, that is, 95 cents more a month, and be landed at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-third Street.

The single trip rate to Long Island City remains the same as now. The trip one way from Flushing to Long Island City is 23 cents. If the passenger crosses on the ferry he pays 3 cents more, or 26 cents to be landed at the foot of East Thirty-fourth Street. When the tunnels are opened he can pay 28 cents at Flushing and be carried to the Pennsylvania station.

The new rate to the Pennsylvania station will be, in the end, a considerable saving to commuters having places of business near the Pennsylvania terminal, and many persons whose offices are in the section between Times and Madison Squares have bought or rented homes on Long Island in view of the new arrangements.

It is said that very few commuters have their offices in walking distance of East Thirty-fourth Street Ferry, and so have to pay 10 cents a day to and from their places of business after landing in Manhattan. The Flushing commuter, in addition to paying $6.15 a month to the foot of East Thirty-fourth Street, now pays for the same period $3 in carfare, or a total of $9.15. For $7.10 he may possibly be landed within walking distance of his office, when the terminal is opened, and thus actually saves $2.05 a month in transportation.

But whatever the location of his office he does not stand to lose anything, since it is not now contemplated to abolish altogether either the train service to the present terminal in Long Island City or the ferry service, though, of course, the boat schedule will not be so close as now. The commuter will be able, however, to buy his commutation tickets at the present rate for the present service.

PASSENGER AGENTS TO CONFER.

All the Pennsylvania Men Getting Together in This City Friday.

All of the passenger agents of the Pennsylvania Railroad west of Pittsburg will arrive in this city for a conference on Friday. They will come by special train. During their stay here they will inspect the new Pennsylvania tunnels and terminal.

A luncheon in their honor will be given by the railroad officials at the Waldorf-Astoria on Friday noon, after which there will be a meeting between the Western and Eastern Passenger men.

The Western agents will arrive in Pittsburg on Thursday, and after a brief stop in that city they will go to Philadelphia. The start for New York will be made early Friday morning, and the special train will take the new route from Harrison, N. J., passing under the North and East Rivers as well as the Borough of Manhattan, the last stop being made at the Sunnyside Yards in Long Island City. After inspecting the yards the train will return to the new Seventh Avenue terminal, where the Western representatives will look through the new station.

Sheriff Fails to Levy on Nicola Tesla.

The Sheriff returned unsatisfied yesterday an execution against Nicola Tesla, the inventor. The Keuffel & Esser Company, instrument makers, obtained a Municipal Court judgment against Tesla for an overdue bill on March 26, 1908. Tesla failed to pay and the judgment was docketed. Supreme Court Justice Seabury issued the execution on March 21 last.

B. & O. WAGE SCALE ON VANDERBILT LINES

Arbitrators Make Final Award in Reference to Three Roads West of Buffalo.

VOTE TO STRIKE ON ERIE

Differences with Nearly All the Other Lines Are Now Adjusted—Two Arbitrations Impending.

What practically amounts to the Baltimore & Ohio rate has been awarded to the trainmen and conductors of the Vanderbilt lines west of Buffalo, where an adjustment of wages had not been made. There are some modifications as to time of taking effect. This was announced by President Garretson of the Order of Railway Conductors.

The roads concerned are the Big Four, the Lake Erie & Western, and the Chicago, Indiana & Southern. Other roads in this group whose arbitration award was made public a few days ago are the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern and the Michigan Central. The Lake Shore and the Michigan Central took the Baltimore & Ohio scale, which the officials of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railroad Conductors had sought to establish as a standard. In the case of the three roads whose arbitration award has just been made the Baltimore & Ohio scale is made effective, but some of the rates do not go into effect until Jan. 1, 1911, while in other cases the Baltimore & Ohio scale is effective April 1 of this year. In January, 1911, the wages in all classes in these three roads will conform to the Baltimore & Ohio standard.

President Lee of the trainmen made this statement:

"The Monon and the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroads are to be bound by the decision in the case of the Big Four. The five Vanderbilt roads and their subordinate roads with which a settlement has now been reached employ 10,000 trainmen and conductors.

"In regard to all five roads in the group a yard proposition was adopted by which there are three classes in the yards. The first class, which takes in the yards near Chicago, get the Chicago rate. The second, taking in a number of other places, comes in at a cent an hour less, and the third class comes in at a cent and hour wages less than the second class. All the other roads are one cent an hour less than the Chicago standard. On an average the day conductors get 38 cents an hour, the night conductors 40 cents an hour, the day brakemen 35 cents an hour, and the night brakemen 37 cents an hour.

"This cleans up the entire situation as far as the arbitration conducted by E. E. Clark and P. H. Morrissey, who are still at Washington, is concerned. They have arbitrated the demands of the trainmen and conductors on the New York Central and Boston & Albany, which took in the Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western and the Delaware & Hudson men, these roads agreeing to be bound by the decision in the case of the New York Central. Then came the five Vanderbilt roads west of Buffalo, and the award in their case is adopted by a number of other roads.

"The only roads in the East whose men are in our association, to settle, of any importance, are the Philadelphia & Reading, the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and the Erie.

"The conferences with the Philadelphia & Reading have not started, and the conferences with the Central of New Jersey are still in progress."

It was announced that the canvass of the strike vote of the trainmen and conductors of the Erie would be completed to-day. The officers would not discuss the situation, but it is known that the vote is for a strike, almost unanimously.

RAILWAYS INCREASE WAGES.

Two Lines Substantially Raise Pay—New Haven Telegraphers Compromise.

WINSTED, Conn., May 17.—Employes of the Central New England Railroad have received an increase in wages of about 20 per cent., with one hour a day decrease in the time schedule, the new scale being based on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad adjudication. The agreement is for an indefinite period, each party to give thirty days' notice of intention to change.

NORFOLK, Va., May 17.—The trainmen, enginemen, firemen, and conductors on the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad have obtained a substantial increase in wages over and above the recent increase of 6 per cent. The men have also been assured of better working conditions.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 17.—There will be no strike of telegraphers, towermen, and agents on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, a satisfactory settlement having been reached at to-day's conference between the committee of the men with National Vice President T. H. Pierson of their organization and General Manager Higgins of the company.

The men wanted something like a 10 per cent. increase, and favored a strike to support the demands. The company offered what the men claimed was not more than 3 per cent. The settlement, it is learned, grants an increase to station operators of 7 per cent. and to towermen 5 per cent. The new agreement will be operative next Saturday.

STEINWAY TUNNEL UP AGAIN.

"Peculiar Circumstances" in Connection with Parker Bill, Says Mr. Hammitt

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 17.—In a statement made public to-night J. O. Hammitt, Secretary of the Citizens' Union, calls attention to what he terms "a series of peculiar circumstances" in the treatment of the so-called Steinway tunnel bill, which was introduced by Assemblyman Parker at the request of the Belmont interests.

Mr. Hammitt says that while those back of the bill represented that members of the Public Service Commission had been consulted in regard to it, so far as pub- says, "were very important in order to approved the bill. Some one connected with the commission, however, suggested amendments, which were offered by Mr. Parker.

The bill authorizes an existing corporation to take over the tunnel and operate it in connection with one of the rapid transit schemes which have been favored. The suggested amendments, Hr. Hammitt says, "were very important inorder to guard against the revival of a perpetual franchise. One of the amendments substituted the words 'and all surviving franchises' for the word 'franchise,' and, while the Assembly Journal shows that the bill was reported with the amendments, the bill was reprinted without them, and in the same form as the first print."

In the Senate two bills with the same object in view were introduced on different days by Senators Frawley and Harte. Both were reported and amended. The Harte bill provides that the New York & Long Island Railroad Company can transfer the Steinway tunnel only to a company which "shall hereafter receive a franchise or contract for the construction and operation of a railroad upon the whole or portion of the route," instead of a railroad which "has or shall hereafter receive such franchise or contract."

None of the bills has been passed in either house.

CLASS MEETS AFTER 25 YEARS

Boys Graduated from the City College in 1885 Hold a Reunion.

For the first time in twenty-five years the alumni of the New York City College, class of '85, got together last night and held a dinner in the yacht room of the Hotel Astor. Some of the classmen lived so far away they could not make the journey, but those who were present sang the old college songs and told the old college stories again, as in schoolboy days. At midnight they gave three cheers for Auld Lang Syne and shook hands all around, to meet again next year.

Those who were at the dinner were L. F. Moritz, N. Barnett, Samuel Borchardt, Theodore Schulte, the Rev. Dr. Schulman, William J. O'Shea, Harold Nathan, Louis Hicks, Dr. Forbes McCreery, Dr. Henry Martin, Hugo Neuman, Harry Mark, Prof. Charles Downer, Louis Bach, Charles Griffith, Mr. White, Percy Hildreth, George Debevoise, Dr. George McAuliffe, Frank De Voe, Vladimir Kaminski, B. COTTON TO WELD & CO. HELD ON INJUNCTION

$60,000 in Securities, Passed to New York Firm by Steele, Miller & Co., Also Enjoined.

RECEIVER MAKES COMPLAINT

Says Transfers Were Made When Steele-Miller Were in Trouble Over Bogus Bills of Lading.

New light was thrown on the fraudulent bill of lading scandal, recently developed through an exposure of the losses of Liverpool and Bremen cotton firms in their dealings with certain cotton exporters in the South, by a bill of complaint filed in the United States District Court here yesterday, and a preliminary injunction issued by Judge Hazel. The complainant is J. A. E. Pyle, receiver of the cotton firm of Steele, Miller & Co. of Corinth, Miss., and the defendants Stephen M., Edward M., and Rudolph Weld, George W. Neville, and Robert C. Cairnes, members of the big cotton firm of Stephen M. Weld & Co., of 82 Beaver Street, this city.

The receiver of Steele, Miller & Co. does not charge that the firm of Weld & Co. or any of its members had anything to do with or knew of the bill of lading frauds, but he does assert that Weld & Co., knowing Steele, Miller & Co. to be hopelessly insolvent, sent Mr. Neville down to Corinth and obtained preferential transfers of large amounts of assets in fraud of the other creditors. These assertions Mr. Pyle, in the complaint, declares he can prove.

On representations Judge Hazel issued an injunction restraining Weld & Co. from transferring any securities, cotton, or other property now in their possession which may have been received from Steele, Miller & Co., and also restraining the New York Dock Company from transferring any such property now in its possession or to be received for the account of Weld & Co.

Some of the Cotton in Transit.

Receiver Pyle's appointment dates from May 6, 1910, and he says in his complaint that large amounts of cotton were shipped by Steele, Miller & Co. to Weld & Co. in the few days prior to May 6, which are now in transit on the railroads and are to be received by the New York Dock Company for Weld & Co.'s account.

The allegations of the complaint containing the charges of fraud upon New York and foreign firms in connection with bills of lading, place the amount of money involved in these operations of Steele, Miller & Co. at between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000. In this connection, Mr. Pyle says:

"For a few weeks prior to filing the petition in bankruptcy, Steele, Miller & Co. procured by fraudulent and bogus bills of lading vast sums of money from creditors in Germany, France, Russia, Spain, and New York City. The exact amount of the fraudulent bills of lading and the bales of cotton involved, and the exact amount of money represented cannot be accurately ascertained at this time, but your complainant says that the money procured in this way will be somewhere between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000.

No Cotton Behind the Bills.

"Your complainant would further show that this vast sum of money so procured by Steele, Miller & Co. was never represented by any cotton, nor was there ever any attempt on their part to ship the cotton on which they obtained it, and the drafts with forged bills of lading attached purporting to represent so many bales of cotton and so much money, were drawn on people in New York City, France, Spain, Germany, and Russia."

In that part of his bill relating to the alleged illegal preference given to Weld & Co. in the transfer of assets immediately preceding the filing of the bankruptcy petition, Receiver Pyle says:

"Your complainant would further show that the defendants, Weld & Co., claim to be creditors of Steele, Miller & Co., to an amount that is unknown, but your complainant does aver that on May 2, 1910, before the court had appointed him receiver a member of the firm of Steele, Miller & Co. telegraphed Weld & Co. to send a representative of their firm to Corinth at once, and that in compliance with this request George W. Neville, one of the defendants, hastened to Corinth, and there having been well advised of and made thoroughly conversant with the insolvent condition of Steele, Miller & Co., said George W. Neville procured from Steele, Miller & Co. a vast amount of securities, consisting of bank stock, compress stock, notes, accounts, &c., to the value of over $60,000, the exact amount of which will be produced in evidence.

Preference Over Other Creditors.

"Complainant would further show that the defendants, Weld & Co., being thoroughly conversant with the financial embarrassment of Steele, Miller & Co., and after having repeatedly called on them for additional security, procured said Steele, Miller & Co. to ship to them a large quantity of spot cotton from Memphis, Tenn.; Corinth, Miss.; Greenville, S. C., and other points unknown to the complainant, but your complainant does charge the fact to be that the defendants, Weld & Co., procured by this means in order to have a preference over other creditors of Steele, Miller & Co., and got possession of a large quantity of cotton, namely, several hundred bales, and a great quantity of said cotton is now in the possession of the New York Dock Company, holding the same for Weld & Co., and in addition to the cotton already here, there are several hundred bales of cotton now en route on various railroads coming to New York, shipped by Steele, Miller & Co. to Weld & Co."

Receiver Pyle offers to show that when these shipments were made the firm of Steele, Miller & Co. was hopelessly insolvent, and that Weld & Co. arranged the transfers of securities, notes, and cotton, knowing their act to be in violation of the rights of the other creditors. He therefore asks the injunction covering both the securities and cotton already in the possession of Weld & Co. and the New York Dock Company, but the cotton to be received by the latter concern for the account of the brokers. This is the injunction that Judge Hazel granted.

SUFFRAGE PARADE PLANS.

1,000 Women Expected to be in Line for Saturday's Demonstration.

The line of march of the suffragists who are to take part in the big protest meeting in Union Square on Saturday has been arranged. The automobile parade will start from Fifty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue at 2 o'clock and proceed slowly down to Union Square. There will be 100 autos in line, each draped with a banner giving the name of the Assembly district which it represents or the suffrage society. There will be one and in some cases two automobiles from a district. Mrs. Charles Beard will marshal the procession. All the leaders of the Assembly districts of the Woman Suffrage Party will ride.

The procession of suffragists on foot will be headed by the members of the Collegiate Equal Suffrage League, its members in cap and gown and wearing sashes of their society color, violet and green and buff. Starting from their headquarters at 20 East Thirty-third Street, they will march down Fifth Avenue to Twenty-second Street, picking up the members of the Woman Suffrage Party coming from 1 Madison Square at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street. At Twenty-second Street the members of the Equality League of Self-Supporting Women, the Co-operative Equal Suffrage League, and the Jean d'Arc will join and march on down Fourth Avenue to Union Square.

Suffragists from all over the State have been invited to join in the demonstration, and it is thought there may be in all 1,000 women in line. In Union Square there will be five platforms for the speakers, among whom will be Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett, Mrs. Jessica G. Finch, Dr. Julia Seton Sears, Mrs. Priscilla D. Hackstaff, Robert H. Elder, Assistant District Attorney of Brooklyn; ex-Judge William H. Wood, and Miss Florence M. King.

Two automobiles of the Fifteenth and Nineteenth Assembly Districts at the south end of the square will be supply stations, one for literature and one for suffrage buttons, which will be sold in the crowd. Down on the east side for some days sandwich men have been promenading with announcements of the meeting, and last night Mrs. Lee De Forest, Miss Elizabeth Cook, Miss Alberta Hill, and Miss Sarah Splint carried banners announcing the meeting around the theatrical district while the crowds were going into the theatres.

BOOKLOVING BROWNSVILLE.

More Library Volumes Read There Than in Any Other Part of Brooklyn.

The twelfth annual report of the Trustees of the Brooklyn Public Library gives details of the work done by the branch libraries. The Brownsville branch ranks first in point of circulation, with 330,388 volumes. The population in the Brownsville district is largely foreign, but there is great activity in its schools, clubs, and debating societies.

The report notes the changes effected by the distribution in population and the increase of transportation facilities which are changing the character of the borough. The contrast between certain districts, such as Flatbush and Bushwick, or between Ridgewood and Fort Hamilton, or between two divisions of one suburb, is, says the report, more marked than that between many cities.

Borrowers of books include nearly all races, and it is said that these citizens of foreign birth are on the road to assimilation and that, so far from having colonized, there is a "marked community feeling" in the outskirts where they live. In some branches children form the majority of book borrowers and in others women.

Methodist Bishops Elected.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 17.—The Rev. W. R. Lambuth of Tennessee and the Rev. E. D. Mouson and the Rev. R. G. Waterhouse of Virginia were elected Bishops on the fourth ballot at the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South in session here. On the sixth ballot, the Rev. J. H. McCoy of Birmingham, Ala., was elected as the seventh Bishop, filling the College of Bishops to the full quota. The Committee on Episcopacy recommended that Bishop H. C. Morrison be continued on the effective list, but recommended itineracy because Bishop Morrison promised to correct the matters complained of in his official administration. The conference accepted the report.

BROKER RETORTS ON CARNEGIE TRUST

Kleebolte, Sued for $137,955 on a Note, Says It Never Was to Have Been Paid.

WAS ISSUED TO HIDE LOANS

Said Loans Being Made to P. J. Keiran's Fidelity Funding Company at Usurious Interest.

Rudolph Kleebolte, head of the note brokerage firm of Rudolph Kleebolte & Co., obtained yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Whitney an order for the examination before trial of Charles Courter Dickinson, former President of the Carnegie Trust Company; Robert B. Moorehead, its Assistant Secretary, and Stanton C. Dickinson, its Assistant Treasurer. The officials will be required to tell of the transactions of the Carnegie Trust with Patrick J. Keiran and the bankrupt Fidelity Funding Company.

The Carnegie Trust Company is suing Rudolph Kleebolte & Co. for $137,955, a balance alleged to be due on a promissory note for $375,000. Justice Whitney's order directs the Carnegie Trust officials to appear before Referee Louis S. Philips and to produce all books and papers bearing on the transaction. The trust company sold collateral and securities which belonged to Kleebolte when the note was protested, thus reducing the indebtedness to the sum for which it is now suing.

Kleebolte, in his answer to the complaint, admits that he signed the name of his firm to what purported to be a promissory note, but says he never delivered it to the Carnegie Trust Company, which, he asserts, obtained possession of it by fraud. He declares he sent the note out with a messenger, on the understanding that when the note was delivered the company would give securities to the messenger to take back to him. The securities were not sent; hence Kleebolte holds there was no valid delivery of the note.

Kleebolte says that on March 8, 1908, the loans made by the Carnegie Trust Company to P. P. Keiran and the Fidelity Funding Company aggregated $1,000,000 and that the trust company officers did not want such large advances to Keiran to appear on their books. Kleebolte says he was asked to make the note, which is the object of the suit, as part of the process of concealing the amount advanced to Keiran.

Kleebolte declares that it was understood he never was to make any payment on this note. In return for making it he was to receive a number of Keiran's bonds to sell, he said, but these, he says, never were put in salable shape, and the plans of Keiran were spoiled when the Fidelity Funding Company went into bankruptcy and Keiran was arrested on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Kleebolte says he never received any consideration for making the note.

Also it is charged by Kleebolte that the loans by the Carnegie Trust Company to Keiran and the Fidelity Funding Company were usurious. He asserts the trust company took a seventy-five-thousand-dollar bonus, in addition to the highest legal rate of interest.

WHITE SLAVE TRIAL TO-DAY.

College Women Who Got the Evidence Will Testify in the Case.

The trial of Belle Moore, charged with having sold two girls to an agent from the District Attorney's office for shipment to the Seattle "trade," is scheduled for 10:30 o'clock this morning before Judge Crain in General Sessions.

The two college women whom the Rockefeller Grand Jury sent into the Tenderloin to pose as keepers of Western resorts will be called as witnesses, Mr. Whitman said last night, and their identity can no longer be withheld.

Belle Moore is a mulatto who had a flat in West Forty-first Street. It was there that the agent, George Miller, swears he saw an eleven-year-old white girl. The most elaborate search has failed, however, to find her.

"Chantecler"

The literary and dramatic sensation of the decade.
Exclusive publication in Hampton's Magazine.

M. Edmond Rostand—author of "Cyrano de Bergerac," "L'Aiglon," etc.—has produced in "Chantecler" the greatest satiric play of the age—the greatest literary sensation.

People of culture all over the world are eagerly awaiting its publication. It is being discussed daily in schools, literary circles, theatrical circles, fashion circles—everywhere. "Chantecler" is distinctly and pre-eminently the rage.

500,000 copies of the French book have already been sold and the demand increases. The success of the play is tremendous, not only in Paris but throughout all France, where it is being presented by several companies. M. Rostand's royalties are estimated at 2,500,000 francs—and this sum will probably increase.

Surely you will not regard us as extravagant when we say that you must read "Chantecler."

The sarcastic and amusing, pathetic and kindly portrayal of humam emotions and human characteristics through the mouths of fowls will afford you line after line of exquisite delight and relish. The character of the Cock is magnificent. Though an egotist he is broadminded, tenderhearted, wholly lovable—as remarkable and striking a hero as literature has seen in centuries. The Hen Pheasant is a New Woman—and very charming. The Black Bird, the Watch Dog, the Guinea Hen, the Peacock—every character is fascinating.

M. Rostand has chosen HAMPTON'S MAGAZINE as the medium through which to present "Chantecler" to the English-reading world. The translation is by Miss Gertrude Hall, whose excellent rendition of "Cyrano de Bergerac" met with M. Rostand's keen approval. Each instalment will be profusely illustrated in colors.

M. Rostand has protected his work with the most stringent of copyrights; you will not be able to read the English version of the play anywhere except in HAMPTON'S MAGAZINE.

The first instalment appears in HAMPTON'S MAGAZINE for June. Now on sale. Price 15 cents.

If your newsdealer is sold out, send fifty cents for the four numbers—June, July, August and September—containing "Chantecler" complete.

ADDRESS: HAMPTON'S MAGAZINE, 66 WEST 35TH STREET, NEW YORK.

The Evening Post, New York, says: "The publishers of HAMPTON'S have undoubtedly shown enterprise in capturing the two biggest stories of the year in Peary's North Pole and Rostand's Drama."

THOUSANDS OF BEAUTIFUL DECORATED DINNER SETS

Macy's China Leadership Is Completely Exemplified by the Following Matchless Values. None of You Should Miss Seeing the Entire Display.

Macy's Owns and Operates a Glass Factory, Steinschonau, Bohemia; An Artware Pottery, Rudolstadt, Thuringia; China Decorating Shops, Limoges, France; Decorating Plant, Carlsbad, Bohemia; Glass and China Decorating Studio and Cut Glass Shops, New York City.

In spite of the utmost care exercised by the manufacturers, about half of the China and Glass and Cooking Utensils come out defective in one way or another. These blemished products are known to the trade as "seconds." We don't buy or sell them. We could realize much larger profits if we did. It's a well-known fact that they are absorbed by other retailers, who frequently sell them at higher prices than we ask for perfect qualities.

"STRAUS" CUT GLASS

THE "STRAUS" CUT GLASS IS MADE IN THE MACY CUT GLASS SHOP.

This Is Located on the Eighth Floor, and the Public Is Cordially Invited to Watch the Workmen at Their Wheels.

Broadly speaking, all America knows and admires "Straus" Cut Glass. The beauty of its patterns, its depth of cutting, its clear, pure color tones, no less than the practical business spirit that controls the prices, have put it in the homes of thousands.

Brilliant collections of "Straus" Cut Glass are a vital part of our store attractions.

We think you will be unfair to yourself if, wishing to buy Cut Glass, you fail to see the new beauties.

Cut Glass Combinations—If you were to buy each piece separately, paying the usual prices, each set would cost you considerably more than we quote:

$8.00 Combination at $4.98—three pieces—8 in. Berry Bowl, Celery Tray and Water Bottle.

$12.00 Combination at $7.49—five pieces—8 in. Berry or Salad Bowl, Sugar and Cream, Celery Tray and Water Bottle.

$15.00 Combination at $9.89—seven pieces—8 in. Berry or Salad Bowl, Celery Tray, Sugar and Cream, Water Pitcher, Handled Olive Dish and Spoon Tray.

LOBMEYR'S ENGRAVED GLASS

IT CAN ONLY BE SEEN IN THIS COUNTRY AT THE MACY STORE.

Marvels of Patience, Skill and Delicate Workmanship—Only Lobmeyr of Vienna Has Hands and Eyes for Such Art.

First, Engraved Glass from Lobmeyr's Vienna workshop. The Lobmeyrs have been glass engravers for generations. One of the ancestors of the present generation achieved great fame in the execution of his art a century ago. His masterpieces are preserved in several museums in Europe. The pieces we have brought to this country are really museum specimens. There are only a few—one small tableful—Vases, Trays, Decanters and Glasses—ranging from 97c to $139.63. "Lobmeyr" genius is seen in the engraving. Watteau and Grecian medallions in translucent enamels appear in a few pieces. The greater your art perceptions, the fuller your art training, the keener will be your appreciation.

Such wonderful accuracy, such wonderful delicacy, such strength expressed in the intaglios! No artist could have pencilled subjects more faithfully.

GALLE GLASS FROM NANCY.

Visit Macy's and Enjoy Looking at These Exquisite Specimens.

Galle Glass from Nancy, France, is the other. We make no effort to describe it. The descriptive talent to do so is not in our advertising office. Galle Glass has a tinted base—a sort of mellow mingling of soft color tones. You've seen the effect under the edge of a Summer cloud. The decorations are sharply etched floral designs showing in acute relief. Flower Bowls, Bon Bon Boxes, Electroliers and Vases from four inches high to the very tall ones meant for long-stemmed flowers. Prices run from $3.49 to $29.89.

HERE'S HISTORICAL WARE

FULL OF INTEREST—APPEALS TO SENTIMENT AND TRADITION.

The China Critic's Eye That Spies These at Macy's Will Wonder How Such Things Can Be Sold at the Prices Asked.

In 1783 Martha Washington was presented with a symbolically decorated dinner service by the French Officers of the Continental Army. The one specimen still in existence is treasured at Smithsonian Institution. But from it we have reproduced a variety of pieces in this interesting design, and can make any others desired, to order.

Martha Washington Plates, four sizes, $1.23 to $2.47; Cake Plate, $3.49; Cup and Saucer, $1.97, $2.47; Teapot, $4.97; Sugar Bowl, $2.97; Cream Pitcher, $1.97.

PRACTICAL TEAPOTS.

They Are for Ornament as Well as Use—Prices Draw Crowds at Macy's.

From Japan, red-and-white, blue-and-white, tan-and-green, or plain green. From England, tan, brown, with silver or bronze, with flowers, scenery, or dotted design in colors; dull red, under-glazed; also green-and-gold. From Germany, silvered china in many shapes. From domestic potteries, the unique Gypsy Teapot.

Gypsy Teapots, egg-shaped, permitting tea to brew to any strength by dropping pot into horizontal position, 97c, $1.47 and $1.97.

DEPOSITORS' ACCOUNT DEPARTMENT.

Patrons Who Desire All the Conveniences of an Ordinary "Charge" Account, Without Its Faults, Are Invited to Investigate.

Deposit any sum you may desire at Macy's and charge your purchases against it. Itemized statements are mailed monthly. The daily balance to your credit is not idle, as we allow interest at the rate of four per cent., compounded quarterly. Deposits cannot be checked against, as we do no banking business. Only purchasing accounts solicited.

MEANT FOR PUGILIST, BOXER TELLS CANNON

"Battling" Nelson Dodges When Speaker Aims Blow "Jack" O'Brien Taught Him.

BEFORE HOUSE COMMITTEE

Roosevelt Never Missed a Bout, He Says in Protesting Against Proposed Anti-Boxing Legislation.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—"Battling" Nelson called on Speaker Cannon at the Capitol to-day, and after looking over the latter's spare frame from a respectful distance averred "that the Speaker would have made a great featherweight."

"If you had begun boxing a few years ago you would have made a better boxer than a Speaker, and you are certainly some Speaker," declared Nelson.

Some of the group surrounding the two informed the fighter that the Speaker took his daily exercise and always kept himself fit.

"I knew he was there on the training," replied Nelson; "you can't fool me about telling when a boy is in shape.

"Say," he continued, as he ran his fingers up and down the Speaker's arms and looked him over from head to foot, "I heard you were a big man, but you're only a little feller."

Uncle Joe grinned and put up his hands in approved pugilistic style. Nelson accepted the mock challenge and put up his practiced hands as if in defense. Speaker Cannon made a few swift passes at the "Battler," who backed away laughing.

"'Philadelphia Jack' O'Brien taught me those," confided Mr. Cannon.

Nelson was at the Capitol to appear before a committee in opposition to a bill introduced by Representative Smith of Iowa prohibiting the exhibition of moving pictures of prizefights and transmision of descriptions of prizefights by wire.

The committee displayed keen interest in Nelson. The pugilist hails from Hegewich, Ill., and is a constituent of Representative Mann, Chairman of the Committee on Inter-State and Foreign Commerce.

"If you are going after boxing contests and the pictures taken of them, why not make a good, clean sweep, and do away with racing news, stock tickers, and accounts of football games?" said Nelson.

"I've never seen a boxing contest," said Mr. Sims. "Why not give us a little exhibition here in this room?"

"That's just the trouble with these people who are trying to end boxing," quickly interrupted Nelson. "Most of them have never seen a contest, and they don't know what they are talking about. Let me tell you something maybe you don't know, but Theodore Roosevelt never missed a go when he was in New York."

The pugilist was just starting to recount the amount of money tied up in the fighting business when a call of the House broke up the committee meeting. Nelson said they rang the gong too soon on him, and he had not finished.

PREPARED FOR NEW BANK LAW

Steamship Men, After Governor's Hearing, Expect He'll Sign Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 17.—After Gov. Hughes had given a hearing to-day on Senator T. D. Sullivan's bill regulating private bankers, such as those who receive the deposits of immigrants on the east side, representatives of the steamship companies, who oppose the measure, expressed the belief that the Governor would sign it. Attorneys for the transatlantic lines, which issue travelers' checks and drafts, made a vain attempt to start an amendment, which would exempt them specifically from the provisions of the bill.

Louis Marshall and others, who favor the legislation, believe that the bill will not affect the steamship companies. It applies to "individuals and partnerships" and exempts express companies and telegraph companies. The steamship companies declare, however, that until the provisions of the proposed law are construed by the courts there will be more or less uncertainty as to their status.

F. F. Boullowa, representing several Italian bankers of New York, said that the new provisions would force several bankers out of business, and that the depositors would suffer accordingly.

McMANUS AFTER WALL STREET

He Wants Stock Gambling Prohibited as Strictly as Race-Track Betting.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 17.—Just as the Senate reconvened this afternoon after the midday recess, Senator "The" McManus offered a resolution calling upon Gov. Hughes to send an emergency message to the Legislature to prohibit stock gambling. The Senate was in the midst of its debate on the Federal income tax resolution, and many members showed signs of impatience as the resolution was read.

Senator McManus demanded that the resolution receive consideration at once. The first to object was Senator Cullen, a Democrat from Kings, and in a moment Senators Agnew of New York and Hinman of Broome and half a dozen other members were on their feet demanding that the resolution follow the usual course. Lieut. Gov. White referred it to the Judiciary Committee.

WOMAN'S 107TH BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. Wonderly Says She Feels the Joy of Living Still.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—With mind still keen and with an unabated interest in life, Elizabeth Wolderly greeted her one hundred and seventh birthday to-day at the Methodist Episcopal Home for the Aged in this city. Mrs. Wonderly's eyes are a bit dim, and walking is wearisome, but she says she feels joy in living.

Mrs. Wonderly was born in Smyrna, Del. Her father, who was a soldier in the Revolution, lived to be 99, and her grandfather to be 105. She held a reception to-day in the chapel of the home, with prayer and songs and recitations on the programme.

When the matron of the home to-day asked the aged woman if she saw Halley's comet on its last visit seventy-six years ago she said:

"I think I did through a spyglass."

MILITIA OFFICERS DISMISSED.

Hughes Approves Court Findings on Capts. Coates and Oliver and Lieut. Devlin.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 17.—Gov. Hughes to-day approved the findings of the court-martial, dismissing from the National Guard Capts. William B. Coates and Edward Oliver of the Second Battalion, Tenth Regiment.

Capt. Coates was charged with conduct unbecoming an officer an da gentleman in endeavoring to hold an athletic meet under the auspices of his company for his personal benefit, and offfering to resign his Captaincy whenever requested by a majority of the members of his company. Capt. Oliver was accused of neglect of duty in failing to maintain a proper standard of discipline in his command.

The Governor also approved the findings of the court-martial, dismissing from the service Second Lieut. James H. L. Devlin, Fourteenth Infantry, Brooklyn. Lieut. Devlin, while on duty with Company L, Fourteenth Regiment, at the field exercises in Massachusetts last year, deserted his command and returned to his home without permission. He was sentenced to be dismissed from the service, fined $100, and reprimanded. Gov. Hughes remitted the fine and the reprimand on the ground that they added nothing to the punishment, but rather detracted from the just weight of the dismissal itself.

FEAR FOR AUTO BILL.

Removal of Small Town Speed Clause May Insure Passage.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 17.—Fear was expressed to-night that the Callan Automobile bill would be allowed to die in the Senate although a concession to its opponents is said to have removed the last obstacle in the way of its passage. The measure has been before the Senate three weeks. Last week it was said that the bill as finally changed was in a form acceptable to the Governor.

Assemblyman Callan made a canvass of the Senate to-day and found that several of the members of the upper house objected to the provision which allows the smaller cities and villages of the State to regulate traffic regulations.

"That would place the users of automobiles completely at the mercy of local authorities," a Senator who owns an automobile said to-night.

Mr. Callan called at the Executive Chamber and returned with the statement that the Governor would accept the amendment. Mr. Callan has received assurance that while the bill is far from acceptable to automobile users, there will be no further objection in the Senate.

MERRITT BILL PASSED.

Assembly Places Up-State Telephones and Telegraphs Under Service Board.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 17.—By the passage of the Merritt bill extending the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission of the Second District to the telephone and telegraph companies, the Assembly to-day completed the important work of the session. The bill passed by 88 to 16.

The only argument against the bill was a criticism of the Public Service Commission from Democratic members. James Oliver called it "the greatest legislative fake perpetrated under the shadow of the approval of Gov. Hughes." He was forced to admit that he voted for the bill creating the commission, but expressed regret that he had been misguided. Assemblymen O'Connor, Hoey, and A. E. Smith found nothing to commend in the commission of the First District.

The Assembly voted down an amendment to place the New York City telephone and telegraph companies under the jurisdiction of the First District Commission and passed the bill in its original form. The measure, it is expected, will be passed by the Senate in the closing hours of the session.

SENATE AIDS RACE TRACK MEN

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 17.—Race track interests have been successful thus far in blocking the effort to make Directors of racing associations criminally responsible for gambling at the tracks. One of the Anti-Oral Betting bills, introduced in both Houses this session, repealed Section 291 of the business corporations law, which exempts Directors of racing associations from liability for gambling if the track is placarded and policed.

The Assembly passed one of the bills and the Senate passed the other, but legislative rules require that one bill shall pass both Houses. The Senate bill is now resting in the Rules Committee of the Assembly, and the Assembly bill is still on the calendar of the Senate Codes Committee, and until one measure or the other is moved the exemption in favor of the race track Director will remain the law of the State.

Senator Agnew, sponsor for the race track legislation in the Upper House, moved to-day to discharge the Codes Committee from further consideration of the Assembly bill and to send it to the Governor out of its order. The Senators refused to vote for the motion, thus reversing their action by which the Senate bill was passed ten days ago. Senator Agnew's motion was lost by 23 to 21.

SENATE WON'T PURIFY RIVERS

Senatorial Courtesy Kills Bill Directed Against Unsanitary Factory Waste.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 17.—A recent canvass of the Senate by Edward Hatch, who for many years has been conducting an energetic campaign for the purification of the streams and lakes in this State, has convinced him that there is little hope of getting through the Senate the Mackenzie bill, creating more stringent safeguards against water pollution.

"Many Senators have to-day assured me that they believe the bill should be passed, but beg to be released from their pledge to support it, because they have been requested to vote against it by Senator James M. Emerson of Essex and Warren," said Mr. Hatch to-day.

BALLINGER A GUEST AT PERKINS'S HOME

Just Before Alaska trip—Asked Seattle City Engineer to Accompany Banker.

LETTERS READ AT INQUIRY

Kerby Attacks Secretary—Lawler Apologizes After Outbreak on Stand—A Thrust at Taft, Says Root.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Letters which passed between Secretary Ballinger and R. H. Thomson, City Engineer of Seattle, and which were introduced at the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry to-day, cast a light upon the source of the intimate knowledge possessed by certain Government officials of the plans and activity of the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate in Alaska. Some of the letters show that Mr. Ballinger had been consulted by George W. Perkins of the Morgan firm, and knew pretty well what the syndicate was after in Alaska. Here are two of them:

> PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL.
> My Dear Thomson: Last Sunday I was the guest of Mr. George W. Perkins at Yonkers. Mr. Perkins is at the head of the house of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., as you perhaps know. He told me he had arranged for a special boat to take himself and party, including his family, to Alaska for the investigation of the feasibility of exploiting Alaska in railroad construction and in other lines in which he is deeply interested. He will sail from Seattle about the middle of July.
> He is desirous of having an engineer accompany him who is not allied in any way to railroad interests or private connection which would in any way influence his judgment, and he has been insistent on my recommending some one familiar with the Western country to take this voyage with him, and to advise him. Naturally, I could think of no one so well equipped as you to fill this office, and as this connection is one of importance and the trip would be one of great pleasure and profit, it has occurred to me that you would enjoy this form of vacation.
>
> On receipt of this letter please write whether it will be worth while for Mr. Perkins to consider it possible for you to accompany him. I hope you will not understand by the suggestion above that I have in any sense abandoned the hope of securing your services in the matter about which we conferred in Seattle. I anticipate that not later than September I will be able to formally present the matter to you. Sincerely yours, R. A. BALLINGER.
>
> Mr. R. H. THOMSON, Engineer, Seattle.

Mr. Thompson's reply follows:

> Seattle, May 20, 1909.
>
> My Dear Mr. Ballinger: I have just wired: "Can arrange northern trip, but it may interfere Spokane congress.—R. H. Thomson." On receipt of your letter I of course went to the Mayor with reference to a possible absence. I said to him that you had asked me to make "a trip for unknown purposes with unknown parties to an unknown part of Alaska, beginning about the middle of July."
>
> Much to my surprise this worked on his Honor's curiosity in a most wonderful way, and for two days he has tried to see if he could not lead out on something that would reveal the purpose. I knew nothing more than I first stated. He said to me late this afternoon "that he had made up his mind you wanted me to catch some bunch of thieves, and he would like to know who they were so as to help me catch them." "Now, Thomson, you are the judge," he said; "you can go, but if you do it will make it impossible to attend the irrigation congress at Spokane, and you show me his answer." Under these conditions, Judge, please write me a blind letter which I can show him so as to satisfy his request if not his curiosity. I must confess to a considerable disappointment at the curiosity manifested. If I go I will only say that I have chosen to take my Summer rest by visiting Alaska. This statement will be satisfactory to the Mayor.
> I expect to go east of the mountains in a day or two with Mr. Parry and Judge Hanford to visit their various irrigation works. I will also stop for a day at North Yakima. Very truly yours
> R. H. THOMSON.

The letters were introduced at what those present declared to be the most sensational proceedings which thus far have characterized the progress of the Ballinger-Pinchot Investigating Committee, the cause of the Secretary of the Interior was attacked by the testimony of Frederick M. Kerby, the young stenographer, who was dismissed yesterday from the Government service because of his published statement concerning the circumstances of the writing of the now famous Lawler letter. Mr. Ballinger's friends admitted, however, that it suffered more by reason of the attempts of certain members of the committee to confuse and entangle the witness, and because of the efforts of Oscar Lawler to refute the statements of Kerby.

Charges of falsehood and subordination of perjury and displays of feeling kept the investigators on edge and spectators and finally even members of the committee, who have indicated more than a friendly attitude toward Secretary Ballinger, were obliged to call Mr. Lawler to account for his intemperate language, and he was forced to make apology to the committee.

At one time when Mr. Lawler charged former Secretary Garfield, Gifford Pinchott, and Attorney Brandeis with having corrupted Kerby to make a false statement, the spectators, who crowded the room—most of them women—hissed the witness loudly, and the custodian of the committee room summoned the police to preserve order. Such was Lawler's demeanor on the stand that Representative Madison, the Republican insurgent member of the committee, remarked that "his attitude as a witness proved the old adage that a lawyer makes the poorest witness on earth."

Lawler asserted that ever since he came into the Interior Department "gumshoe" men, whom he identified as Gifford Pinchot, Attorney Brandeis, "that man Hapgood," referring to the editor of Collier's Weekly, and J. C. Connelly, a writer for that publication, had "been on his trail." Charging that Kerby had been "corrupted" into making a false statement and to revealing the secrets of the department, he accused James R. Garfield, Pinchot, and Attorney Brandeis with being the corruptionists. Then it was that the audience, at the mention of Garfield's name, burst forth in hisses. Coloring to the roots of his long flowing black locks, Lawler snapped out:

"Geese and snakes are the creatures which make such sounds."

Attorney Brandeis asked the witness whether or not he had not evaded the call of the committee for the much-discussed document, the Lawler letter, and half rising from his chair, Lawler hissed:

"That is an absolute and unqualified falsehood on your part."

Mr. Lawler's attitude upon the witness stand was in marked contrast to the calm, deliberate, and impressive demeanor of Kerby, who preceded him. He proved himself more than the equal of the lawyers on the committee, who subjected him to a grilling cross-fire of questions. To heated and sarcastic questions the young man gave prompt and respectful responses.

It was stated in the course of Kerby's examination that Secretary Ballinger had come into office with the intention of discharging Director Newell from the head of the Reclamation Service and appointing in his stead Robert H. Thomson, City Engineer, of Seattle. In this connection it was brought out that Secretary Ballinger had had much "private" correspondence with George W. Perkins of the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., and much "confidential" correspondence with Thomson relative to his going to Alaska with Mr. Perkins to make an investigation of the Morgan-Guggenheim holdings there.

Secretary Ballinger's confidential correspondence with Thomson had reached the committee during recess, and Kerby read all of the letters to the committee. Among them were letters and telegrams exchanged last May regarding the trip to Alaska. Ballinger wrote Thomson that Mr. Perkins's associates desired to make some investigation in Alaska with a view to establishing a railway in connection with the development of mineral lands, and that Perkins had asked him to recommend an expert engineer to accompany him. Ballinger wrote that he had recommended Thomson. In the same letters Ballinger made reference to the reclamation service, and from them Kerby said he drew the inference that Ballinger intended to supplant Director Newell with Mr. Thomson.

Kerby remarked that he did not consider Thomson a fit man to head the Reclamation Service "after he had been to Alaska in the interests of the Morgan-Guggenheim Syndicate." It developed that [illegible] going [illegible] concerning the circumstances surrounding the writing of the Lawler letter and his decision to make the facts public. He had reached the decision to do so acting upon his own judgment, without coercion from any one and without hope of reward or compensation, he said, although he admitted that the newspaper association to which he gave his statement had promised "to take care of him" in the event that he lost his position, as he anticipated he would.

Kerby said he met Mr. Garfield at the home of Gifford Pinchot between the 10th and 15th of February about 10:30 o'clock at night, and had told him about the preparation of the Lawler memorandum. He said that Mr. Brandeis also was present, and that he related the matter to him in detail. He said Garfield appeared surprised to see him.

After Kerby had told Garfield his story the latter told him he did not want him to endanger his position and would not have him called as a witness unless it was necessary. He was actuated, he said, only by a sense of public duty, a duty which he considered higher than his duty to Secretary Ballinger. This he made plain in answer to the questions of Senator Root upon the ethics of his action. He had decided to make public his statement only after he had witnessed the repeated failure of the Interior Department to transmit the information concerning the letter to the committee as it had been asked to do, he said. He was moved further to take the course he did when he read the testimony of Secretary Ballinger to the effect that he knew nothing personally of the writing of the Lawler letter and the further statement of Lawler in a letter to the committee that he did not have a copy of it.

While Lawler was probably technically correct, Kerby said, still he did know of the existence of the copies of the letter. He then went on to say that a copy of the letter had been placed in Secretary Ballinger's private file wth papers marked "Ballinger-Pinchot-Newell controversy." He gave the number of the file and the section where it had been placed. It had been kept there until taken out by Private Secretary Carr and placed in the latter's desk, where it was when the committee was calling for it, he said.

Kerby described the burning of the drafts of the Lawler letter which were prepared before the final draft was agreed to. He also told of the destruction of some thirty stenographic note books, but the one in which he had written the notes of the Lawler letter had escaped, and in order that an attempt might not be made to disprove his statement he had had these notes photographed for his own protection.

Lawler, when he took the stand, declared the reason why he had not made any mention of the letter he had written when it had been called for repeatedly was because he considered the matter confidential between himself and the President. He insisted he was not aware of the existence of a copy as he had supposed that the Attorney General had turned all of them over to the President's secretary, Mr. Carpenter. He emphatically denied that the publication of Kerby's statement had had anything to do with the production of the paper by the Attorney General. He insisted that it had been found a few hours before he knew of the Kerby statement.

He characterized as a deliberate falsehood Kerby's statement that any one had been concerned in the preparation of the letter except himself. After it was completed, however, he did call in Ballinger and Schwartz and asked them for suggestions concerning the accuracy of statements made, as he wanted to be absolutely correct. Kerby's statement that he [Kerby] had told Carr that he had discovered a copy of the Lawler letter in Lawler's presence was also a deliberate falsehood, he asserted.

Attorney Brandeis's attempt to have placed in the record the White House statement of last Saturday, denying that there was any foundation for the Kerby statement, caused a spirited discussion. Mr. Brandeis asked Kerby if he had seen the statement. Senator Root strenuously objected to the question.

"We are not here to investigate the President," he said, hotly, "but only the Forestry Bureau and the Interior Department. This whole line of inquiry is an attack upon the President and counsel; it has no relation to this investigation."

Mr. Root said he knew of twenty instances where charges against Cabinet officers had been summed up by the Government's lawyers in exactly the same way as Mr. Lawler had done. He said it was Lawler's duty to prepare an opinion on the case for the President as he did. Glaring angrily at Mr. Brandeis, Senator Root exclaimed:

"This whole line of inquiry is an abuse of the privilege accorded counsel before the committee to make a covert attack upon the President."

When Democratic members of the committee hastened to the defense of Mr. Brandeis, Senator Root said he had merely expressed his own opinion and did not attempt to speak for the committee.

PINCHOT VISITS IRELAND.

Thinks the Country Will Largely Benefit from Reforestation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 17.—A Dublin dispatch to The London Times says that Gifford Pinchot, former Chief Forester of the United States, is now staying with Sir Horace Plunkett at Kilteragh, near Dublin.

He has come to Europe, says the dispatch, in order to confer with Mr. Roosevelt on the situation which has arisen since the ex-President left the United States. For some days past Mr. Pinchot has been enjoying a much-needed holiday, and has visited many parts of Ireland, where, as I learned from him in the course of an agreeable conversation, he has found much to interest him in the light of his special work at home.

He believes that both in Ireland and in the United States the twin problems of conservation of natural resources and reorganization of country life are on the road to settlement and that for both countries the future is full of hope. He paid a warm tribute to the value of the advice and assistance which in these matters Mr. Roosevelt received from Sir Horace Plunkett. Sir Horace's co-operative ideas were heartily indorsed by the pioneers of the conservation movement in America, and Mr. Pinchot has been much impressed by the rapid progress of co-operation in Ireland.

In conclusion Mr. Pinchot said that as a professional forester he was convinced that reforestation would play a great part in the future development of Ireland. The world was now threatened with a shortage of timber, and he had seen in this country large quantities of land which seemed likely to contribute far more to the public wealth under forests than in the present condition.

INSURGENTS FIRM IN AID OF CUMMINS

REFUSE REGULARS' OFFER

Angry at Being Left Out of White House Conference, They Reject Compromise—Vote Due To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—After a day of wrangling, the two Republican factions in the Senate are as far apart as ever on a compromise as to the powers that shall be left to the Attorney General in defending rulings of the Inter-State Commerce Commission before the Commerce Court.

The insurgents are enthusiastically pushing the Cummins amendment on this section, which deprives the Attorney General of all power and makes the Inter-State Commerce Commission the defendant before the court in all cases attacking the commission's rulings. The regulars fear the amendment will pass, and a conference this afternoon declared all compromise on the Railroad bill impossible.

This amendment has a strong backing in the Senate, and last night Mr. Aldrich and Chairman Elkins of the Inter-State Commerce Commission decided something must be done to mollify the near-insurgents, who seemed likely to line up with the intransigeants. It was decided to propose the terms of the section already passed by the House as a compromise, as that phrasing, while leaving the real direction of the case in the hands of the Attorney General, also admits the commission and the complaining shipper to legal representation before the court.

Mr. Cummins rejected this proposal absolutely, and to-night the original Cummins amendment is left pending, with prospects of a vote on it to-morrow. Though Mr. Aldrich and Mr. Elkins decided to concede the House provision as early as last night, their decision only meant that they realized that votes were slipping away from them. Indeed, Mr. Cummins openly charged on the floor to-day that no definite decision to that effect had been reached and that the final compromise was proposed to-day only when it was seen that the Cummins amendment would prevail.

This Mr. Elkins warmly denied, explaining the fact that he was not proposing the actual House language as a substitute by saying that the insurgents had so continually occupied the floor that he had had no opportunity to present his plan.

Before Mr. Elkins actually proposed the House wording to the section, Mr. Smith of Michigan, after extended conferences with the leaders, was selected to introduce a further compromise. This amendment consisted simply of the House language, with the insertion of a provision that due notice of pending cases should be given the commission and the complaining shipper by the Attorney General. Mr. Smith denied that he had talked with Mr. Aldrich or Mr. Elkins before presenting his rejected compromise.

Mr. Dixon, who led the forces that compelled the acceptance of an amendment on the subject of long and short hauls, acted as the intermediary between the conservatives and progressives to-day. For a time he met with encouragement, but as the negotiations proceeded it was reported that the several "insurgents" who had not been invited to the White House Saturday night had "heard that reflections upon their course had been made at that gathering even by the President himself."

The insurgents, remarking that there was an evident purpose to humiliate them, expressed indignation, and some practically refused to treat at all with the Administration forces. It became known that Mr. Borah, who did attend the White House conference, had refused to use his efforts to effect a compromise. He based his refusal on the ground that he would not recognize the insurgents as being hostile, and that they should be treated as fellow-Republicans and be invited to party conferences.

The provision for the payment to the members of the proposed Court of Commerce of $3,000 more than the Circuit Court Judges was stricken out.

Bernstorff Becomes Union Chancellor.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Since Monday night the storm centre has moved with increasing intensity from Central Iowa to Northern Michigan, and the rain area for the twenty-four hours covers the central valleys, the Southern States, and a portion of the lake region.

In the New England and Middle Atlantic States and over the western half of the country the weather was fair.

It is much warmer in the Northwest, but freezing temperatures occurred Tuesday morning in North Dakota, Wyoming, and Nebraska.

The storm over Northern Michigan will reach the Atlantic Coast during Wednesday night.

In the South the weather will clear Wednesday, and over the western half of the country it will continue fair. For Thursday generally fair weather is indicated in all districts, except Northern New England.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate to brisk southwest; Middle Atlantic Coast, brisk south to southwest; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate east to south.

Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have moderate to brisk southwest winds, with increasing cloudiness, to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Showers Wednesday; cooler in northwest portion. Thursday, cooler in east portion; brisk south to southwest winds.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Showers Wednesday; brisk south to southwest winds. Thursday, fair.

New England—Increasing cloudiness Wednesday, followed by showers in west portion and at night in east portion. Thursday, cooler and fair, except showers in Eastern Maine; brisk south to southwest winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	54	51	4 P. M.	60	67
6 A. M.	54	52	6 P. M.	57	64
9 A. M.	58	61	9 P. M.	56	58
12 M.	62	71	12 P. M.	56	55

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 60; for the corresponding date last year it was 59; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 60.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 56; at 8 P. M. it was 59. Maximum temperature, 70 degrees at 1 P. M.; minimum, 50 degrees at 4 A. M. Humidity, 60 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 42 per cent. at 8 P. M.

GERMANY'S WAY AND OURS.

In the category of what Lord Salisbury called the "living nations" Persia would hardly be included. Yet the interests of nations of undoubted force and vitality in the affairs of Persia may before long give to that country a place of some prominence in the chronicles of the time. Germany has found reason to protest against some of the conditions growing out of the convention between Russia and Great Britain relating to their respective rights in the promotion of railroad construction and other business undertakings in Persia, and the situation there is in some respects not unlike that in Manchuria, where our recent endeavor to secure a modification of Japanese and Russian influence and control has completely failed.

By the terms of the Russo-British convention of Aug. 18, 1907, a delimitation of Russian and British interests in Persia was effected. Within certain portions of the domain of the Shah Great Britain engaged "not to seek for herself, and not to support in favor of British subjects or in favor of the subjects of third Powers, any concessions of a political or a commercial nature," such as concessions for railways, banks, telegraphs, roads, transportation, insurance, and so on. Reciprocally Russia engaged not to seek such concessions or privileges within that part of Persia reserved for British commercial exploitation. A recent Anglo-Russian note to the Government of the Shah demands that Persia shall not grant railroad concessions of a strategic nature to any third Power, nor negotiate loans with any third Power, the basis of the demand being the allegation that such loans would impair the security of prior English and Russian loans. The Convention of 1907 contained provisions with regard to the revenues of the Persian customs and their application to the service of certain loans. The principle laid down in the note would seem to exclude all Powers save Russia and Great Britain from the privilege of seeking commercial concessions in Persia. Hence the protest of Germany which has aroused some apprehension in St. Petersburg, the newspapers there comparing the situation to the trouble over Morocco, which was settled by the Algeciras Conference.

What further action Germany will take is a matter of much interest. It is peculiarly of interest to us, since Secretary Knox's proposals in respect to the Manchurian railways had a purpose similar to that which Germany now seeks to accomplish in Persia. In both cases the principle of the "open door" was involved, though in the Persian instance that principle would appear to embrace not merely trade privileges, but the broader rights of obtaining concessions for industrial enterprises. Secretary Knox asked Russia and Japan to consent to an arrangement by which the railways controlled by them in the Chinese Province of Manchuria would be neutralized by international purchase. As The Times has shown upon various occasions, the control of the South Manchurian Railway by Japan and of the eastern extension of the Siberian line by Russia gives us some grounds for concern about our commercial interests in Manchuria, and leaves the future of that province very much in doubt. The Hay note, which was assented to by all the great Powers, including Japan and Russia, guaranteed the territorial integrity of the Chinese Empire. In the Portsmouth treaty and in all the treaties and agreements growing out of the Russo-Japanese war, the principle of that note and the principle of the "open door" have been safeguarded. To the support of its principles all the nations concerned stand pledged. Secretary Knox's proposals were made in the hope of obtaining the fullest assurance that those principles would be respected.

To our very great regret, Mr. Knox's proposal for the neutralization of Manchurian railways was rejected. Inevitably that rejection has given us reason to fear that the interests and intentions of Russia and Japan in Manchuria are in some way not altogether compatible with the policy expressed in the Hay note, or with our trade interests. Our Secretary of State was successful, at least, in dis[illegible] post would be established and maintained.

Strangely enough, the disclosure of the Russian and Japanese position is all that we have got out of it. It was to be expected that after the Secretary's proposals had been rejected, some further representations would be made. It is believed in Washington that Secretary Knox had further representations in view, certain steps which would be a logical continuation of the policy that prompted the proposals. According to the gossip in diplomatic circles in Washington the responsibility for this inaction is not chargeable to the Secretary of State. The policy upon which he had entered was, of course, the policy of the Government itself, a diplomatic policy for safeguarding commercial interests, but one higher in authority than the Secretary seems to have been indisposed to take the further steps necessary to make that policy effective. The consequence is that we have practically abandoned our interests in Manchuria to the tender mercies of Japan and Russia. We have abandoned the principle of the Hay note, we have left China to her fate. So far as our commercial interests in Manchuria are concerned, and under that protection and fair opportunity which we had a right to expect they might have been indefinitely developed, we have "scuttled." As the matter now stands, we have gone very far toward making ourselves a nonentity in the Far East. For all that we shall have to say about it, Japan and Russia will have a free hand, and with a blindness to her own interests that is amazing, England puts herself in a position not only of assenting to all these arrangements, but of actually co-operating in them. By complacently bowing to Japan's veto of the construction of the railway line from Chin-Chow to Aigun, England deprives a British firm of a great business opportunity, which is something new in the foreign policy of that Power.

All this has a bearing upon Germany's protest in respect to Persian concessions, since there are very good reasons for believing that the interests of Germany and the United States in the Far East are so nearly identical that diplomatic action in support of a common policy might readily have been had. It would have been the most natural thing in the world to arrange for a union of effort and influence. It is now too late for that, since our own policy, what there was of it, has been abandoned. It will be interesting to observe the further developments in the Persian situation. Will Germany, following our not very illustrious example, content herself with a protest and a rebuff, and then say nothing more about it?

"MEDICAL FREEDOM."

Makers of patent medicines, adulterators of drugs, and practitioners of the cults of mental and osteopathic healing are up in arms. They have persuaded a few well-intentioned but misled individuals to join them, and have formed the "National League for Medical Freedom" to oppose the efforts of practically all the reputable physicians in the country to consolidate the agencies of public health at Washington into one efficient department or bureau.

These efforts have been waxing stronger. The men of the American Medical Association and of the Committee of One Hundred on National Health, sanctioned by the Association for the Advancement of Science and headed by Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale, have won the approval of the entire press of the United States in urging the passage of their bill. In the various departments and bureaus of the Federal Government are lodged powers that cannot be wielded effectively until they shall be co-ordinated under one head. Once united, they can be used in a great propaganda for educating the people against the habit of self-dosage and a resort to quack medicines for their ailments. By a campaign of prevention the bureau would break the prevalence of epidemics and infections between the States. It would work for the passage of laws that would guard the channels of inter-State commerce against the admission of adulterated drugs, and for the establishment of standards of purity and strength that would be copied by the States and cities of the Nation.

The self-styled "League for Medical Freedom" quotes Prof. Fisher accusingly as having said that the Government might soon be appropriating millions yearly for the conduct of this bureau. If it should appropriate a million for every hundred thousand it now appropriates for the protection of the health of hogs and cattle in the United States, Prof. Fisher's prophecy would be fulfilled, and no one would have cause for complaint but these friends of "freedom." Their cry is an old one and well understood.

> License they mean, when liberty they cry.

PUBLIC OR PRIVATE CONSTRUCTION?

At the Public Service Commission's hearing on the form of contract for public construction of the new subways one of the speakers expressed a general feeling when he supported public rather than private construction, because, he said, "private capital will seek only to serve itself and earn dividends." The present Subway is an example of this. The city will not own it free and clear until private operation has earned the cost, and as much more [illegible] within the contract pe[illegible] within that time is the corporation's share, and it is displaying the eagerness in this respect which is characteristic of private corporations.

The Subway's eagerness is so great that although it was planned for 400,000 passengers daily, it is carrying 800,000. In 1909 it carried 35,777,769 more passengers than in 1908, and it is making better progress every day toward earning something for itself above the amortization costs which it must earn at its own risk, whatever competition or lessening of traffic may result from the construction which is promoted by the Public Service Commission. So great is the eagerness of this private corporation to earn dividends that it is carrying passengers now at the rate of about 300,000,000 annually, and it would earn more by carrying more millions but for the success with which its efforts are thwarted by officials acting in the public interest.

There cannot be the slightest doubt about the contrast which public construction affords in this respect. Under public construction there is no eagerness to pay dividends, or to carry passengers. Nobody need be particularly concerned whether passengers are carried or not. If there is any deficit it is merely charged up to the taxpayers. They always kick anyway, and nobody pays any particular attention to them. Under public construction the main thing is to spend money. It makes comparatively little difference what is done after the money is spent. An excellent example is afforded by the bridges in which the city has an investment roughly equal to what it is proposed to spend in these subways. Not a car wheel has turned on one bridge opened months ago. On the Queensboro Bridge the car facilities are not one-fourth availed of. On the Williamsburg Bridge a half more passengers could be carried. None of these bridges is operated on the "through" system, which was begun by the private operators of the Subway from the first moment that its tunnel to Brooklyn was available.

This comparison illustrates the difference between public and private construction and operation. Every passenger over a bridge is carried at a loss, and so it is likely to be in the case of public subways. The eagerness of the private operators for dividends is such that as many passengers as possible are carried, and at as great a profit as the contract allows. A public subway is the best possible check on this greed, and that is the strongest reason for public construction and operation. If the object were to get as many passengers as possible carried for a nickel, over the one best route, with least necessity for transfers, and with transfer privileges if necessary, the reasonable way would be to enlarge upon the method which has given results so far surpassing expectation.

It is further argued that public construction is superior to private because the city will "own" the routes thus built so much sooner than under private construction. Here again the analogy of the bridges presents itself. They are examples of public ownership as well as public construction. The city owns the title, but the owners of the bonds own the bridges in effect. The city will not have a clear title until the bonds are paid. There is an amortization provision, but the amortization is out of taxes, not out of earnings or profits. The city would never own the bridges if they had to pay for themselves, when they do not even earn their keep. It is true that the city will not hold the title to the present subways for some seventy-five years from their opening, but then the city will own them without the taxpayers having paid a cent for them. In the interval the city will have enjoyed every possible good effect of ownership. More passengers will ride through the subways than if they were the property of the city, and the effect in increasing taxable values will be related to the efficiency of management rather than to the ownership of the title.

If efficiency in transportation of passengers is the test, private construction and operation will give best results. If it is desired to subordinate the carriage of passengers to teaching capital a lesson and to check the greed to earn dividends by the operation of a railway in the most efficient manner, then the best way is to keep going in the direction in which we have been headed since the Subway was opened. Not another mile has been built since it was resolved to prevent another such outrage as the contract which has resulted in the carriage of passengers on the scale indicated without asking the city's Treasury for a cent. The same method would enable the extension of this system with more such results. Public construction would absorb $100,000,000, for which the city could easily find other uses if it were not necessary to push the experiment with public construction to the bitter end.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

There are now in the hands of the Rules Committee of the Assembly and the Judiciary Committee of the Senate bills of very great importance to the honest voters not only of this city and State, but of the whole country. They embody amendments to the election law for the purpose of preventing fraudulent voting, and were introduced by Assemblyman Ward and Senator Agnew in their respective Houses.

These amendments are simple. They require an applicant for registration, who has not been registered before, in addition to the information now demanded, to state his occupation, his business address, or, if unemployed, the [illegible] of his last employment. If a person offering to vote is challenged, he is required to give the name of the person with whom he resides, the length of his residence in the city, county, or State, and the place from which he last voted. This is to check the repeater, who can seldom recall accurately the false details to which he testified on registration. Under the present law he has only to swear that he is entitled to vote. Another amendment requires that one of the Inspectors, chosen by lot on election day, shall personally certify that a person challenged is the person, in his opinion, who registered under the name given. Still another amendment reduces the number of votes allowed in an election district and affords time for more careful examination of suspicious cases.

It is, of course, impracticable to give any accurate figures as to the amount of fraudulent voting still done in this city. It was undoubtedly greatly reduced by the changes in the law made in 1907. But the men who secured those amendments strongly urge those we have described. They were presented to the last Legislature and were defeated, according to Mr. Herbert Parsons, in compliance with a bargain between the Republican machine in Washington and the Tammany machine in this city. They should have passed long ago in the Legislature of this year. Who is blocking them? Undoubtedly they would very greatly strengthen the efforts to secure an honest vote. On that account they are disagreeable to those who profit by a dishonest vote, and to those who are open to a Tammany-Republican coalition such as we have just alluded to. It may be that a like coalition will defeat them this year. Nothing else can.

Apropos of Mr. Taft's efforts to bring the insurgents of the Middle West into line on the tariff and more recently on the railroad bill, a veteran observer of affairs in Washington writes us: "The President's rather amateurish attempts at the rôle of head of party machine reminds me of a Western Senator who some years ago had much trouble with a foolish and extravagant son. 'What is the matter with him?' inquired a fellow-Senator, 'does he play poker?' 'No,' ruefully replied the father, 'he doesn't, but, confound him, he thinks he does.'"

It would be interesting to know the psychologic effect of the action of the authorities in London in trying to restrict the wearing of large hats and large and numerous hatpins by the women who may throng to watch the funeral cortège of the King. The precaution is amply justified, as experience in crowds of well-dressed women in our own city has shown. But will the grief of the bonnet wearers for their late sovereign be offset by their annoyance at the interference with their freedom of personal adornment, and will they defy civic authority in the name of the rule of Fashion, even more imperious? And is it not a queer matter to have arisen in connection with an occasion so solemn?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Betrayal Hard to Justify.

Kerby, the stenographer who made public the facts in regard to the preparation of President Taft's now too famous letter vindicating Secretary Ballinger, will be disappointed, we think, in his expectation that his course in the matter will be generally commended as the unselfish performance of a patriotic duty. What his exact motives were can be known, of course, only to himself. There is a possibility that they were high and pure, but it is obvious that, whatever their quality, they led him into the betrayal of men who trusted him, and that he ignored an obligation which, by other members of his profession, is considered of vital—of very nearly supreme—importance.

The revelation of business, official or personal secrets by secretaries and stenographers is so rare as to be almost unheard of, for such employés properly hold it to be right as well as judicious to deserve as well as to win and profit by the perfect confidence of their employers. There is a point, indeed, or at least a point is conceivable, where a stenographer's larger duty as a citizen overbalances his identification with the private interest of the man he serves, but only in extreme cases—those plainly involving life or the public safety, for instance—would he be fully justified in the actual disclosure of information obtained while acting in a confidential capacity. In case less serious but more numerous, a trusted secretary who finds himself assisting in transactions which do not command his conscientious approval has the best of rights to resign his position, but he should hesitate long before he adds betrayal to resignation—and then, in all probability, he shouldn't do it.

The secretary is under something, and not a little, of the compulsion to inviolable secrecy that rests upon the priest and the doctor. All secretaries feel this to a greater or less extent, and there is less danger to society when they feel it too much than when they feel it too little. Doubts as to the propriety of Kerby's course will be the more numerous because he seems to have sacrificed nothing to conscience—seems to have been sure that those who wanted the information he possessed would take care that he suffered no pecuniary loss as the result of giving it. This much weakens such little claim as he had for claiming that he acted from an imperative desire to serve the public.

Needless Death of a Child.

Every last excuse for regarding Christian Science with patience or toleration is lacking in the case of the Croonborg child, and it deserves the attentive consideration of everybody who is ever brought into relations with, or even into the neighborhood of, the followers of Mrs. Eddy.

The boy, only 12 years old, and therefore without power or ability to protect himself or to select the kind of medical treatment, if any, that he needed, was attacked by diphtheria. Just what the disease was became manifest, as it always does, at the beginning of his illness, and it would have been instantly recognized from the classical symptoms by any real doctor. Any real doctor, too, would have [illegible] the proper remedy to administer—the remedy which, if given in time, makes prompt recovery a practical certainty.

But no real doctor was called in. Instead, a Christian Science "healer" was summoned, and for three days she industriously denied that anything was the matter with the boy. By that time even she could see that something very serious was the matter with him, suspected the nature of the malady, and gave up the case. Then the parents turned to the science which does not have to be spelled with a capital letter or put within quotation marks, and a doctor came. He did what he could, but it was too late for his treatment to be efficacious, and the boy died.

That part of the story is bad enough to need no characterization or comment, but there is more to it. During the days of fatal delay another child in the same family was constantly exposed to infection, and so was everybody else living in and near the big apartment house of which the Croonborgs are tenants. That, from the public point of view, is the most important feature of the case, and it emphasizes the indubitable fact that the dangers of Christian Science extend far beyond the narrow circle of believers in it.

The case is one that would seem to warrant, as it certainly demands, prompt and vigorous official action. But the doctor who could only watch the boy die certified that the death was from natural causes, and the Coroner says that therefore he is helpless in the matter. If that is so—which we much question—the law is a most inefficient engine for the protection of the public, and it would seem as though the doctor might have found an excuse as well as a reason for refusing to give a death certificate in a case that was so nearly one of criminal malpractice. It is unnecessary to dwell upon the responsibility of the parents, their penalty being already as much as they can bear.

Selling by the Package.

In the last annual report by the State Superintendent of Weights and Measures much is said—and all condemnatory—about the practice of selling food in quantities vaguely instead of specifically defined. People buy under the impression that they are getting for a certain price a certain amount in either weight or measure, and when, as only too infrequently happens, they find out that what they supposed was a pound or a quart is something different and less, their complaints are answered with the information that they have really been buying "by the package."

This is the defense made by the big firm which is now charged with selling butter under weight. The reply may be technically adequate, but if so it ought to fix attention again on the weakness which, when the Pure Food campaign was on, led the advocates of reform to abandon their demand for the marking of every package with the exact amount contained in it.

Selling by "sizes" and "numbers," as the State Superintendent pointed out, opens the way for secret advances in price and to what amounts to habitual deception of the public. What the law refuses to do, however, people can do for themselves if they will. They need only show a sufficiently strong preference for the wares of manufacturers and dealers who sell as they buy—in fixed quantities, measured by recognized standards. Such a preference would soon be heeded; it would have to be.

NEW POLYCLINIC HOSPITAL.

Enthusiastic Contributor Expresses His Views of the Doctors' Philanthropy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is highly gratifying to the friends of the New York Polyclinic School and Hospital that The Times of the 15th inst. published an almost exhaustive article on the scope and aims of the institution, and the enlarged province of work to be accomplished through additional facilities to be acquired, while further it exhibits approval by an editorial appeal for funds to the extent of about $200,000, so that the aggregate when this sum is added to that subscribed shall reach $650,000.

That 175 physicians give not only their services free in treatment, but also subscribe thus far $54,000 toward the new building fund, furnishes attestation of the high estimate placed on the benevolence by those eminently qualified to judge its value, and presents them also as lovers of their art and of their fellows. All professional men and many laymen are aware of the evils of promiscuous bestowals of charity without suitable organization and stimulated by sympathetic but unskilled dispensers of funds. So high an authority as Robert W. De Forest of the United Charities, and counsel for the Sage Foundation, declares that charitable dispensation is a science.

The scope of the Polyclinic School and Hospital, as its caption implies, is broad in conception and ramification, and its labors are directed by men practiced in the healing science and also in differentiation between the needy and afflicted and those not in indigent circumstances who can afford to pay for treatment, yet are willing to receive such as objects of charity.

The current annual contributions are needed for the maintenance of service, and such cost must be increased by an enlarged field of work which will comprehend many features as outlined by the article in The Times and a thirty-six-page illustrated pamphlet recently issued, and which I have obtained from the President of the Faculty, Dr. John A. Wyeth, at 214 to 220 East Thirty-fourth Street. The Polyclinic desires to be free from debt at the start, recognizing that the interest charge on $200,000 is a relatively large sum to meet annually, and that the aggregate payment of such for several years will consume funds that can be used in the direct work of the institution. Emphasis must also be given to the almost inestimable value of the postgraduate course of lectures and demonstrations by eminent specialists, not only to metropolitan practicing physicians but those out of town, who have attended them in numbers to the extent of over 20,000 since their introduction, and during their courses there have been treated free annually from 25,000 to 30,000 cases of disease and injuries. Observation of these cases has contributed much to assist them in keeping apace with improved and modern practice and to the benefit of their patients.

For the reasons given it is hoped to win new friends for the support of a hospital well calculated in all designed offices.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may interest your readers to learn that the "Return from Elba" procession is to culminate on our shores on June 18—the anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo. The next date to be looked up is that of "Yours for St. Helena." V. DE G.

CRITICISES UTILITIES BOARD.

Lawyer Guthrie Stirs Up the Third Avenue Reorganization Meeting.

William D. Guthrie, the lawyer who has been associated with John M. Bowers in presenting to the Public Service Commission the reorganization plan of the Third Avenue Railroad Bondholders' Committee, assumed charge of the proceedings on behalf of the bondholders yesterday on account of the continued illness of Mr. Bowers. He signalized his advent into the case by stirring up the first liveliness in any of the weary weeks since the first few hearings were held on the reorganization plan.

Mr. Guthrie protested against the attitude of the commission in several particulars. The most notable of these lay in the fact, according to Mr. Guthrie, that the accountants of the commission had prepared some figures at variance with the figures of the Bondholders' Committee. The commission, so the lawyer charged, had declined to turn these figures over to counsel for the bondholders prior to introducing them in evidence, and hence there was a prospect that the newspapers would get them and print sensational stories about them before the bondholders' counsel had a chance to explain them all away.

Commissioner Maltbie said the figures would be introduced in evidence in due time and would not be given to the newspapers beforehand. The Commissioner would not say to what the figures related, but it was gathered that they must have something to do with earnings. Several protestants against the reorganization plan have contended that the earnings, as obtained by the bondholders from Receiver Whitridge, were made to appear unduly large by the exclusion of items that should be charged to operating expenses and other similar falacies of bookkeeping.

Mr. Guthrie also protested against the commission's consultation with one of the commission's lawyers, and he told the commission that it had allowed its record to be incumbered with much unimportant matter, which made it unnecessarily expensive for the bondholders to buy copies for their own use. After passing further criticism because the commission had allowed persons to appear whose testimony he considered incompetent and frivolous, Mr. Guthrie proceeded to cross-examine the commission's statistician and its transportation engineer.

ATLANTIC AVENUE TRACKS.

Mr. Peters Explains That Laying of Them Was Authorized.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Francis Gottsberger's letter of May 9 in regard to the operation of the Long Island Railroad on Atlantic Avenue relates to ancient history. What took place fifty years ago is not now material. The letter, moreover, fails to state the facts correctly.

The original right of way of the Long Island Railroad Company from Flatbush Avenue to Jamaica was bought and paid for by the Brooklyn & Jamaica Railroad. The part lying between Bedford Avenue and the old "city line" did not follow the present lines of Atlantic Avenue, but ran through the middle of the blocks north of it. When this portion of Atlantic Avenue was opened the "Long Island" conveyed its right of way in the blocks to the city, which sold it to the abutting owners, and the price went to pay the opening expenses. This was done on condition that the railroad should have the perpetual and exclusive right to use the strip in the centre of Atlantic Avenue.

In 1859 the property holders on Atlantic Avenue made the fatal mistake of having steam removed from it. They had an act passed which provided for raising $150,000 by assessment, which was to be paid to the Long Island to enable it to construct a terminal at Hunter's Point and was used for that purpose. After this was done the Long Island canceled its lease to the Brooklyn & Jamaica Railroad and transferred its travel to Hunter's Point. Thereafter the Brooklyn & Jamaica Railroad ran cars from Jamaica to Brooklyn by horse power.

Instead of the removal of steam being a benefit to Atlantic Avenue, which was then the principal business street in Brooklyn, it was disastrous to it. It was also a great injury to Brooklyn to be deprived of steam communication with the rest of Long Island. In 1876, seventeen years afterward, the public clamor became such that the Common Council passed a resolution urging the passage of a law to allow the use of steam on Atlantic Avenue east of Flatbush Avenue, which resulted in the passage of an act to that effect on April 28, 1876—the prohibition of steam is still continuing as to the part of Atlantic Avenue lying west of Flatbush Avenue. The Long Island had nothing to do with this transaction, as it was not until June 1, 1877, that the lease to it was renewed and it commenced to run to Flatbush Avenue. It was, however, too late to restore prosperity to Atlantic Avenue; the business formerly carried on there had gone to Fulton Street, and it never returned.

It is true that the City of New York contributed $1,250,000 toward the expense of sinking and elevating the tracks on Atlantic Avenue, but it is also true that the railroad itself paid $8,500,000, or six times as much toward such improvement and the changes it involved.

Mr. Gottsberger neglects to mention what he cannot but know, that this improvement was carried out according to a plan which was adopted by the commission for the improvement of Atlantic Avenue after consultation with the city officials, the public, and the railroad, and that this plan expressly provided for a surface railroad on Atlantic Avenue to be operated by the Long Island. It was only in pursuance of this express understanding that the Long Island accepted the law, changed its grade, and spent $250,000 in building the surface tracks on Atlantic Avenue.

The report of this commission to the Mayor states these facts, and even gives pictures of the proposed surface railroad. Yet in spite of this Mr. Gottsberger and a few gentlemen who agree with him now claim that the laying of these tracks by the Long Island was unauthorized, and demand that they be torn up, which would make a loss to the Long Island of over $200,000.

If this was done by a railroad instead of by the city, what kind of language would the newspapers use in speaking of it as a breach of good faith? It will thus be seen that Mr. Gottsberger is not correct in speaking "of the people who paid for the laying out of Atlantic Avenue being entitled to its possession."

It is the railroad which paid for the laying out of Atlantic Avenue and not "the people." The only money that was ever contributed by anybody but the railroad was paid for the removal of steam from Atlantic Avenue; the restoration of steam was something which was demanded by the city and the people of Brooklyn; and that even if this was not the case the Long Island Railroad Company had nothing whatever to do with the matter.

The great majority of the owners of the property abutting on Atlantic Avenue, and all those living near it, want a surface railroad operated over these tracks by the Long Island. Mr. Gottsberger represents himself—he does not represent them.

CONRIED ESTATE WORTH $303,428

Impresario Had Extensive Interests Outside His Theatrical Affairs.

ESTATE TO WIDOW AND SON

Appraisal for the Tax Office Shows He Held Stock in Many Companies but Owed Large Sums.

Heinrich Conried, the impresario, left a large estate, according to an appraisal filed yesterday in the transfer tax office. The report reveals that Mr. Conried settled his seventy-five-thousand-dollar suit against the Metropolitan Opera Company for $58,000 and that he had extensive business interests outside of his theatrical and operatic affairs.

He died intestate on April 27, 1909, in the Austrian Tyrol. His estate passes to his widow, Augusta Conried, and Richard G. Conried, the impresario's son. His net real and personal estates amount to $303,428. At the time of his death he held $455,031 in securities alone, but the total was reduced by large claims against the estate.

The only real estate held by Mr. Conried was the property at 422 East Twentieth Street, valued at $14,375, on which there was a six-thousand-dollar mortgage and on which Mrs. Conried's dower amounts to $1,725. Mrs. Conried is now living at 65 West Seventy-first Street.

The extent of Mr. Conried's business interests is shown by the fact that at his death he held stock of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railroad valued at $53,750; Union Pacific common valued at $87,200, and United States Realty and Improvement Company stock valued at $45,000.

Mr. Conried also was interested heavily in the Guggenheim Exploration Company, holding 825 of its shares, appraised at $144,375. Outstanding were two ten-thousand-dollar promissory notes to Murry Guggenheim and Daniel Guggenheim at the time of his death.

The appraisal also brought out the fact that the late impresario was the leading spirit of the Ocean Comfort Company, of which stock he held 2,000 shares. George Bischel, Secretary and Treasurer of the company, testified before the appraiser that the franchises to rent steamer chairs on ocean steamships had been secured by Mr. Conried's influence, and that after his death the company was unable to secure new franchises or to continue its old ones. The 2,000 shares are now worthless, Mr. Bischel said, though during Mr. Conried's lifetime dividends were paid on them.

Mr. Conried's principal bank deposits were in foreign banks. He had but $1.08 in his personal account in the Corn Exchange Bank and $31.22 in the Irving Place Theatre account in the same bank. A balance of $91 in the Greenwich Bank was his only other American bank account. He had, however, $49,251 in the Deutsche Bank at Berlin and $2,170 in the Credit Anstalt, Vienna.

The library, costumes, and scenery at the Irving Place Theatre, belonging to Mr. Conried, were appraised at $4,000. Against this there is a judgment for $1,200 obtained in Germany by Felix Bloch Erben, a playwright, on representations that Mr. Conried had broken an agreement to produce two of his plays at the Irving Place Theatre. Mr. Conried gave up the management of the Irving Place Theatre on May 1, 1909.

The late impresario carried two ten-thousand-dollar insurance policies on his life and owned two automobiles, which Mrs. Conried told the appraiser the family and tried vainly to sell. She said more than $8,000 was paid for one car. Mr. Conried owed a bill for $1,559.72 for repairs to the two cars, on which the appraisers fixed a joint value of $1,900.

Otto H. Kahn, the appraisal shows, paid to the Conried estate $25,375 to settle Mr. Conried's claim against him for breach of an agreement to carry a stock account for him with Herzfeld & Stern. Sutro Brothers have a claim of $158,2[illegible] for amounts due on stocks and bonds held by Mr. Conried at the time of his death. Other debts, amounting to $44,071.46, were approved by the appraisers.

To bury the dead impresario on this side of the Atlantic cost $10,364.11, Mrs. Conried told the appraisers, $570 being paid to the European undertaker and $520 for transporting the body to America.

Mrs. Conried paid $1,450 for a burial plot and $7,000 on a mausoleum. The Rev. Edward Kartchmaroff, the rabbi who officiated at the American funeral, was paid $25, and $21 was paid to the musicians at the funeral, Mrs. Conried said.

W. B. CUTTING, JR.'S, WILL.

The will of William Bayard Cutting, Jr., who died on March 10 at Assouan, Egypt, leaves $25,000 to Harvard University. The purposes to which this money shall be applied are left to the discretion of Edward Huidekoper Wells of Boston, or in the event of his death to Theodore Lyman of Brookline.

Mr. Cutting left $5,000 each to his friends T. J. Gordon Gardiner of the Villa Alberti, Florence, Italy, and the Graf Erwein Wurmbacher Stuppach of Brixen, South Tyrol, Austria. He appointed Robert Bayard Cutting trustee of a trust fund under his will, and provided that in case he refused to serve the United States Trust Company fill the vacancy. He named his father, W. Bayard Cutting, and his uncle, J. Archibald Murray, as executors. The will was dated May 14, 1909.

Mrs. Sybil M. Cutting, widow of the testator, receives $25,000 and the books, furniture, and personal effects of her husband. A trust fund of $300,000 is created for the benefit of Mrs. Cutting and her daughter, Iris Cutting, and the power of testamentary disposition of the principal of the fund is vested in the survivor. Mrs. Cutting and Miss Cutting are also the residuary legatees.

C. S. HINE LEFT $361,147.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., May 17.—By the will of Charles S. Hine, who died in New York on April 7, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Henry W. Plant, 112 West 130th Street, the latter receives a bequest of about $90,000. The estate is all personal, chiefly represented by bonds of Western railroads, and amounts to $361,147. About $90,000 is placed in trust for Mr. Hines's daughter, Mrs. Almina Beers, who lives at the Fort Pitt Hotel, Pittsburg. Dora Hine, a daughter, receives about $22,000 and about $70,000 is to be in trust for Charles F. Hine of Haywood, Cal., a son. Mrs. Mary E. Hine, a daughter-in-law, receives $30,000 outright, and $60,000 in trust for the maintenance of her two sons.

Mr. Hine was 92 years old. He was successful as a manufacturer of tin cans in New York, as head of the firm of Hine & Co., who had a plant at 113 Bowery many years ago. He retired in 1865.

Emberson Estate Valued at $50,000.

Thomas Emberson, who died on Saturday in a Pennsylvania Railroad train on the way from Newark to Jersey City, left an estate of $50,000 in personal property, according to a petition filed with his will yesterday. Samuel Shaw Dickson, a nephew, of 820 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, is appointed executor of the will, and receives a bequest of $2,100. Maria Berkley of County Tyrone, Ireland, a sister, receives $43,526 under the will.

Joseph Parker Left $10,000 to Yale.

Bequests of $5,000 to the American Female Guardian Society and $10,000 to Yale figure in the will of Joseph Parker, filed yesterday. Mr. Parker died on May 9 at the Hotel Marie Antoinette. He left $15,000 to his cousin, James M. Townsend of this city, "to whom I feel very grateful for his kindness to me." The bequest to Yale is to establish a law school scholarship in memory of "my beloved [illegible] Eliza [illegible]

MISS BORLAND BRIDE OF CLARENCE PELL

Wedding at Church of the Incarnation Brings Out Many Society People.

MUSIC BY HARP AND VIOLIN

Special Programme Included Also Tenor Solo—Reception at Home of Bride's Parents Followed Ceremony.

The wedding of Miss Madeline Borland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Nelson Borland, and Clarence Pell took place yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Incarnation. Huge clusters of dogwood were fastened to the pillars of the church, and the chancel was decorated with palms and white flowers. Vases, also of white flowers, were placed on the altar. There was a special musical programme, with violin and harp, and a solo by the church tenor.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Grosvenor and the Rev. Dr. William Beach Olmsted of Pomfret, Conn.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. She wore a trained gown of white satin, the bodice being largely of point lace. A scarf of point lace and trails of orange blossoms trimmed the lower parts of the skirt. Her point lace veil was fastened by orange blossoms. A large corsage piece of diamonds was her only ornament.

The bridesmaids, who were the Misses Alice Borland, Priscilla Stanton, Leila Haven, and Helen Coster, wore trailing gowns of apricot-colored crêpe, with tunics of yellow chiffon, and trimmed with apricot-colored satin. They wore immense yellow straw hats, with apricot ostrich plumes falling over the back brim, and with yellow tulle and apricot-colored satin at the front and sides. Each carried sunrise roses and sarleyance ferns.

The best man was Mr. Pell's cousin, Griswold Lorillard, and his ushers were Charles Brown, Richmond Talbot, Arthur Jones, Orme Wilson, Jr., and Morton Newhall of Providence, and Charles Leonard of Boston.

Following the ceremony there was a small reception at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Borland, 116 East Thirty-seventh Street.

Among those invited to the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Bishop, Mrs. Henry Alexander, Miss Eleanor Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Boyer, Mr. and Mrs. I. CLARA MORRIS ILL AGAIN.

Noted Actress, Suffering Nervous Breakdown, Threatened with Blindness

Mrs. F. C. Harriott (Clara Morris, the actress,) is again on the verge of a nervous breakdown at her home in Yonkers. She is still about and is taken out daily in an automobile by her husband. Her eyes are also giving her much trouble. This is one of the forms her nervous trouble has taken.

Two eye specialists are seeking to avert blindness for Mrs. Harriott, and have considerable hope. An X-ray examination has been made.

At Mrs. Harriott's home in Riverdale Avenue, it was said last night by her husband that her condition was critical and that a general breakdown might occur at any time.

INSANE MAN SCARES GOLFERS.

Women Playing at Dunwoodie Club Frightened by Pistol Shots.

Appearing suddenly on the golf grounds of the Dunwoodie Country Club, in Yonkers, yesterday, a man, supposedly insane, brandished a revolver and then fired five shots, frightening a group of women who were playing golf there. The man was first observed in that part of the grounds where Mrs. Francis A. Winslow's wife of the District Attorney of Westchester County, and Mrs. Therosa Conklyn were playing. Mrs. Conklyn had just returned from her honeymoon.

The man, Mrs. Winslow said, wore two hats, but had no coat. When he had gone about 100 yards from where the women were standing the man suddenly drew a revolver, and, whirling about, fired three times. He appeared to be firing at a tree, but his aim was poor and the bullets went dangerously near the golfers. Mrs. Conklyn screamed and the man ran. In an adjacent valley several other women were playing. As the man approached he fired two more shots. Mrs. W. R. Moon, wife of an official of the club, ran to the clubhouse and notified the police of the Second Yonkers Precinct. The reserves searched the golf grounds for two hours without finding and suspicious person.

Yesterday an Italion closely resembling the man who did the shooting was arrested at Elmford. He was held, pending an examination into his sanity.

RUBBER DIRECTORS INDORSED

Protests from Minority Stockholders Voted Down at Annual Meeting.

There were about fifty stockholders of the United States Rubber Company present at the annual meeting in New Brunswick yesterday, including two women, in expectation of a fight over the proposed amendments to the by-laws and the ratification of the deal by which a syndicate of Directors financed the purchase of the Revere Rubber Company.

The minority interests were represented by G. L. Deoday, holding a proxy for E. C. M. Rand of New York; William A. Smith acting for Frank M. Matthews of East Orange, and E. V. Abbott of Keith & Abbott. As soon as the proposed amendments were read protests were entered. Mr. Abbott introduced a set of amended resolutions which were approved by the protestants, but were voted down, the minority mustering only about 25 per cent. of the votes cast. The most important of the amendments proposed by Mr. Abbott was in connection with the participation of Directors having an interest in a contract or transaction under consideration, in meetings at which such matters are to be voted on. Mr. Abbott's amendment provided that "at any meeting of the board or of the committee of this company at which a contract or transaction is made, authorized or ratified, any Director who was interested therein individually or any Director of another corporation which is interested therein shall withdraw from the meeting while such contract or transaction is under discussion and the remaining Directors shall cause to be entered on the minutes of the meeting the statement that they are informed as to such interests of such other Directors and that at that time they themselves neither have nor intend to have any such interest therein."

The chief objection raised by the minority interests was to the profits allowed the syndicate which underwrote the securities issued to purchase the Revere Rubber Company. The greater part of these profits were to come from an allowance of the earnings of the company for two years, which was figured at $750,000.

President Colt said there had not been an excessive profit, and that the profits of the Revere company for two years was only about $580,000.

Resolutions formally approving the acts of the officers and Directors for the year were adopted.

The resignation of John J. Watson, Jr., from the treasurership and other offices was accepted, and Elisha S. Williams of the Revere Rubber Company was elected to succeed him. James Deshler, who had been Superintendent of the local factory, was elected a Director, as was also Mr. Williams.

EVANGELISTS MEET.

Hear What Is Being Done in Chicago and the Plans for New York.

About 100 persons were present yesterday afternoon and evening at a conference and dinner for the consideration of the subject "The Evangelizing of Our American Cities" in Wanamaker's auditorium. The conference was held under the auspices of the National Bible Institute, which is holding an elaborate evangelistic campaign in the city streets at present. The afternoon session was largely taken up with a prayer meeting.

"What New York City needs just now is a demonstration of supernatural power in the lives and characters of its Christian men and women," said President Don O. Shelton in opening the meeting. "In spite of the prophecy in the Acts of the Apostles, 'Ye shall be endowed with power,' much evangelistic work nowadays seems to lack power. On the other hand, the task of converting men who are in the bondage of sin is one which only the Spirit of God is great enough to accomplish."

After dinner in Wanamaker's restaurant the Rev. Dr. J. Timothy Stone, William M. Peterson, and Andrew Stevenson, all representing the Laymen's Evangelistic Council of Chicago, described what was being done in evangelizing that city.

Twenty-four street meetings will be held here under the auspices of the National Bible Institute this week. Street meetings are being held in Buffalo, and street meetings are planned for the near future for Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Washington.

Warning Against a Forger.

A young man, calling himself variously Robert H. Vane and Harold Vane, has induced The Boston Globe and Boston Herald, respectively, to cash checks purporting to be signed by the business manager of THE NEW YORK TIMES. The checks are drawn on the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, Broadway and Seventy-third Street, New York, and are forgeries.

Vane is about 27 years of age; height, 5 feet 10 inches; weight about 150 pounds; auburn hair worn pompadour; florid complexion; wears eyeglasses when reading or writing; arch of foot broken, which slightly affects his walk; carries cane at times, and has an effeminate manner of speech.

THEATRE MANAGERS CALLED TO ACCOUNT

Association Refuses to Let Dissatisfied Members Resign and Talk of Expulsion.

CRISIS EXPECTED TO-DAY

Directors Pass Resolutions Demanding Resigning Members Show Why Their Bonds Should Not Be Forfeited.

At a meeting of the National Association of Theatrical Producing Managers, held yesterday afternoon in the association's rooms in the Times Building, the Board of Directors passed a resolution refusing to accept the resignations of several members of the association, tendered last Saturday, and notified these members to appear before the board at a special meeting to be held to-day, to answer charges against them and to show cause why they should not be expelled.

The members referred to are Henry B. Harris, Joseph Brooks, A. L. Erlanger, Marc Klaw, Frederic Thompson, George M. Cohan, Samuel H. Harris, Frank McKee, A. W. Dingwall, William Harris, James Forbes, Joseph M. Gaites, and Jesse L. Lasky. Their resignations followed the publication on Friday of a report of a meeting of the Board of Directors held the day before, at which permission was granted John Cort, President of the recently organized Theatre Owners' Association, to appear before the board and state the objects of the new association.

Henry B. Harris was President of the Producing Managers' Association and Joseph Brooks was Secretary. They handed in their resignations at a special meeting of the board, held Saturday morning. Mr. Harris gave as his reason that some members has discussed the affairs of the association outside of its membership and contrary to a by-law of the organization. The others who resigned followed him in his action.

These are the resolutions unanimously adopted yesterday and sent out late last night as a part of a statement of the results of the meeting:

Whereas, Certain members of this association, to wit: Henry B. Harris, Joseph Brooks, A. L. Erlanger, Marc Klaw, Frederic Thompson, George M. Cohan, Samuel H. Harris, Frank McKee, A. W. Dingwall, William Harris, James Forbes, Joseph M. Gaites, and Jesse L. Lasky, have conducted themselves in a manner unbecoming members of this association:

First—By entering into a conspiracy to disrupt this accociation by tendering their resignations in a body and endeavoring to create the impression in the public mind by such action that this association has ceased to be the living, vital factor in the theatrical producing business which it has been and still is, and

Second—By committing themselves the very same offense against the by-laws of this association which they allege has been committed by another member, and which they give as an excuse for said attempted withdrawal on their part, namely, giving to the press for publication and otherwise betraying the secret deliberations and resolutions of this body, and so imparting the information that it was used in public print against the best interests of the association and in behalf of an antagonistic organization, and

Whereas, The by-laws were further violated by the addresses of the various members of this association being furnished to outsiders, when it is expressly stipulated that such shall never be done; and

Whereas, Joseph Brooks visited the offices of this association on Friday last and demanded copies of certain books and papers belonging to this association, and upon being refused, forcibly appropriated said books and papers and took them with him; therefore be it

Resolved, That each of the members of the association above mentioned be called upon individually to show why he should not be expelled from this association; and be it further

Resolved, That each of said members be called upon to show why the surety bond of one thousand dollars ($1,000) filed by each of the above members to bind his faithful observance of the constitution and by-laws of this association should not be forfeited to the association, and that proper legal steps be taken to collect the same; and be it further

Resolved, In order that no charge of partisan action can be made against this association, that any forfeiture collected hereunder shall be turned over to the Actors' Fund of America.

Besides the resolutions, letters were sent to several of the resigning members, specifically charging them with alleged offenses against the association. They are all expected to be present at the meeting this afternoon, as is also John Cort, who will speak of the objects of the recently formed Theatre Owners' Association.

It was said at the offices of Klaw & Erlanger yesterday afternoon, before the appearance of the Producing Managers' statement, that hereafter they would have nothing to say for publication, no matter what happened in the controversy between the Theatrical Syndicate and the so-called independents and others. Neither of the firm could be found last night after the announcement of the association's resolutions.

BONCI TO SING IN CONCERT.

Tenor Believes There Will Be a Cut in Metropolitan Opera Salaries.

Asked abou his plans for next season, Alessandro Bonci, before sailing for Europe yesterday, said that he intended to return to New York in November and go for a concert tour as far as the Pacific Coast. In regard to the retirement of Oscar Hammerstein from the operatic field Mr. Bonci said that several artists had ridiculed the idea that salaries would be cut to make up for the money lost in the struggle between the Metropolitan and Manhattan Opera Houses, but they would find out their mistake very soon.

"What can they do," he asked "against a monopoly in opera? They must accept what the Metropolitan will pay. Therefore I have decided to sing in concert."

Clark Wins Handsome Song Prize.

Daniel V. Arthur, who offered a prize of $500 for the best song submitted for the use of Louise Dresser in "A Matinée Idol," yesterday awarded the prize to Edward Clark for the words of a song called "Just Look at Me Now." Silvio Hein has set it to music and Miss Dresser will sing it for the first time to-morrow night. Several hundred songs, with and without music, were received by last Saturday, when the contest ended.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Anna Held will sail for Havre to-morrow on La Provence, to spend the entire Summer motoring in Europe. She will be accompanied by her daughter Liana.

"Seven Days," which is now running at the Astor Theatre, will be produced in London next season by Wagenhals & Kemper. Georgia O'Ramey, who is playing the role of Kit McNair here, will have the same part in the London production.

Five hundred clergymen have accepted an invitation to be present at a special clergymen's matinée of "The Fortune Hunter" at the Gaiety Theatre to-morrow afternoon. Prof. Brander Matthews of Columbia University will occupy a box.

Mme. Nazimova will end her season at her own theatre on Thirty-ninth Street a week from next Saturday night, deferring the production of the other plays she expects to make a part of her repertoire until next season. She will return to the same theatre about the first of September in a new play.

Emma Carus has been engaged for the company that is to support Eddie Foy in "Up and Down Broadway" at the Casino Theatre. This piece will be produced after the limited run of the revival of "The Mikado."

Randolph Hartley, librettist of the opera "Poia," recently produced at the [illegible] Opera House, Berlin, arrived in New York yesterday on the Furnessia. During his stay abroad Mr. Hartley completed a new libretto for Arthur Nevin, composer of "Poia," and made contracts to write two librettos for a German and a Danish composer.

The Bavarian players at the Irving Place German Theatre will present a new Bavarian folk play called "Der Schnitzerfranzl von Berchtesgaden" to-night and to-morrow night. On Friday night and Saturday afternoon [illegible]

VIEW THE NEW FRENCH PIER.

Officials Come from Washington to Help Celebrate the Opening.

The new French Line pier, at the foot of West Fifteenth Street, was officially opened yesterday by Paul Faguet, the general agent of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique in the United States, with a reception to city officials, friends of the line, and reporters. After the reception a dinner was served on board the Provence, which sails for Havre to-morrow with a full list of passengers.

Besides M. Faguet, the speakers were Lefevre Pontalis, acting French Ambassador at Washington; Etienne Lanel, French Consul General in New York; Dock Commissioner Calvin S. Tomkins, and Capt. M. Poncelet, the Commodore of the French Line and commander of the Provence.

Among the 203 guests were Police Commissioner Baker, Lieut. Benoit D'Azy, Naval Attaché at Washington; Cunliffe Owen, De P. De La Rocca, First Secretary of the French Embassy; Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards, E. V. Frothingham, Commissioner of Public Works; Henry E. Gourd, President of the French Chamber of Commerce in New York; John H. Gunner, President of the Board of Port Wardens; Postmaster Morgan, Charles R. Norman, President of the Maritime Association of New York; James Rascover, President of the New York News Bureau; John C. Williams, Deputy Collector of United States Customs; District Attorney Whitman, Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission, Immigration Commissioner Williams, Appraiser Wanmaker, J. B. Martin, ex-Dock Commissioner Spooner, and Whitney Warren, the architect of the Chelsea piers.

For the first time relatives and friends who go to the French line to meet passengers will have a fine, well heated, spacious room to wait in, where tea will be served gratis in Winter and lemonade in Summer, to pass away the time while the liner is coming to her pier.

WANTS GENERAL EXCISE LAW.

Bishop Burgess Says There Should Be One Temperance Law for the State.

The annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Long Island opened yesterday in the Cathedral of the Incarnation at Garden City. Bishop Burgess of the diocese presided. Three hundred clerical and lay delegates were in attendance. The convention heard committee reports and nominated officers for next year. The Rev. Robert Rogers was elected Secretary, the Rev. John H. Sittig Assistant Secretary, and Alexander E. Orr, Treasurer.

"The local option question," Bishop Burgess said, "is in my opinion a mistake. There should be one temperance law for the whole State, with perhaps exceptions made for the great cities. The introduction of one of the most contentious subjects into local politics is mischievous in the extreme. It arouses wrangling and leads to hard feeling, which would have been avoided had the outlook been wider.

"It brings each village clergyman into undue prominence, and men find themselves forced to explain to the public their own private views of life or habits, or else be stamped in an unfavorable way by their fellow-Christians. Nor does such a system do any general good. If one town prohibits it usually results in the neighboring towns becoming more lax and indifferent, whereas a reasonable State law would be rich in blessing.

"If the efforts of the prohibitionists were directed toward limiting the number of saloons strictly to the size of the population, making the number allowed to each territory as small as possible, it would result in untold good to the community. Many a man is forced to vote for prohibition now because it seems the only way to bring about reform, just as many a citizen will go over to free trade if no real reduction of the tariff can be accomplished without such reaction. I hope to see the time when this limited trade in liquor shall be controlled by the State government and taken out of the hands of those who now make their living too often by the price of blood."

James W. Covert.

Ex-Congressman James W. Covert died at the Hotel St. George, Brooklyn, on Monday night from pneumonia. He had long been prominent in politics in Queens County, but for some years had made his home at 70 First Place, Brooklyn.

Mr. Covert was born at Oyster Bay in 1842. He was admitted to the bar in 1863 and became Surrogate of Queens County seven years later. In 1876 he was elected to Congress from the Long Island district and served two terms. Mr. Covert was then elected to the State Senate for one term. Later he was several times returned to Congress. At the time of the consolidation he was appointed as an Assistant Corporation Counsel, serving first in Queens and then in Brooklyn, holding that office in the latter borough at the time of his death. Mr. Covert was unmarried.

Gen. Augustus B. R. Sprague.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 17.—Gen. Augustus B. R. Sprague, 83 years old, ex-Mayor of Worcester and President of the Worcester Electric Company, died at his home here to-day after a short illness of pneumonia.

Gen. Sprague was born in Ware, Mass., March 7, 1827. He began his business career as a clerk and soon became engaged in mercantile business for himself, continuing from 1846 to 1861, when he enlisted under the call of President Lincoln for the first 75,000 men. Gen. Sprague, who was then Captain of the Worcester City Guards, left for the war April 20, 1861, and shortly afterward was appointed Colonel of the Fifty-first Massachusetts Regiment, and at the close of the war was given a commission as General.

Widow Home with Dr. Rex's Body.

The body of Dr. Oliver P. Rex of Philadelphia, who died in his cabin last Thursday, was brought to port yesterday on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, and will be taken to Philadelphia to-day by his widow, who had accompanied Dr. Rex on a long tour around the world, which began in February. The doctor was taken ill in Naples and was removed to Bremerhaven, where he was in the hospital for a month. When he was taken aboard the liner last Tuesday he was in a state of coma, from which he never rallied. He was 70 years old.

Obituary Notes.

JAMES BLACK of 78 East 236th Street died yesterday at his home. Funeral services will be held there to-morrow evening. Interment will be at Woodlawn Cemetery.

He was 87 years old, and for about fifty years had been a resident of Hempstead, where as a pastime he conducted very successfully one of the largest stock farms of the State. Many high-class trotting horses were bread and trained on his estate. For many years he conducted a law practice in Manhattan.

FRANK CONLEY, proprietor of Conley's Inn in Torrington, Conn., and one of the best-known hotel men in that State, died there yesterday after a long illness. He was born in Ireland, and settled in this country in 1881. A widow and one son survive him.

JOSEPH GARRISON, husband of the poetess, Theodosia Garrison, died yesterday at his residence in Glen Ridge, N. J., aged [illegible] years. [illegible]

ACTORS' FAIR AUTO WON BY JERSEY GIRL

Miss Gertrude Graham, Artist, of East Orange Captures Alco Touring Car.

REAL LAMB FOR LAMBS CLUB

Organization Bought Up All Chances—G. C. Young Wins Piano, and B. Rosenberg the Motor Boat.

Except for the totaling of receipts and expenses, the Actors' Fund Fair of last week has passed into local theatrical history. Charles M. Burnham announced yesterday the results of the last of the raffles that were concluded either late on Monday night or yesterday morning. The amount of money taken in at the door and at the booths will not be known, however, for several days, as the chairmen of the various committees asked for a day's recess before bringing in their final reports.

Of the important articles whose winners have not been published, the Alco touring car, valued at $4,000, went to Miss Gertrude Payson Graham of East Orange, N. J. Miss Graham is an artist, and was a constant attendant at the fair. The Parisian hat displayed at the millinery booth was won by Mr. Lindal of 154 East Seventy-ninth Street; $10 in gold went to F. S. Wilson of 311 East 193d Street, and a lingerie gown to Miss Mary Carbon of 329 East Sixty-ninth Street.

The piano was awarded to G. C. Young of 101 West Eighty-fifth Street; the motor boat to B. Rosenberg of 164 Canal Street; the game rooster in a gilt cage to Mrs. S. C. Baldwin of 73 Remsen Street, Brooklyn, and the baby donkey, named Fritzi Scheff and wearing shoes made from a silver dollar, went to Betty Beardsley of 202 Riverside Drive. The real sheep was won by the Lambs' Club, after the club members had purchased all the chances on it.

The ticket to San Francisco and return and admission to the Jeffries-Johnson fight, donated by Jeffries to the burlesque booth, was won by H. E. Vermyle of 560 West 149th Street. Francis Wilson got the Steiner picture of Billie Burke, C. E. Proctor of Great Neck, L. I., received the portrait of Mrs. Fiske; T. H. Haisie of 59 Cedar Street won the porcelain plate of Billie Burke, and W. F. Hume won the cut-glass bowl. The diamond bracelet that was put up for raffle toward the end of the fair, was won by Mrs. Pinover of 16 Bay Thirty-first Street, Brooklyn.

People were talking yesterday about the exciting finish of the most popular actress contest, that was won by Pauline Frederick. Up to an hour before the contest closed Miss Frederick and Billie Burke alternated in the lead, and then the partisans of each began to buy up votes on the quiet, with the intention of waiting until the last moment before the close of the contest before turning in the money, and in this way prevented the other side from doing the same thing.

The contest was to close promptly at 11:30, which time was to be indicated by a pistol shot fired on signal from Daniel Frohman, who was watching the clock. Miss Burke's partisans had arranged to turn in 5,000 votes a second before the signal came. They were a second too late, however, for their money was handed up between the time Mr. Frohman gave the signal and the time the pistol went off. For a moment a real riot seemed imminent, and Mr. Frohman was appealed to. He decided that the contest had closed when he gave the signal and not when the shot was fired, and so Miss Frederick was declared winner. Miss Frederick's partisans said afterward that they had been prepared to do the same thing in case Miss Burke had been ahead at the last moment.

OFFERS REWARD FOR LOOT.

Silk Merchant Drops the Police in Seeking Lost Goods.

Failure on the part of the police to recover stolen goods or to apprehend the thieves in burglaries in downtown stores and Harle homes in the last few days has led Nathan Benowitz, one of the proprietors of the Princess Shirtwaist Company of 38 and 44 West Twenty-first Street, to offer a reward to-day for information leading to the recovery of $7,000 worth of silks stolen from his loft on the sixth floor by burglars some time on Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

When Mr. Benowitz entered his place of business early Wednesday morning he found the entire loft in disorder. Silk shirtwaists and uncut rolls of silk lay scattered on the floor between the shelves and counters. Some fine silk, worth $1,000, lay tucked away in a rough bag, apparently abandoned by the burglars in sudden freight, but $7,000 worth had been stolen.

The glass top of a rear door looking out upon the fire-escape had been broken, and through the aperture the door had been unlocked. It is believed the thieves must have secreted themselves on the ground floor of the building before it was locked for the day, and then climbed up the fire-escape to the silk loft. Their loot was so bulky that they most have had confederates outside, and a wagon to cart it away.

SAN FRANCISCO MAY GET THE BIG FIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 17.—Sports to-day discussed mainly the report that the Jeffries-Johnson fight may be transferred to this city. The rumor to the effect that Tom Williams served notice on Tex Rickard that the fight could not be pulled off on his Emeryville race track is not true. Williams will keep to his agreement, but Rickard and Gleason are afraid of District Attorney Donohue of Alameda County, who has let it be known that he will use his influence to prevent the fight being held in Alameda County. Technically he might not be able to interfere, as Emeryville is an incorporated town; but the promoters do not want to test the law on the eve of the fight. Hence Rickard and Gleason have arranged matters with San Francisco Supervisors, and next Monday a permit for the July 4 fight in San Francisco will be granted to Griffin's Club, and this permit will be turned over by Griffin to Rickard. Everything has been arranged so that there shall be no interference with the fight by any of the authorities of this city. An open-air arena will be built in the suburbs close to street car lines and the public will thus be able to reach the battle-ground much easier than if it were located at Emeryville.

Tex Rickard, somewhat nettled by the reports that his name was suggested as referee merely to fill a temporary breach, came out to-night with a statement that he would referee the fight, and would not give way to any man in the world.

"I wanted to know whether I would be satisfactory to Jeffries," said Rickard. "I have been assured that everything is all right, and now I am going to hold the job."

Eddie Graney, one of the men suggested for referee, left this afternoon for the Jeffries camp at Ben Lomond. Graney explained that as the referee question was settled he wanted to see Jeffries on other business.

Jack Johnson did his usual road work to-day, covering fourteen miles and then played baseball in the afternoon. He will do his second stunt of sparring to-morrow afternoon. Persistent rumors have been afloat for two days that Johnson would discharge Little as manager and take on Billy Nolan, who was present at the referee conference on Monday; but Johnsan flatly denied there was any truth in the report.

BEN LOMOND, Cal., May 17.—Jeffries did very little work to-day except to run to Boulder Creek and return in the early morning. He said that he wanted to give his blood a chance to cool, as he believes his skin eruptions are due to overheating himself Monday and yesterday when the mercury went to 90 degrees. Choynski was hurt to-day as Jeffries's fox terrier dashed between his feet while he was sprinting and threw Joe heavily. The skin was peeled from one hand and he suffered a hard bump on the head.

OAKLAND, Cal., May 17.—Resolutions condemning the proposed Jeffries-Johnson fight and calling upon the Governor and the District Attorney to use all possible means to prevent it, were passed last night at a meeting of 800 members of the First Methodist Episcopal Church.

A committee was appointed to present the resolutions to the officials, and twenty-five prominent men will be chosen to continue the crusade that is being waged.

"Dixie Kid" at the Sharkey.

The Sharkey Club's entertainment this week will be held to-morrow night. Manager Buckley has arranged a fine programme for the occasion. "Dixie Kid," the colored welterweight, and Billy West, a local fighter, will box ten rounds in the main event. West, although a local man, is called the champion of the South, because he beat every fighter down there. He has also defeated Bill Hurley of Glens Falls, Charter Hitte of Albany, and Kid Henry, the Troy fighter. In the semi-final "Battling Larry" Ryan will tackle Young Rocky for six rounds.

ZBYSCKO THROWS THE TURK.

Zbyszko, the Polish aspirant for the heavyweight wrestling title, delighted about 3,000 of his emotional countrymen at Clermont Rink in Brooklyn last night by throwing Kara Ashmet, a Turk, in 38 minutes of fast aggressive work on the mat.

The Turk went down by what is called a "flying mail" hold. Zbyszko stood face to face with his man, each wrestler's hands clutched firmly around the neck of the other. Suddenly the Pole turned about with his back against the Turk. Placing his hands over the Turk's neck he tossed his opponent over his head in cart-wheel fashion, planting him with a heavy thud on the floor and held him there long enough to get the fall.

After 25 minutes' intermission to give the Pole a rest, he went up against Andy Candret, another Pole. He found a Tartar in this man, and did not live up to his bargain in promising to throw him in 22 minutes. Candret was good on the defense, and Zbyszko was tired and slowed up considerably. He has been wrestling much of late, and in a speech to his fellow-countrymen said that he had been on the mat so much that he was all worn out.

The assembled Poles cheered Zbyszko for about ten minutes with a storm of weird yells, and presented him with a huge bouquet of flowers such as a popular prima donna receives. There were a number of lively preliminaries, the best being between Neil Olson and Artie McLaughlin. This was a ten-minute draw and was full of action.

KETCHEL SCORES KNOCKOUT.

Champion Puts Boston Heavyweight Away in Third Round.

BOSTON, May 17.—Stanley Ketchel, the world's champion middleweight fighter, sent James ("Porky") Flynn of Boston down and out in the third round of a scheduled twelve-round bout at the Armory Athletic Association to-night. Flynn, however, gave a good account of himself in the two preceding rounds, keeping the champion at long range and jabbing him hard in the face with his left, while landing an occasional right on the face and body.

Ketchel landed terrific swings at will on Flynn's head and body in the third, and sent him to the floor twice with left punches to the stomach, Flynn taking the count on the last fall.

Baldwin After Cross Again.

Matty Baldwin, who boxes Frankie Smith, the California lightweight, for ten rounds at the Madison Athletic Club to-morrow night, is anxious to get another chance with Leach Cross. Matty, in a letter to Joe Humphreys, states that he will be ready to box Cross before the Madison Club on June 1. Baldwin feels confident of defeating Smith in their coming battle. Heinie Raefrell, who is looking after the interests of Frankie Smith, reports that his protege is in splendid condition, and that Smith will surely defeat Baldwin, and further states that the Californian is anxious to be matched with the winner of the Cross-Murphy bout.

Burns Says He'll Beat Piet.

Kid Burns of the west side, who is to meet Henri Piet, champion lightweight of France, in the star bout at the Long Arce A. A. to-morrow night, declared yesterday that there would be a new champion of France after the contest.

"I'll put Piet out in about the eighth round," said Burns. The boys are in the best of condition and each is confident of beating the other. There will be a fine set of preliminaries.

Gotch-Zbyszko Bout on Race Track.

CHICAGO, May 17.—It was announced this afternoon that the Gotch-Zbyszko yrestling match will positively be held here on Memorial Day. If unable to obtain a permit through the courts it is stated that the bout will be put on at the old Harlem race track, which is outside the city limits.

Attell Shaping Up for Murphy.

Abe Attell says that his right thumb was in bad shape during the bout he had with Tommy Murphy at the Empire Club several weeks ago. He hopes to have nothing of this sort to handicap him in his coming encounter with Murphy at the National Sporting Club on Friday night. Murphy is willing that Attell should have no physical impediments in this meeting, as he is determined to show that he is the featherweight champion's master.

Tennis Results at Chevy Chase.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Twenty-three matches were played to-day in the invitation tennis tournament at the Chevy Chase Club. In the first match of the men's doubles G. F. Touchard and W. H. Connell defeated B. M. Grant and R. P. Davis, 6—1, 3—6, 6—2. An interesting match in the third round of the men's singles was between Spencer Gordon of Washington and B. M. Grant of Atlanta, former Southern States' champion, Gordon, winning, 4—6, 6—3, 6—0.

In the ladies' singles, a match between Miss Krug and Miss Cassells of the Bachelor's Club of Washington, was won by the former, 7—5, 7—5.

KUBIAK GOES OUT IN SECOND ROUND

Sam Langford Has Little Trouble Winning Last Night at Fairmont A. C.

Sam Langford, the colored light-heavyweight, so easily disposed of Al Kubiak at the Fairmont Athletic Club last night that the crowd which went to see the fight, just to see Langford work, were hardly satisfied because they did not see Langford extended.

Kubiak was knocked down three times in the second round, and the third time he stayed down beyond the limit of ten seconds allowed in boxing matches, which of course ended the go in Langford's favor.

Langford has been the centre of contention in boxing circles for some time because of his known ability and his physical shortcomings. He is only 5 feet 7 inches in height, and weighs a few pounds over the middleweight limit, so naturally he is too light for the very big fellows. He has been compelled to go out of his class for all of his principal matches except the recent one with Ketchel, and though he has victories over men pounds and inches beyond him, he has never been able to get a championship match. He pestered Jack Johnson for a bout until he got tired, and many of those who saw him perform last night were of the opinion that he could give the black champion a real run.

Kubiak was not even good practice for him. It was evident before the first round had half expired that the little black man was the big German's master. The latter was fully twenty-five pounds heavier than Langford and fully six inches taller.

Langford started into business as though he had fully made up his mind to dispel the impression that has prevailed lately that he doesn't always try his best. He was due to show his best last night, and the way he waded into Kubiak was delightful to those who like to see scientific pugilism. Kubiak was the greatest disappointment New York fight crowds have had for a long time. He landed a few light left jabs in the first rounds, and ran into a couple of clinches, during which he tried the back pounding so prevalent among the youngsters. Beyond this he did nothing. He was, however, the receiver general of Langford's lefts and rights, which that young man knows how to deliver with all of his 162 or 165 pounds behind them. One of these left smashes opened a cut over Kubiak's right eye early in the first round. Langford's finished boxing was delightful to see, and the crowd clamored for more.

They got it in the second round, but mighty little of it. Langford started in like a whirlwind, sending in straight lefts and rights, and Kubiak was in the road of every one of them. A right half arm uppercut after a fusillade of straight lefts and rights sent him to the floor. He got up wobbling, only to have Mr. Langford repeat the dose. He stayed until the referee counted nine. Gingerly he came toward Langford, who was coolly watching for him. Biff, bang, and bang again, and another time Kubiak went down. This ended the fight.

In the semi-final young Ahearn furnished his usual merry-go-round setto and the big crowd howled with delight to see Kid Albert, his opponent, try time and again to land on him. Albert did a little better in this respect than any of the boys Ahearn has taken on lately. It was a bout to be decided purely on points, and Ahearn won.

BALTIMORE OARSMEN ANGRY.

Talk of Dropping Out of Middle States and National Associations.

Baltimore oarsmen are in an angry mood because the Middle States Regatta Association turned down their application for holding this year's regatta at Baltimore and gave the event to Philadelphia. The feeling is so strong at present among the Southerners at what they consider the unfair treatment they received at the recent annual meeting of the association that the members of the two Baltimore clubs belonging to the association favor withdrawing from the Middle States organization and forming the South Atlantic Association of Amateur Oarsmen. Robert W. Beach, Secretary of the Patapsco Navy, a member of the Arundel Boat Club, and one of the delegates to the annual meeting of the association in New York, is indingant over the action taken by the Philadelphians at the meeting.

"I went to New York," Beach says, "with the firm conviction that the Philadelphia boat clubs were our best friends and would vote to help Baltimore in securing the regatta. They promised their support last year when the Founders' Week regatta was held, but to my surprise not one vote came from that city to aid us. In fact, Philadelphia was the strongest bidder in the field against us. There was not one reason advanced why Baltimore should not have the regatta, for there was none that could be used, since we have not held a regatta for seventeen years, with the exception of the National event in 1908.

"Now I am in favor of severing our relations, not only with the Middle States but with the National Association, as practically the same men control the affairs of the two organizations. I would like to see a new association formed, with a constitution so adapted that all the clubs would have their rights of membership and agree that each year a schedule be followed, the cities taking a turn at holding the regatta, unless, of course, a city wanted to pass up its chance. I will bend every effort to prevent a single entry from the local clubs going to Philadelphia, and in this act I am backed by several other well-known enthusiasts."

Cameron Wins Five-Mile Race.

ST. JOHN, N. B., May 17.—Fred Cameron of Amherst, N. S., who won the Boston Athletic Association Marathon race, broke the Maritime Province indoor record in a five-mile race here to-night, with Jim Corkery of Toronto, third man in the Boston contest, and Ernie Sterling of St. John. Cameron finished in 26:24 1-5. The record made by Cameron at Halifax last year was 19 4-5 seconds slower. Sterling was second in to-night's race, his time being 26:29 2-5. Corkery was left far behind.

DE ORO VICTOR AGAIN.

Hueston Falls Before Brilliant Billiard Play of Cuban Expert.

Another session of brilliant billiards marked the second night's play for the three-cushion billiard championship of the world last night at Doyle's Billiard Academy, West Forty-second Street, and when it was finished Alfred De Oro, the challenger, had again beaten Thomas Hueston of St. Louis, the title holder, in the night's play by a score of 50 to 35. The score Monday night was 50 to 41 in favor of the former Cuban champion, so that now he leads Hueston by a total of 100 to 76, an advantage which, unless he falls off materialy in his game, will give him a clear road to regaining the world's title at three-cushion billiards when the concluding 50 points of the total of 150 is played to-night.

The match of last evening was even better than the one that preceded it Monday night, which went sixty innings. Last night it took De Oro sixty-two innings to accomplish his 50 points, but there was a great deal more safety play than in the opening match, and this mitigated against a good average. De Oro took no chances of having Hueston eliminate the advantage which he had established over his rival, and during the middle of the game played safe continually for nearly ten innings. Hueston, too, adopted the same tactics to an even greater extent, but it did not bring much advantage to him, for De Oro wriggled out of some of the hard leaves by brilliant execution.

There was no geeting away from the fact that the luck was not on the side of the St. Louis champion. Many of his tries for four and five cushion carroms went astray through unfortunate kisses, while De Oro, on the other hand, escaped such trouble. Many times it was only by the slightest margin, but at any rate he did not have the discomfort of a well-played shot going astray through a kiss, and it was this which undoubtedly had a deteriorating effect on Hueston's game. It could not do otherwise than affect his play.

De Oro's victory in the first match seemingly inspired him with great confidence last night, and there was almost no hesitation in his play. He solved the combination of the most difficult "leaves" quickly, and his execution for the point was full of the certainty that he would count. Hueston, on the other hand, was too eager to regain the advantage which he lost in the first night's play, and probably played safeties too often for his own benefit. In several instances it seemed that he would have fared better had he gone after the point instead of stalling, for De Oro was altogether too deadly to make any "leave" a safety.

De Oro played rather indifferently for the first few innings, and Hueston took the lead. At the twentieth inning, however, the two were on even terms, and from then on De Oro always had the commanding position in the scoring. He gradually increased his advantage, and a wonderful exhibition of play during the final stages of the match carried him far ahead of his rival. His run of six in the fifty-eighth inning was the best of the evening, and showed some clever open-table play. The run terminated with a miss that came within the smallest degree of being a point.

Hueston could do little in the way of high runs, his best being three, which he made twice. De Oro made a four, and scored three points in several innings.

The final fifty points of the match will be played to-night, when Maurice Daly will be the referee.

Results of Billiard Matches.

In the afternoon game yesterday of the 18.2 balkline billiard tournament at Maurice Daly's Billiard Academy, Forty-ninth Street and Broadway, Harry Cline defeated William Gersher by the score of 300 to 101, in thirteen innings. Cline's high run was 101, and his average 23 1-13. Gersher's high run was 35, and his average 7 10-13. In the evening game Cline defeated William Carter by the score of 400 to 72, in ten innings. Cline made a high run of 186, and an average of 44 4-9, while Carter's best effort netted him 8 points.

George Moore, at McGraw's Billiard Academy, Thirty-fifth Street and Sixth Avenue, defeated J. Flinn of the Amateur Billiard Club of America, last night, by the score of 30 to 12, in forty innings. Moore's high run was 4, and Flinn's was 4. This evening there will be a special match of 50 points, in which Moore will meet Henry Soloman, the champion three-cushion carrom billiardist of Portland, Ore.

BALBEK ALONE BROKE FAVORITES' RARE RUN

Outsider in Race for Maidens Spoiled Record Day for Choices by Winning at Belmont Park.

Only one break was made in an otherwise clean sweep of the prizes at Belmont Park yesterday by the public choices and best horses. Even when there was the break the result was popular, for it was with practically unanimous pleasure that the fashionable crowd in the clubhouse and the general public in the grand stand applauded the triumph of Balbek, in a contest for horses 3 years old and upward that had not won a race in 1909 or 1910.

Balbek's race, though in the background in the early estimates of the sport, was run as the second event on the card. Balbek was the last outsider, bar one, in a field of seven, every horse named on the programme for the race answering the call to the post. The veteran gray Miramar led away from the barrier, but dropped back early, Gilpian succeeding him in first place for just a few strides, after which Golden Legend had his turn in front. Glory and promise were well distributed for that field of seven furlongs, but at the very end, when they were on the winning post, there came from the rear Balbek, unheeded and uncalled until the finishing strides were begun, Balbek snatching the race in the last jumps from Lisaro, which never showed in front, but ran the best race of the field barring only the victor.

Of the other races it was hard to pick one as a feature over another, so prominent were the stable colors that finished first, and so popular with the spectators were the horses. Simply because it was a stake fixture of greater value than the other events, the Crotona Handicap, at six furlongs straight, assumed the distinction of being the feature, and made a very pretty contest, though Mary Davis, the favorite, won about as she pleased when she was ready to come on. Magazine made the pace almost to the end, Mary Davis, second to that point, then breezing past him, to win, well in hand, by a length and a half from Magazine, second, the others strung out far back.

August Belmont, with several members of his family, witnessed the victory of Golden Sand, the second of the daughters of the $125,000 English stallion Rock Sand, imported by Mr. Belmont, to be returned winners this Spring, the first season that the Rock Sands have raced.

Mr. Belmont also saw his fleet filly Field Mouse run and finish behind Mary Davis, and himself had a narrow escape from the filly's heels, as she lashed out just as he passed her in the saddling inclosure, and her heels actually brushed his hair in the kick she launched. It was truly a narrow escape, but Mr. Belmont paid little heed and walked on nonchalantly, smiling back at Field Mouse. The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For maiden colts, two years old, special weights; five furlongs straight.
F. J. Murray's Towton Field, b. c., by Broomstick-Ascot Belle, 110, (G. Garner,) 3 to 1 and 1 to 1....1h

Want Racing in Missouri.

ST. LOUIS, May 17.—Barney Schreiber and associates are backing a movement to re-establish horse racing in Missouri. They propose to submit to the voters of the State at the Fall election a bill to legalize the pari-mutuel system of betting. The bill is to be submitted through the initiative and referendum, provided a sufficient number of signatures can be obtained.

Jockey Lyne Has Appendicitis.

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 17.—A private cablegram received here to-day announces that Lucien Lyne of Lexington, the famous American jockey who has been riding in Belgium, has been stricken with appendicitis and is seriously ill in Brussels.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

Dandelion, winner of the Saratoga Handicap in 1906 for F. R. Hitchcock and now running in selling races for S. C. Hildreth, is sick with a trouble of the bowels, and his condition is such that it is likely it will be necessary to destroy the gallant old campaigner.

James R. Keene's fast three-year-old Sweep, which was seized with a chill while being loaded on the horse train from Belmont Park to Sheepshead Bay, was in a much improved condition yesterday, but had suffered such a decline in condition in his sickness that it is not at all likely that he will be a starter in the classic Withers Stakes, to be run for the thirty-seventh year at Belmont Park on Saturday.

The Meadow Brook Hunt Club has announced the Meadow Brook Hunters Steeplechase, for five-year-olds and upward, to be run Saturday, May 25. Owing to the change in the date of the Meadow Brook Hunters race, seven races will be on the card for May 28.

Trainer Thomas Welsh, who handles the biggest and best semi-public stable in the country, saddled two winners consecutively at Belmont Park yesterday, Mr. Welsh sending out F. J. Murray's Towton Field, half brother to Rose Queen, to win the opening race, and following in the third with August Belmont's Golden Sand.

Johns Hopkins Lacrosse Record.

The Johns Hopkins University lacrosse team, though keenly feeling the loss of the intercollegiate championship, is rather proud of its record this year. The team won four games and lost three, the victories being over Harvard, Mount Washington, Lehigh, and Stevens, and the defeats were by the Navy, Alumni, and Swarthmore. The team had an uphill road to travel from the beginning. Only four of last year's players were back to start the season, and the other eight players, with one or two exceptions, had to be developed from green material. At present the prospects for next year look quite bright. Only three men will be lost by graduation and otherwise. Therefore there will be a nucleus of nine old players and three or four substitutes of more than average ability to begin with.

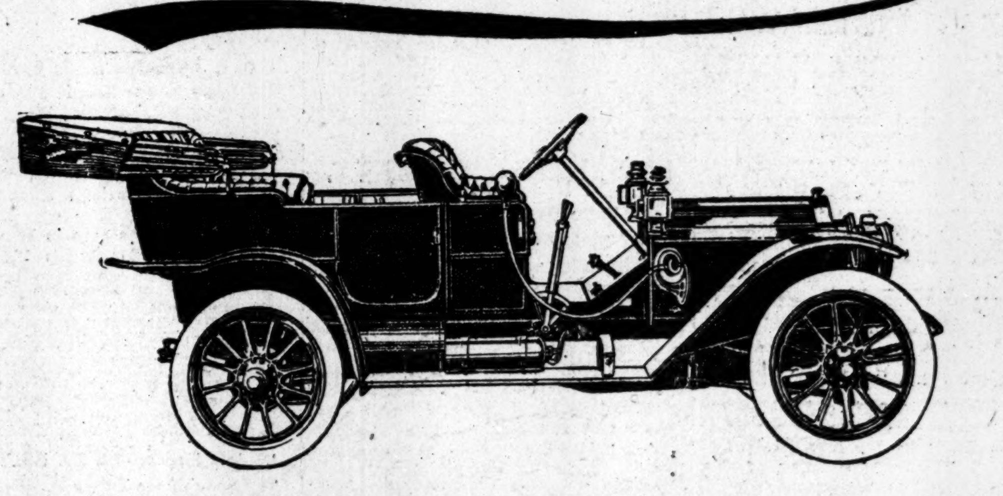
1852-1910 Half a Century of "Making Good"

Studebaker's



If there existed any car representing higher development or greater value than the Studebaker "40," its name would still be Studebaker

Because the same determination to produce only the best, regardless of cost; the same inflexible policy for the past half century of employing the best talent procurable, that has made the STUDEBAKER COMPANY the largest of its kind in the world, is concentrated upon the refinement of this car.

If the industries of steel and other metals—of paints—of leathers—could produce better materials than go into the STUDEBAKER "40," this car would have them—and have them first.

Because our purchasing agents are seasoned experts, back of whom are years of experience—back of this the STUDEBAKER laboratories for scientific testing—and back of these are the well-known Studebaker resources to command the best. From the buyer's standpoint any individual tests compared to these are inadequate and unimportant.

If greater engineering talent or a higher grade of manufacturing skill could produce a better car than the STUDEBAKER "40," this car—and this car in particular—would have the added benefit.

Because the extensive facilities and the enormous output of this Company demand the best talent in the world, and if there was anything better than the STUDEBAKER talent this Company would buy it.

The STUDEBAKER-GARFORD "40," as a well-balanced, luxurious, dependable car, fittingly represents the enterprise, integrity and skill that has made the STUDEBAKER interests the largest concern of its kind in the world, and all the Studebaker responsibility stands squarely back of it.

Send for a copy of the "Motorist's Log Book" (with maps) giving the actual experience of a prominent motorist while touring France, Spain and Italy in a STUDEBAKER at a car cost of $3.80—less than one cent per hundred miles—for repairs.

Perine and O'Loughlin Time of game—Two hours and forty-two minutes.

A melodious single from the long, black bat of Laporte, singing its way over the sod to centre field in the eleventh inning, won for the Yankees against St. Louis on the Hilltop yesterday in the most emotional, nerve-racking game that the town has seen this season. It was nearly 7 o'clock when the Yankees made the final effort and succeeded in throwing off the Browns, who were insistent on taking the game and twice had it appparently salted away. But each time when defeat loomed up big in front of the Yanks they laced the ball and fought back hard. The score was 8 to 7.

The nip-and-tuck struggle teemed with excitement, and along toward 6 o'clock some of the 5,500 persons present attempted to hurry home, but just as they reached the gate each time such a terrific clamor went up that they hustled back to their seats and sat it out. The collection of tin-lunged fans who perched behind the New York bench exploded with a bang at the Yankees' uphill game, and half a dozen of them danced the Highland fling on the roof over the players' bench. They also destroyed several new derby hats and dislocated many vocal cords. The bleachers took it to heart and tore up all the newspapers in sight and threw them to the four winds. The last two innings were played in a snowstorm of paper.

Six pitchers were used in the mêlée, three from each camp. Four of them worked their way to the smoothest spots of the toboggan and had to be exiled. As a last resort in the eleventh St. Louis sent out Powell as a life saver and Stallings put in Jim Vaughn. Well, Vaughn had it and Powell didn't; that's all there is to that. The sad part of it all is that Jack O'Connor was so confident of winning that he showed a lot of ginger on the coaching lines and appeared ten years younger.

For seven innings the Browns had the Yankees beaten. It took them just four innings to take the measure of Warhop, the Freeport Indian. Tom Hughes, who took up the firing in the fifth inning, didn't allow a hit or a run from the fifth to the tenth. Gilligan started for St. Louis, and the Yanks couldn't reach him until the eighth, when they rapped him for a trio of hits and three runs, which tied up the score. The Browns arose like a tribe of Apaches in the tenth and hammered Hughes for three hits and as many runs. It sounded like the Yanks' swan song when the bat cracked against the ball in that round. Bailey, who relieved Gilligan after the eighth-inning attack, was rudely jolted in the last half of the tenth. They grouped raps on him and got three runs to tie the score. Then came the eleventh, when Powell was sent in to tame the Yanks. He passed the first two men. Laporte's single settled the argument.

Warhop walked Hoffman in the third, and Daniel scored on a two-bagger by Griggs. In the fourth, with one down, Abstein singled, and Allen, the Browns' new catcher from wildest Oklahoma, was hit by a pitched ball. Gilligan poked a short single to centre, scoring Abstein, but Hemphill made a bad throw to third to catch Allen, and the backstop scored. Stone rolled one to Warhop, who threw to second, forcing Gilligan. Hoffman's single between left and centre scored Stone. Channell was safe in the fifth on Abstein's error, and Gardner walked. Channell tried to get to third on a passed ball, but was out when he tripped on the bag and fell over it, breaking his right leg.

Kleinow, who made his reappearance behind the bat yesterday for the first time this season, hit out a single which scored Gardner, the Yanks' first run. Hughes then relieved Warhop and held the Browns safe for a while. Gilligan got feverish in the eighth and walked Hemphill. Wolter fanned, and Allen tossed the ball to second to catch Hemphill stealing. Nobody there, and Hemphill went to third. Chase's double to the fence brought in Hemphill and also entitled Chase to a keg of stogies, because he banged the bulb against the blackboard. Laporte's single scored Chase. Gilligan was exiled and Bailey went in. He made Roach ground out to first, but Birdie Cree had relieved Channell after his accident, spanked a single to left, scoring Laporte with the tieing run. Score 4 to 4. Not a thing which would go down in history happened in the ninth.

Don't leave your seat. Better stick it out and tell them at home that you were detained at the office. The Browns executed this destruction in their half of the tenth: Wallace popped to Chase, Griggs poled one of Hughes's curls to left for two bases, Schweitzer was safe on a hot infield smash, and Hartzell's single scored Griggs. The ball got away from Cree in left and rolled nearly to the fence, while Schweitzer counted. Honestly, doesn't it look as if it was all up with the Yankees? And worse to come, Gardner mussed frightfully on an easy roller from Stephens and Hartzell scored. Wow! three runs.

Here's how 'twas done: Wolter was called out on strikes and told Umpire Perrine a few facts about smoky, clouded lamps as he walked to the plate. Chase walked. The grand march continued and Laporte hoofed it, too. Chase, by the way, stole second and third. Roach hit to right, Chase strolling home. Cree forced Roach at second, but Laporte scored on the affair. Gardner singled through centre, Cree going to third. Come on Kleinow, 'at-a-boy, win your own game. Kleinow tore off a sizzler along the greensward to centre field, Cree scooting in with the seventh run. Score 7 to 7.

Well, what do you think of that? And St. Louis the tail-enders. Is this New York bunch to be humiliated by a St. Louis crew, too, just like the Giants were by the Cardinals? Never, no!

Only room for ten innings on the score card, so you have to buy two cards for one game. Ha, ha, another frightful example of the high cost of living. Jim Vaughn is now pitching for the Yanks. He spins a cross-fire at Stone and the slugger fans. Hoffman bowled one to Laporte and was thrown out at first. Bobby Wallace, he'll hit it. You bet [illegible]. He pounds to Chase, who is [illegible] mile from first, but it's lucky Hal's there, for he speared it and raced Bobby to the bag, beating him by a toe.

Powell hurled four wide, useless balls to Hemphill, who graciously acepted the gift. Powell didn't know where the plate was and Wolter walked. Chase sacrificed them along a station. The hungry 5,000 asked Mr. Laporte if he wouldn't please larrup it, and Mr. Laporte said he would, and Mr. Laporte did. That's three straight victories from St. Louis.

Six Runs on Two Home-Run Drives.

BOSTON, May 17.—The visitors looked like winners when Bush hit a home run with the bases full in the second inning, but the home team batted hard and took advantage of Detroit's errors, Boston finally winning, 8 to 6. Stahl made a home run in the third inning, with two men on bases. Bush was put off the field for disputing a decision at the home plate. The score:

Athletics Down White Sox Again.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—Philadelphia won its third straight game from Chicago to-day by 3 to 0, and ran its winning streak up to twelve straight. Bender held Chicago down to four scattered hits, and only one of his opponents got past first base. Philadelphia hit Scott's delivery hard, but fast fielding kept the score down. The score:

CHANNELL FRACTURES LEG.

Yankees' New Outfielder Seriously Hurt Sliding Into Third Base.

Lester Channell, the new left fielder of the New York Americans, fractured his right leg while sliding into third base in the last half of the fifth inning of the game with St. Louis at American League Park yesterday. Channell started for third on Allen's passed ball and jumped into the base feet first. His right foot tripped over the bag and he went headlong to the other side of it and was tagged out.

The player lay helpless and two players picked him up and carried him to the clubhouse on their shoulders. The injury is technically known as Pott's fracture, and is about three inches above the right ankle. It is doubtful if Channell, who has been playing a good game in left field, will be able to don a Yankee uniform again this season. The player came to New York this season from the Fort Wayne Club, and his home is in Crestline, Ohio. In 1908 he was taken South by the Chicago Cubs, but was sold to Fort Wayne.

The third sack at the hilltop seems to be a hoodoo this season, and in the last two days three players have been injured going into the base.

On Monday Jimmy Austin slid in and hurt his ankle and is out of the game for some time. In the second inning yesterday Killifer, the St. Louis catcher, slid to third and hurt his ankle so badly that he had to retire.

MAYOR GAYNOR SEES HARD POLO MATCH

Squadron A Defeats West Point at Van Cortlandt Park by Score of 7 Goals to 3½.

Mayor Gaynor was an interested spectator yesterday at the polo match between Squadron A and West Point at Van Cortlandt Park, which was won by the former by the score of 7 to 3½ goals. The game was arranged for the purpose of helping to obtain from Congress an appropriation for polo ponies for the army officers, and Col. Bowman, Fifth Artillery, with a number of army officers, watched the game with interest. Mayor Gaynor threw out the ball and remained throughout the game.

Several attempts had previously been made to play the game, but the military duties at West Point prevented the getting together of the team. The fine weather brought out a crowd of several thousand persons who witnessed some exciting sport. During the early stages of the contest the army officers had matters all their own way, and at the end of the fifth period the score was 2¾ goals to 1 in favor of West Point. Several changes were made in the line-up of Squadron A, and the contest underwent a complete change, Squadron A scoring 6 goals in the last three periods, while their opponents were kept down to a single tally.

It was an unusually clean contest, only half a goal penalty being inflicted in the eight periods, which were seven and a half minutes each. The visitors were somewhat handicapped, as they used Squadron A's mounts, and were unused to the strange ponies. In spite of this drawback they made an excellent showing, and forced their opponents to their best all the time.

Lieuts. Honeycutt and De Armond each negotiated a goal in the second and third periods. The first and fourth were nonproductive. Lieut. Tilford, who relieved Lieut. De Armond, tallied in the fifth, but a quarter goal was recorded against the West Point team for a penalty. H. Cram scored Squadron A's first goal in this period.

Keen playing marked the sixth period, in which one team recorded a goal, the visitors being further penalized a quarter goal. The two final periods found Squadron A with the upper hand, and six goals were scored by them.

The two teams will play at West Point Saturday, when Squadron A will ride the West Point officers' ponies. The line-up and summary:

SQUADRON A, 7.	WEST POINT, 3½.
1—A. W. Perry.	1—Lieut. Honeycutt.
2—T. R. Strong, H. W. Cram.	2—Lieuts. De Armond and Tilford.
3—R. C. Lawrence, L. Spencer.	3—Lieuts. Cooper and Henry.
Back—H. E. Holt, H. W. Cram.	Back—Lieut. Allen.

Goals, Squadron A—H. Cram, 4; R. C. Lawrence, 3. Total—7. West Point—Lieut. De Armond, 2; Lieut. Honeycutt; Lieut. Tilford. Total, 4. Lost by penalty—West Point, ½ goal. Final score—Squadron A, 7; West Point, 3½. Referee—Cheever Cowden.

Hanley Strikes Out Eighteen Men.

Manhattan College added another victory to its list when it defeated Villanova at McNulty Field yesterday by a score of 6 to 1. Hanley, who twirled for Manhattan, was a puzzle to the visitors, and allowed only two hits. He struck out eighteen men. In the ninth, with the bases filled, Hanley struck out Farrell, Sweeney, and Skelton. The score:

CHICAGO, May 17.—The contract of L. Channell with New York was announced to-day by President Johnson of the American League, together with the following releases: By Boston to Denver, Fred G. Ehman; to Providence, C. A. Thompson and E. R. Steele; to St. Paul, Louis Leroy. By New York to Boston, C. Engle. By Cleveland to New Haven, Peckenpaugh, Outright, Bitting; to Northampton, Conn., G. D. Weaver. By Chicago to San Francisco, Royal Shaw.

Shay Gets Barbeau and Moran.

"Jap" Barbeau, third baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Outfielder Moran of the Boston Doves have been secured by Manager Danny Shay for his Kansas City team of the American Association. Barbeau played third base and shortstop for Toledo in 1908, and in the Fall was sold to Pittsburg. It was his second trip to the major leagues, his first appearance in the big show being with the Cleveland Americans. Barbeau played with Pittsburg part of last season, and afterward was traded to St. Louis for Bobby Byrne. This year Manager Bresnahan of St. Louis let Barbeau go because he was a little smaller than any of the other infielders. Outfielder Moran is a left-handed batsman, and a youngster. He played in 154 games for Providence of the Eastern League last year and had a batting average of .268 and a fielding average of .960.

New Manager for York Club.

Special to The New York Times.

YORK, Penn., May 17.—Jacob Weitzel, who formerly managed the Reading baseball team, was to-day elected manager of the York Tri-State team. Weitzel will endeavor to strengthen the team at once.

Colgate Wins from Hamilton.

HAMILTON, N. Y., May 17.—Colgate defeated Hamilton to-day in a twelve-inning game, by a score of 5 to 3. With three on bases and two out, Leonard of Colgate smashed out a two-bagger, bringing in two runs.

Giants Cast Jake Weimer Adrift.

CINCINNATI, May 17.—The unconditional release of Jake Weimer, former Chicago and Cincinnati pitcher, was announced by the New York National League Club management here to-day.

Bowen Stroking Cornell 'Varsity Crew.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 17.—E. F. Bowen, who has been stroking the Cornell junior eight for the last few days, relieved Distler at stroke in the 'Varsity boat to-day, and the latter went into the junior eight in Bowen's old position. The change caused somewhat of a surprise in crew circles, because it is rarely the policy of Coach Courtney to change his crew before a big race. The crews are now training especially for the race with Harvard on Memorial Day. Mr. Courtney said, however, that the change was by no means permanent, but that he wished to try out the men. Both men were in the freshman crew last year.

To Report Positions of Motor Boats.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—Yachtsmen having charge of the Philadelphia-Havana motor boat race, which starts next Saturday afternoon, have sent out a notice requesting Captains of all coastwise vessels equipped with wireless telegraph instruments to report the positions of the contestants in case they are sighted. The day signals of the five boats entered will be: Ilys, No. 1; Caliph, No. 2; Carolina, No. 3; Leantaka, No. 4; Berneyer, No. 5. Night light signals: Ilys, white; Caliph, [illegible]

WESTERN GOLF RATINGS.

H. Chandler Egan, Former Champion, Alone in "Scratch" Class.

CHICAGO, May 17.—Under the arbitrary handicap rating made public by the Western Golf Association to-day for the season of 1910 former amateur champion H. Chandler Egan of Exmoor occupied the scratch class all by himself. Last year Egan had at scratch such company as Byers, Fownes, Sawyer, and Wood.

George A. Ormiston of Oakmont is dropped from "one" to "two," while Charles Evans, Jr., of the Edgewater Golf Club jumps from "three" to "one." Following is the list:

Scratch—H. Chandler Egan, Exmoor.

One—E. M. Byers, W. C. Fownes, Jr., Pittsburg; Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater; R. A. Gardner, Hinsdale; Mason Phelps, Midlothian; Warren K. Wood, Homewood; D. Sawyer, Wheaton.

Two—K. P. Edwards, Donald Edwards, R. E. Hunter, Paul Hunter, Midlothian; W. I. Howland, Jr., Glenview; Albert Seckel, Riverside; Harold Weber, Inverness; George A. Ormiston, Oakmont.

Three—J. K. Bole, Euclid E. H. Brown, Willie Garhardt, Raymond Russel, J. B. Schlotman, J. D. Standish, Jr., Detroit; Ralph McKittrick, S. C. Stickney, W. A. Stickney, Christian Kenney, Harry Potter, St. Louis; Nathan Bandy, Phil Stanton, Kent; J. D. Cady, Ardo Mitchell, Rock Island; D. P. Fredericks, Frank C. Newton, Clairmont; William Frederickson, Norman Macbeth, Annandale; J. H. Childs, Alleghany; Gordon Copeland, Skokie; Walter E. Egan, Exmoor; W. H. Didell, Indianapolis; Harry G. Legg; Minikahda; L. H. Reinking, Wheaton; W. C. Schatz, Elgin; Nelson Whitney, Albert F. Schwartz, R. G. Bush, W. P. Stewart, New Orleans.

University Club Members on the Links

All indications point to a big turnout to-day on the Morris County links for the Spring tournaments of the University Club Golf Association. It is expected there will be at least fifty starters. For the first time medals are to be given for the low gross scores for the full thirty-six and for eighteen holes. This should make it interesting for the low-handicapped players, among whom are George T. Brokaw, W. R. Thurston, D. H. McAlpin, 2d, Victor C. Thorne, W. D. Vanderpool, and S. C. Mabon. The cups and prizes this year are unusually attractive, owing to the fact that a special device has been gotten up as a seal for the club and placed on all the cups and medals. The course is said to be in the pink of condition.

Ladew Horses to be Sold To-night.

The dispersal sale of the late Mrs. Edward R. Ladew's horses will be held to-night at Van Tassell & Kearney's. The sale, which was ordered by J. Campbell Thompson, the attorney for the estate, is the most important held since the sale of Mrs. John Gerken's horses. The array of noted prize winners, especially ponies, has seldom, if ever, been equalled, and the announcement that every one will be sold without reserve makes the occasion a particularly notable one. Robador, the champion saddle horse of the National Horse Show; Defender, Cardiff, All There, Ragtime, Pattie Pembroke, and Doncaster Model, all blue ribbon winners; the hackney stallion Changue Squire and the hunters Jack Frost and Confederate are among the animals catalogued.

Judges for Plainfield Dog Show.

Irving H. Auerbach, Esq.—Collies.

T. Moore-Smith, D. D.—Sporting spaniels.

Major J. M. Taylor—Pointers, St. Bernards, retrievers, Chesapeake Bay dogs, pugs, toy poodles, Griffons, dachshundes, Great Danes, poodles, mastiffs, Irish setters, and Gordon setters.

Unclassified Specials—J. E. DeMund, M. D., Charles G. Hopton, Esq., and Major J. M. Taylor.

SPORTING BRIEFS OF INTEREST.

The annual meeting of the Sound Beach Golf and Country Club will be held June 6. The following have been named by the Nominating Committee for the various offices of the club: Mortimer B. Foster, James W. White, Harry W. Perham, Dutton O. Wright.

Oswald Kirkby of the Englewood Golf Club, playing with the professional Jack Hobans on Sunday, made a new amateur record for the course, 71. Hobans also made 71.

Immediately after his fight with Jack Johnson James J. Jeffries will began a around-the-world theatrical trip. He will appear at the New Amsterdam Theatre, in this city, on July 10, and then will visit all the principal cities and towns in England, Ireland, and Scotland. From there he will tour the Continent, and, leaving Europe on Dec. 24, he will go direct to Cape Town. There will be a week's hunting trip in Africa, and after that a visit to Australia, New Zealand, the Philippine Islands, India, China, Japan, and Honolulu. It is planned that he will be in California again on July 14, 1911.

The silver loving cup which is offered for the club scoring the most number of points is serving as a magnet to draw the athletes to the Brooklyn Athletic Club meet on Decoration Day at Washington Park, Grand Street, Maspeth. The events are 75 and 600 yards, novice; 100, 300, 880 yards, and three-mile handicaps.

The handicap cross-country run of the Kings County Athletic Association will be held on Sunday, starting at 3 P. M. Entries close today with C. E. Hicks, 821 Buffalo Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The St. Francis Club will hold a big professional athletic meet on July 4, at the new Irish Park, Wakefield, near Yonkers. Crowley has already sent in his entry for the Marathon race, and it is likely that Hans Holmer will be on hand. At a recent meeting it was decided to add a five-mile race to the programme. The entries for the race will close with P. A. McGann, 4,151 Matilda Avenue, Wakefield, Bronx, on June 15.

Entries for the big athletic meet of the Club Vendome, which will be held at Olympic Park, Newark, next Sunday afternoon, will close to-day with J. E. Reilly, Post Office Box 5, Newark. There is a programme of twelve events, mostly handicaps, and a special match race. Melvin Sheppard, Harry Glissing, Abel Kiviat, Joe Bromilow, Martin Sheridan, John Flanagan, Mat McGrath, Jack Eller, and other cracks will compete. On Sunday, May 29, an amateur Marathon will be held at Olympic Park.

The Morrisania District Athletic League has completed arrangements for holding one of the largest athletic meets ever held by schoolboys in New York. The games will be held on the Polo Grounds next Saturday afternoon. Every day large squads are training on both the Crotona Athletic Field and the Macombs Dam Field to win the Golden point trophy.

The annual athletic games of the Clason Point Military Academy cadets will take place to-day at Clason-on-the-Sound, at 3:30 P. M. In case of rain, games will be held on the following day.

Charles Griffin, the Australian featherweight champion, and Knockout Brown of the east side were matched last night to meet in the star event at the Olympic Athletic Club show on West 125th Street, on next Monday night. Knockout Jack O'Donnell will meet Tommy Ginty of Philadelphia in the semi-final of six rounds.

Strategy on the part of William B. Cragin, Jr., the Long Island champion, contributed to his working a remarkable upset in the defeat of the Southern and former National indoor champion, Theodore R. Pell, yesterday. Their match was in the continuation of the cup tournament under direction of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association on the clay courts of the Harlem Club, 131st Street and Seventh Avenue, Cragin scoring by the sensational figures of 6—love, 6—8, and 6—love. The strange feature of this match was that Cragin ran nine straight games at the beginning before Pell scored a game, and at the end he finished with a straight run of six games. The summary:

Men's Cup Singles.—Second Round—Frederick C. Baggs defeated J. H. Kyte, 6—2, 6—4.

Third Round—R. H. Boggs defeated Edgar F. Leo, 7—5, 6—1; Walter [illegible] Pate defeated George S. Groesbeck, 6—[illegible]; William B. Cragin, Jr., defeated Theodore Roosevelt Pell, 6—0, 6—8, 6—0; Frederick C. Baggs defeated C. M. Schubert, 6—1, 6—3; Walter Merrill Hall defeated Abraham Bassford, Jr., 6—1, 4—6, 6—1; J. Lowther defeated Henry M. Hobart, 7—5, 8—6.

Fourth Round—James O'Neale, Jr., defeated R. H. Boggs, 6—4, 6—2.

Men's Cup Doubles.—Second Round—Ralph Lewers and M. A. Noble defeated H. Balch and Paul Martin, 11—9, 6—2.

Aspirants for the Hackett-Alexander Cup, the championship trophy of the West Side Tennis Club singles, played in clouds of dust on the courts at 117th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, yesterday. The strong breeze swept the courts, so that progress was difficult, but L. H. Fitch, John Tomlinson, and the metropolitan champion, Frederick C. Inman, arrived in the third round. The summary:

Men's Championship Singles.—First Round—Dr. J. W. Travell defeated Edgar A. Lowther, 7—5, 18—16; Edwin P. Fischer defeated William C. De Mille, 6—3, 8—6; James S. Cushman defeated J. P. Moquet, 6—1, 6—0; H. Swain, a bye.

Second Round—Newton Rae defeated H. Swain, 7—5, 6—1; L. H. Fitch defeated Bernon S. Prentice, 1—6, 8—6, 6—3; Frederick C. Inman defeated Dr. Ewing Taylor, 6—3, 6—2; John Tomlinson defeated Louis E. Hatzfeld, 3—6, 6—4, 6—2.

Moran-Conley Bout Declared Off.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 17.—The proposed match between Frank Conley, reputed bantam champion, and Owen Moran has been declared off. Conley insisted upon Moran making 125 pounds ringside, instead of 126, at 6 o'clock. The fighters could not agree.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

TRADING IN SMALL VOLUME

London's Interest in Our Shares at Low Ebb—Foreign Exchange Rates Continue to Rise.

On the Stock Exchange yesterday the inactivity and narrow price movements of Monday were repeated. Some disappointment was professed in speculative circles over the failure of London on the resumption of business there to manifest the expected interest in our securities, and in the same quarters uneasiness was at least simulated over the protracted delay in the announcement of the conclusion of the negotiations for the sale to Paris of the block of St. Paul bonds upon which so much discussion has centred. So far as London's attitude toward this market is concerned it should be borne in mind that at the moment London in common with all Great Britain has in mind affairs far removed from financial markets. The London Stock Exchange closed on Monday, and will close again later this week, in connection with the funeral of the late King, and in the interval interest in markets and the factors influencing them is at a low ebb. Regarding the negotiations for the placement of St. Paul bonds abroad it is asserted definitely that these are still under way with every prospect of a successful termination, but that owing to the many points to be covered the preliminary arrangements are necessarily slow paced.

In addition to the stress put upon these matters yesterday speculation was indulged in as to the probable effect of the Hocking Valley receivership upon the Chesapeake & Ohio Directors' meeting for dividend purposes to-day. It is possible, of course, that with litigation pending and returns from their investment in Hocking Valley therefore interfered with for the time being the Directors of the Chesapeake & Ohio may decide to maintain for the present the 4 per cent. payment, but if they determine to make the increase, justification for the step will be easily found in the excellent earnings of the road from operations quite unconnected with the Hocking Valley venture. As evidence of the more or less academic treatment of these various matters on the floor of the Stock Exchange the movement of prices is sufficient. After restricted fluctuations and intense dullness prices closed in most cases very little changed from the quotations of Friday night. The cotton market was influenced toward lower levels by the reports from the South of satisfactory weather conditions, and the tendency of wheat was also lower as a result of the appearance of heavy and general rains in both the Winter and Spring wheat belts.

Further ease was noted in the day's money markets. Bids for loans for the shorter maturities were reduced one-quarter of 1 per cent. rather generally, and lenders showed a disposition to meet borrowers upon these terms. The easing of quotations is altogether natural in view of the very large surplus reported by the banks on Saturday and their constant additions to resources since that time. Money continues to flow this way from the interior, while the heavy pension payments by the Government and the smaller customs receipts have led to a gain of $2,444,000 by the banks on operations with the Sub-Treasury since Friday last. In the foreign exchange market demand sterling moved up 25 points over Monday night's close, the rise coming in response to a demand for bills which it had been expected would be readily filled by the creation of credits through sales of securities to Europe, whereas such credits have not so far been forthcoming in the expected volume.

*Decrease. †The decrease in non-operating income is largely due to the policy inaugurated July 1, 1909, of not crediting to the income of the company the interest upon the advances made for the construction of the New York & Long Island Railroad Tunnel.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—A liquidating movement developed in some quarters of the local list this morning. Poor selling was chiefly noticeable in Tonopah Belmont, driving the quotation for that issue well below 4. A sympathetic reaction occurred at the same time in Tonopah Mining, and the Tractions, too, were inclined to sag for a time. There are two legal decisions pending in regard to Rapid Transit; one testing the validity of the city contract, and the other concerning the question of strip tickets. Incidentally, it was stated positively to-day that the new bond issue had been arranged with security entirely acceptable to those underwriting it. Nevertheless, Rapid Transit fell below 19.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Day of Sluggish Trading, with Small Losses Appearing in the Coppers.

OHIO COPPER LOWER

Sells Down to 3 on Reported Transactions of 9,500 Shares—United Copper Preferred Again Reports Transactions

Minor recessions were the rule in the sluggish trading on the Curb yesterday. The coppers were unusually stagnant, and the Cobalt issues also showed a marked falling off in activity. Goldfield Consolidated reported transactions of 9,000 shares, on which the price moved between 8⅜ and 8⅝, the close being 8½, 1-16 below the opening. Among the coppers to make small losses were Giroux, ⅛; Greene-Cananea, ⅛; Miami, ¼, and Ray Consolidated, ⅝. Butte Coalition sold down from 21 to 20½. British Columbia, Braden Copper, and Gila closed even with the opening levels. Ohio Copper sold 9,500 from 3¼ down to 3, closing at 3 1-16. United Copper preferred again reported transactions, 500 shares appearing at 28 and 28¾.

⁂

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The London Situation.

Traders who were disgusted with the dullness of the market on Monday found consolation in the theory that the inactivity might be due to the observance of the Whitsuntide holiday in the chief foreign markets and that with the reopening of these markets yesterday better things might be expected. Commission houses also pointed out in their letters on Monday night that the local market was more or less dependent at the moment on sentiment in London financial circles, and that something like a line on opinion there could be obtained when business was resumed on the London Stock Exchange yesterday. It was a source of disappointment, therefore, to everybody who had been counting upon London so heavily that the range of quotations sent over the cables before the opening here was, with one exception, substantially lower for all the prominent American securities traded in. This was followed by selling orders on balance, estimates having it that 15,000 shares out of the 25,000 done for London were on the selling side. As London has already had one holiday, and will observe another on Friday, in connection with King Edward's funeral, quiet markets are to be expected.

Mr. Patten, Market Equestrian.

Wall Street concedes to Mr. Patten the palm for versatility. At the moment it can liken his performances in cotton and wheat to nothing save the remarkable evolutions of the short-skirted lady who daily defies the law of gravitation in a sawdust ring by riding two galloping white fat horses at one and the same time. Mr. Patten has deliberately located one foot upon the cotton market and is keeping it there in spite of the efforts of envious speculators and a just Government to pry it off, while he has the other foot firmly fixed upon the wheat market, although other speculators and the weather man are doing their best to dislodge it. Chicago reported yesterday that the Patten deal in Spetember wheat promises to be one of the most spectacular yet brought off by this astute and practised market equestrian.

A Receivership and Prices.

Old timers in the financial district failed yesterday to recall another case like the Hocking Valley's, in which the appointment of receivers for a well-known road was announced without as much as leading to a single sale of the stock, although it is listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Even the drop in the bid price of the preferred stock on Monday was made up yesterday by an advance in the bid price, while the effect on the common was a lowering of 5 points in the bid price from the figure at which it stood before the appointment of receivers. The fact that the court action in this case was not the outcome of any financial difficulty of the road had undoubtedly much to do with the apparent indifference to the receivership indicated in the absence of any trading in the stock. The amount of common stock available for transactions on the Stock Exchange is relatively small, owing to most of this stock being owned by the Hocking Valley, but the preferred stock heretofore has been widely distributed, although much of this issue also has been taken out of the market lately by the surrender of the stock for retirement. This transaction is one of the things held up by the litigation.

Bond Market Stagnation.

In the light of such incidents as the failure on Monday of the Philadelphia bond sale, it is not a matter for surprise that the trading in bonds on the Stock Exchange should reflect the unwillingness of investors to place funds in bonds. So great is the dullness on the Exchange at the moment that the trading in all classes of bonds yesterday amounted only to about $1,500,000, and on the day before the total was even smaller. The record of about $3,000,000 bonds traded in on the Stock Exchange in two full days is suggestive enough in itself of dullness. Last year at this time the transactions in bonds on the Exchange averaged in the neighborhood of $4,000,000 a day, and they were not extraordinarily active days. In active bond markets as many bonds are traded in on the Exchange in two or three hours as have made up the transactions for the last two days.

F. A. Heinze Disclaims.

Fritz Augustus Heinze, freshly cleared of his Federal indictments, authorized a statement yesterday that he is in no way connected with the Western Development Company, which was organized after the failure of his brother's brokerage firm, with the idea of collecting their assets and compounding with creditors. Recent offers made by this company to preferred stockholders of the United Copper Company have excited derision in the Street, where questionable motives have not been assigned to the apparent attempt to link the Heinze stock with Anaconda.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Tuesday.

Prices of leading stocks on the Consolidated Exchange yesterday often ruled a fraction above the New York Stock Exchange, this reflecting evening up transactions by traders who were disposed to await some fresh cue as to the probable market course, rather than have contracts outstanding. Most of the time the market was an idle one, the best activity being at the opening and the closing of the session. Transactions in all stocks totaled 60,170 shares, with forty-four different securities on the list.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, May 17.—Money was in moderate demand and in fair supply to-day. Discounts were steady. India and the Bank of England shared the £600,000 gold available.

Though the Stock Exchange was quiet it displayed a steady undertone. The rise in British stocks was a feature, partly on the hope of an early reduction of the Bank of England rate. Consols hardened and home rails and foreign rails were well supported at higher prices. Copper shares and Grand Trunk improved during the afternoon, but rubber and Kaffirs ruled quiet.

American securities opened irregular and on fair buying strengthened, with Canadian Pacific and Pennsylvania leading. Prices showed little change until the Wall Street market opened, when a drooping tendency occurred under general offerings. The close was easy.

Money, 2½@2¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅝@3½ per cent.; for three months bills, 3⅝@3½ per cent.

Gold premiums are quoted at Madrid, 7, and at Lisbon, 10.75.

PARIS, May 17.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were dull and irregular.

Three per cent. rentes, 98f 95c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 26½c for checks.

BERLIN, May 17.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were firm, with Americans active and higher.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 50 pfennigs for checks.

Money, 3½ per cent.

Private rate of discount, 3¼ per cent.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 17.—The local copper shares opened irregular, and trading during the day resulted in lower prices. Isle Royale was about the only feature to show any strength, and the stock advanced to 22¾. Arizona Commercial declined 2 points. The balance of the list is all from a fraction to a point lower.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 17.—Extreme dullness ruled the local stock market to-day, and while the most active stock during the early hours was Northwestern Elevated, which advanced a large fraction, there was little news to account for this. The feeling is gaining, however, that H. A. Blair's visit to the East has been productive of favorable results, so far as the Eastern stockholders of the elevateds are concerned, and that they will be counted in favor of the merger of all the roads. Chicago Telephone shares sold down 5 points, to 110.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Wheat Weak Early, Advancing Late—Coarse Grains Firm—Cotton Lower on More Favorable Weather.

The wheat market developed firmness despite bearish news. There was a heavy break in the cables over the holidays, indicating a decline of over 2 cents a bushel in the American markets, yet after a little period of hesitation and dullness the wheat markets advanced and were quite strong in the afternoon. The decline early carried prices off a little below the final of the previous night, but there was no volume of wheat for sale, and the market acted congested and nervous, rallying rapidly at times and shorts were ready to buy on any sign of strength. The weather conditions were all that could be desired, excepting temperatures continue a little low. There have been generous rains in the Winter and Spring wheat territories, even in the far Canadian Northwest, and there is now no cause for anxiety in any section on account of drought. With this factor removed, the trade was disposed to be bearish, but the market resisted selling pressure and rallied very quickly. There was a good decrease in Bradstreet's visible, 3,931,000 bushels, following 7,378,000 bushels decrease the previous week and compared with 4,581,000 bushels decrease last year. The United States visible is now slightly less than a year ago, although larger than two years ago. Cash wheat quoted: No. 2 red Winter, $1.16, nominal; No. 2 red, spot, nominal, $1.16½, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.19¾, nominal; No. 2 hard Winter, nominal; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.05⅝.

Corn was very steady most of the session with a fairly good trade. The general rains which were favorable for wheat in all sections were unfavorable for corn, as wet weather and rather low temperatures are not good for the germination and growth of the crop. The receipts were small at the West and there was a large decrease in Bradstreet's visible, 2,453,000 bushels, following a decrease of 1,493,000 bushels the previous week. The market late was very steady and quiet. Cash corn quoted: No. 2, 70c., nominal.

Oats were also firm with a fair volume of trade. There seemed to be a good deal of stuff wanted, although rains in the Northwest and in Iowa and Nebraska have been in sections of large production and have relieved the anxiety caused by the dry weather in these sections. Receipts were moderate, however, and there was a decrease of 1,223,000 bushels in Bradstreet's visible. Cash oats quoted: Natural white, 46@48½c; white clipped, 47@52½c.

Provisions were active and very firm. Receipts of hogs were moderate and there were reports of a good demand for cash product. Offerings were light on these prices and readily responded to the buying orders.

COTTON.

There developed a good deal of selling pressure in cotton and prices were weak. The opening was at a decline, from which there was some rally, but selling pressure became pronounced in the afternoon, and the market easily worked down. One factor of influence in the market was the general rains throughout the entire belt. The rains of the past three days have brought generous precipitation in a large portion of the belt from Texas east to the Atlantic, although temperatures have been rather low, and there are some complaints regarding the effect of the low temperatures. Still the fact that the drought has been relieved was considered a very favorable feature.

For a time the market was supported for the old crop deliveries by rather active bidding by the bull leaders, but later this support was withdrawn. There was a good deal of selling credited to Southern account, and it was stated that the South was increasing its offerings of spot cotton. The receipts of cotton here are expected to be liberal during the next two weeks, and the estimates indicate possibilities of as high as 80,000 bales coming in before the 1st of June. Although the shipments have continued liberal the receipts are still large enough to prevent any decrease in the stocks of cotton. Many believe that the leading bull has sold out a great portion of his cotton, and that the new buying which came in on the advance eliminated a considerable short interest and did not add to the technical strength of the market.

New York spot cotton quiet, 15 decline. Middling uplands, 15.75c. Middling Gulf, 16c.

COFFEE.

Coffee met some little liquidation of early new crop deliveries, and with the French market lower prices started at a partial decline of 5 points and developed no rally, closing steady, net unchanged, to 5 points lower. Sales were 10,000 bags, including July at 6.40c and September at 6.55c.

Havre reported a decline of ¼@½ franc, while March contracts were ¼ pfennig lower in Hamburg, and other months in that market were unchanged. There was no change in the Brazilian markets. Very cold weather was again reported in Sao Paulo, but it is still too early in the season for the low temperatures to exert influence.

Spot coffee, quiet; Rio No. 7, 8⅛c.

TO THE PREFERRED STOCKHOLDERS OF THE

Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company

At the request of a large number of preferred stockholders, the undersigned have organized as a Committee to protect the interests of the holders of preferred stock of the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company, and the preferred stockholders are invited to deposit their stock with the Committee's depositary, the CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, No. 54 Wall Street, New York City, which will issue transferable certificates of deposit therefor. The property of the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company is leased to the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railway Company, which has recently defaulted in the payment of interest on its bonds and is now in the control of a Receiver. A Committee of Bondholders of the First Refunding Mortgage Bonds of the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company has been organized. In view of these facts, co-operation among the preferred stockholders of the Railroad Company has become imperative.

Copies of the deposit agreement may be obtained from the Depositary, or from the Secretary of the Committee.

All certificates must be properly endorsed in blank and bear all stock transfer stamps required by the Laws of the State of New York.

Dated May 16, 1910.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

JOSEPH HIRSCHORN.—Judge Hazel has appointed Alfred C. Coxe, Jr., receiver in bankruptcy for Joseph Hirschorn, manufacturer of dresses at 156 Greene Street. The assets are estimated at $2,000.

WOOLF FISH.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Woolf Fish, liquor dealer, of 274 Broome Street, by B. J. Perkins, as trustee in bankruptcy, of Morris Lemler on a claim for $3,540, balance unpaid on a judgment obtained on Jan. 26 for $5,540. The liabilities are reported to be $7,000, and the assets $3,000.

ABRAHAM KOPELMAN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Abraham Kopelman, furniture dealer, of 98 Essex Street, by these creditors: Louis Klenetzky, $192; Louis Horowitz, $186, and the Reliable Brass Bed Manufacturing Company, $125. The liabilities are $6,000, and the assets are estimated at $1,500.

SAM SOBEL.—Sam Sobel, a clerk of 176 Eldridge Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $47,022, and no assets. Of the liabilities $41,000 are secured by mortgages on real estate. Among the creditors are the Metropolitan Savings Bank, $21,000 secured; Katherine G. Hayes, $9,000 secured; Max Levy, Brooklyn, $4,000 secured, and Public Bank, $4,752 on a judgment.

I. SKOULTCHI & CO.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Isidor Skoultchi, doing business as I. Skoultchi & Co., manufacturers of suits at 55 West Sixteenth Street, show liabilities of $23,396 and assets of $8,469, consisting of stock, $6,000; fixtures, $300; cash, $14; accounts in hands of attorney for collection, $352, and good accounts, $1,803. He has also $3,622 accounts of doubtful value. Among the creditors are Facker & Fishel, $1,436; National Butchers & Drovers' Bank, $1,500; F. Greenberg, $1,000; H. B. Claflin Company, $855; James Talcott, $557, and M. Fishbein & Co., $810.

S. DATILO & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Salvatore Dattilo, doing business as S. Datilo & Co., importer of illustrated post cards, 551 West Broadway, by these creditors: Charles Schoenfeld, $250; Frank de Maria, $115, and Nickola Sciorsci, $300. Assets, consisting of post cards, fixtures, cuts, and engravings, are said to have cost $10,000, but are worth now only $1,000. The liabilities are said to be about $10,000. Sheriff Shea took charge of the place on May 10 on two executions for $2,140. A sale was advertised yesterday, but a restraining order was served on the Sheriff just in time to stop the sale.

NEIMAN & WOOD.—Judge Whitney of the Supreme Court has appointed Charles Goldzier receiver of the partnership property of Neiman & Wood, cafe and restaurant, 19 Ann Street, with a bond of $5,000 in a suit brought by Charles A. Wood against Arthur Neiman for a dissolution of partnership which is said to have been formed in December, 1909, and an accounting. The purchase price of the business, it is said, was $10,000, and Mr. Neiman put up all the money, while Mr. Wood worked in the place and did not put in any capital. He now wants his interest in the business determined.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Many Deals in the "Penn" Terminal Loft Zone—W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Buys Estate on Long Island—Bronx and Suburban Sales.

It was reported in realty circles yesterday that a syndicate composed of the United States Realty and Improvement Company and the Alliance Realty Company had purchased the two four-story buildings 210 and 212 West Thirty-seventh Street.

This syndicate recently purchased the four-story building at 492 Seventh Avenue on a lot 24.8 by 100 adjoining the northwest corner of Thirty-sixth Street, and the abutting four-story buildings 205 to 217 West Thirty-sixth Street on a plot 134 by 98.9.

At the time of this purchase an option was secured on the property 210 and 212 West Thirty-seventh Street, which would give them an outlet on Thirty-seventh Street as well as Thirty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue. The entire plot, which comprises about 20,600 square feet, is considered one of the most valuable in the Pennsylvania terminal section.

A member of the syndicate stated last night that negotiations were pending for the purchase of the plot, but he was unable to say whether or not the deal had been closed.

Assembling Seventh Avenue Plot.

S. B. Goodale & Son have sold for F. W. Marquand to E. E. Horn 267 Seventh Avenue, near Twenty-fifth Street, a four-story building on lot 19 by 75.

The purchaser is the owner of the surrounding property, and now owns a corner plot of 9,000 square feet. According to a statement made yesterday no plans have been formulated for the improvement of the plot.

New Loft for West 38th Street.

John T. Brook has sold through Heil & Stern 223 and 225 West Thirty-eighth Street, two old dwellings on a plot 41 by 98.9. The buyer will raze the structures that cover the site and begin at once the erection of a twelve-story loft building from plans prepared by Schwartz & Gross. This property adjoins the large parcel recently purchased by Michael Coleman.

Deals in the Loft Zone.

Dr. Frederick H. Wiggin has sold 53 to 57 West Thirty-sixth Street, three-story-and-basement dwellings, on plot 60 by 98.9. The buyer is a builder, who will erect a loft building on the site.

Charles H. Topping has sold 229 and 231 West Thirtieth Street, old buildings, on plot 43 by 98.9, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues. The New York Colored Mission owns the two houses adjoining on the east.

Peter P. Sherry has sold for George G. Jackson the four-story private house at 316 West Eighteenth Street, on lot 20 by 92, to Lillian C. Sherry.

S. Ullman has sold for S. Pollitz 96 East Seventh Street, a five and a half story apartment on lot 25 by 90.

Resale on West Eighty-fifth Street.

Alexander P. W. Kinnan has resold 318 West Eighty-fifth Street, a three-story brick dwelling on lot 16.8 by 102.2, between West End Avenue and Riverside Drive. Mr. Kinnan bought the house a couple of months ago from Edgar H. Laing.

Mary E. Field has sold 157 West Eighty-fourth Street, a five-story flat on lot 25 by 102.2, near Amsterdam Avenue.

John R. and Oscar L. Foley have sold for M. Gans 208 West Eightieth Street, a five-story flat on lot 25 by 102.2.

De Leon Co. Buys Heights Corner.

David Stewart has sold for Ehler Osterholt the northwest corner of Amsterdam Avenue and 156th Street, a plot fronting 99.11 feet on the avenue and 125 feet on the street.

The buyer is the De Leon Realty Company, Harry Aronson, President, which will erect on the site two six-story apartment houses, with stores, from plans by Maximilian Zipkes. The houses are to cost about $200,000 and will accommodate sixty families.

The De Leon Realty Company is also having plans drawn by Mr. Zipkes for three five-story flats to be erected at the northwest corner of Crotona Avenue and 183d Street, 80 by 100, to cost about $100,000.

Brooklyn Sales.

Emma Wolter has purchased 1,111 Eighth Avenue, a three-story flat on a lot 18.2 by 84, and 578 Eleventh Street, Brooklyn, a similar structure, on lot 18 by 18.10. The property forms an "L" around the corner.

The John Pullman Real Estate Company has sold for Samuel Richardson to a builder the old Richardson homestead, on a plot 300 by 306, south side of Eighth Street, 175 feet east of Fifth Avenue. The property will be improved with apartment houses.

Suburban Sales.

Power & Steers have sold for Albert Storms to a client twenty acres of land in Hillside, N. J.

The residence at 724 High Street, Newark, N. J., formerly occupied by the late Theodore F. Martin, has been sold by Thomas B. Booth, executor of the Martin estate, to Edwin C. Feigenspan, by Louis Schlesinger. The price was $14,000, and the plot has a frontage of 30 feet and a depth of 208 feet. The house is a three-story brick, substantially built.

The Stanley Agency has sold for Charles H. Clarke two lots on the north side of Grove Street, Jamaica, to Jane V. McMorris.

The estate of H. G. Eilshemius has sold through H. G. Eilshemius to the First Baptist Church of Arlington, N. J., a plot 103 by 115 on Kearny Avenue, corner Eilshemius Avenue, Arlington, N. J. The plot adjoins the Baptist Church and parsonage, giving them approximately 207 by 115 on the avenue.

The Allee Real Estate Company and Charles W. Seitz have sold for W. B. Greenman, a Brooklyn builder, to R. Percy Chittenden, Assistant Corporation Counsel, the Red Gables property at Tokeneke Park, Conn. The park is a tract of several hundred acres on the Sound, at Rowayton, five miles above Stamford, containing more than thirty houses costing from $20,000 to $125,000.

W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Buys Estate.

W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has purchased from Robert W. de Forest about twenty acres of property situated on the west shore of Northport Harbor, about half a mile from the Village of Centerport. It is understood that Mr. Vanderbilt expects shortly to improve the property by the erection of a Summer home upon it. C. D. Boynton negotiated the sale.

Erie R. R. Buys Meadow Land.

The Erie Terminal Railway Company, a holding company for the Erie Railroad Company, has purchased from the Hudson Iron Company a large tract of meadow land in the Borough of Secaucus. The property is located on the easterly shore of the Hackensack River on the north line of the right of way of the Erie, and has a frontage of 155 feet along the river front and a depth of 1,468 feet.

Robert Franklin Adams is the buyer of 3 East Seventy-sixth Street sold by C. I. Hudson.

Building on Odd-Shaped Lot.

Plans have been filed for a two-story brick bakery and store to be built at the southeast corner of Division and Forsyth Streets, on a peculiarly shaped lot, with a frontage of 10.5 feet on Division Street and 31.8 feet on Forsyth Street, with a depth of 66.4¼ feet. The cause of this odd-shaped building is due to the taking of property for the approach to the new Manhattan Bridge and for Cleveland Square, the official title to the approach. The estate of Albert Coppell is the owner, and the architect is Max Feldman.

Big Addition to McGraw Loft Building.

Plans have been filed for building an extension to the eleven-story brick loft and manufacturing building at 243 to 249 West Thirty-ninth Street, the same height as the present building, with a frontage of 66.7½ feet, giving a total frontage of 192.11½ to the entire building, which is occupied by the McGraw Publishing Company. The cost will be $200,000. The McGraw Realty Company is the owner. Jackson & Rosencrans are the architects.

Two Hotels at Auction.

It is seldom that a high-class well-paying hotel is offered at auction, and the sale therefore by Joseph P. Day of the Murray Hill Hotel in the Vesey Street Salesrooms to-morrow has attracted wide attention. At the same time Mr. Day will also sell the Pierrepont Hotel in Thirty-second Street, between Broadway and Fifth Avenue, a twelve-story apartment hotel, containing 170 rooms. The Murray Hill Hotel will be sold under a court order to partition the estate. It has been for years one of New York's best-known hostelries, and its situation within a block of the Grand Central Station and the Subway gives it exceptional transit facilities. The Hotel Pierrepont is also well located, being close to all the Thirty-fourth Street lines, and readily accessible to the new Pennsylvania terminal.

Notes.

Herbert A. Sherman has rented Cottage No. 8, one of the ten houses belonging to the estate of H. O. Havemeyer at Islip, L. I., to Major A. White.

The Bedford Park Taxpayers' Association will hold its regular monthly meeting at Royal Arcanum Hall, Webster Avenue and 195th Street, this evening.

West Side Dwellings FOR SALE.

$20,000. A very fine three-story and basement Dwelling, 18 feet wide; full lot; two modern baths; parquet floors; extension to second floor; house in good condition; elegant woodwork.

$26,000. Three-story, low-stoop, small House, but most complete; three modern baths; several unique features seldom seen in any other house.

$30,000. On West End Av. Why not buy with an eye to the future? Here is a three and one-half story, high-stoop Dwelling, adjoining a particularly desirable corner, which you can buy right. It is in good condition, rented at present, but possession can be had if desired. At least, you should look into this, even if you don't buy it. It costs nothing to look, and you may see the same future that we see.

$33,500. Best five-story American basement Dwelling for sale at this price. Look at it and see for yourself if what we say is not true in every detail. Modern and up to date; three baths, tiled, and fine fixtures; electric light; light open rear, a feature which most New York houses have not.

$52,000. And perhaps less if you are interested in a fine five-story American basement Dwelling on first-class block near West End Av. and Drive; perfect heating system, three tiled baths, electric light, hardwood floors throughout; elegant trim and well built.

$55,000. A magnificent Residence, four-story brownstone front, best block in the Seventies; absolutely modern and up to date in all its details; parquet floors and electric light throughout; beam ceiling in dining room; ready for you to move into without spending a cent.

WESTCHESTER—SALE OR TO LET.

MR. HARLEM FLATT,
New York City.
Dear Sir:

Are you to be a rent payer all your life? Are your wife and children always to be bounded by the walls of a small flat?

If we could show you a way to own a home of your own in a place where every one else does, a place where all public improvements are made and all known conveniences exist, only half an hour from 42d St. and 20 minutes from Harlem, would you not be interested?

A small monthly payment would give you a start, and our assistance would help you very much in the future home idea.

Send us a postal card and we will put you in possession of all the facts.

Yours very truly,
THE WATSON REALTY CO.,

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York.—CATHARINE CUSACK, Plaintiff, against JACOB BIER and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 23d day of April, 1910, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 24th day of May, 1910, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by J. H. Mayers, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, being about twenty-five feet front and rear, and about one hundred feet deep, situate, lying, and being in the Twenty-second (late Twelfth) Ward of the Borough of Manhattan of the City of New York, on the north side of Forty-fourth Street and on the west side of Eleventh Avenue, and on the corner formed by the intersection of said street and avenue. Said lot is more particularly designated as Number One Hundred and Seven (107) on a map made by Thomas R. Ludlam, City Surveyor, and filed in the office of the Register of the City and County of New York, and numbered 187 in tin case. Together with the dwelling house erected upon said lands and premises.

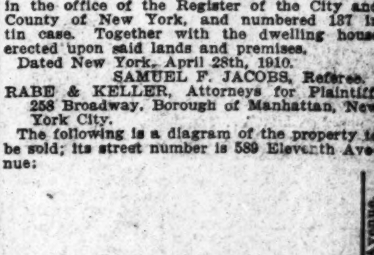
SAMUEL F. JACOBS, Referee.
RABE & KELLER, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 258 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street number is 589 Eleventh Avenue:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is sixteen thousand seven hundred thirty-seven and 78-100 ($16,737.78) dollars, with interest thereon from the 20th day of April, 1910, together with costs and allowance amounting to three hundred forty-five 53-100 ($345.53) dollars, with interest from April 23d, 1910, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the referee, is seven hundred four and 39-100 ($704.39) dollars and interest.

Dated New York, April 28th, 1910.

ONE SKEPTIC WILL NOT ACCEPT PALLADINO

Mr. Davis Has No Intention of Indorsing Her as a Worker in the Supernatural.

HE MAY FAIL TO DETECT

And in That Case Will Say So—Some Rules for the Proposed Seance Agreed On.

A tiny rift in the lute of concord which the anti-Palladinoists have been so harmoniously piping for the last five days was detected yesterday morning when W. S. Davis, the Spruce Street printer and confounder of many mediums, opened THE NEW YORK TIMES and read in it this comment on their plans:

> The men who are trying to arrange the seance are so confident—so rashly confident, it seems to us—of their ability to detect trickery if its exists that they promise, in case there are "manifestations" which they cannot explain, to admit that the woman exercises a supernormal or supernatural force. The conclusion far from necessarily follows the premise. On this occasion, as on every other, the "medium" will really determine the conditions. She accepts this, that, and the other restriction, but some she rejects, and even though she accepted all that were proposed to her by any one group of investigators, and still worked some of her marvels, the correctness of her claims would remain unestablished.

"My position," observed Mr. Davis, "is, on the contrary, exactly that of the writer of this paragraph. If I fail to detect Eusapia in trickery, I have no intention of indorsing her as a worker of supernatural or supernormal phenomena. I shall merely confess my ignoranace as to how the observed effect was produced. In order to be able to define a thing as supernatural or supernormal, I must not only be convinced that the cause of the phenomenon in question is contrary to or beyond the laws of nature, but that this cause is, in itself and beyond all human doubt, outside of nature and beyond the possibility of human action. I must be convinced of causes; results amount to nothing, except as means to trace them to their origin. I believe that the only limit to the conjurer's art and science is natural ability and the ingenuity of his contrivances.

"We have already had several smacks at Eusapia's natural ability. How de we know that she has not 'up her sleeve,' so to speak, some ingenious contrivance which she has been preserving for a supreme test. Even if she has not, it is by no means certain that she has exhausted her ability while among us. As the most wonderful phenomena produced at her séances in Rome, Naples, and Paris have not so far been repeated here, I am inclined to the belief that we have somehow won her unmerited contempt.

"All the same, my personal belief has nothing to do with the main issue involved, which is to detect Eusapia under conditions acceptable to all concerned. If I fail to detect her I shall say so—I shall not offer an explanation I am unable to demonstrate—and that will, of course, be a vote for her as far as Mr. Rinn's offer is concerned. I shall not, however, for the reasons I have set forth, ascribe her undetected tricks to supernatural or supernormal causes unless I can be shown that the causes fit this definition."

Mr. Davis declined to state what he would consider as a supernatural or supernormal manifestation, declaring that the cause of such a manifestation alone interested him, and that such a cause would be self-evident if it were ever to exist.

Joseph F. Rinn is less materialistic, but just as positive as to the limitlessness of the professional magician's craft within natural, human bounds. He is, however, confident in his ability to detect fraud in the conditions he prescribes or accepts. Attendant upon his incapacity to do so he is willing to ascribe to La Palladino supernatural or supernormal powers. Moreover, while Mr. Davis would insist upon a large percentage of undetected phenomena being recorded before acknowledging the medium's victory, Mr. Rinn, if his friends would let him, would acknowledge himself beaten if La Palladino were to give expression to a single phenomenon of a certain kind, and under conditions absolutely controlled by him.

"For example," he said, "if she were to cause something to move contrary to all known forces, something with which neither she nor any one else could have any possible contact, I should consider it a phenomenon that could only be ascribed to a supernatural or a supernormal cause. Why? Simply because I had eliminated all possibility of natural or human force being employed."

James L. Kellogg has an almost infinite belief in the capacity of the human animal for being deceived and for hugging delusion—for being untruthful in observation and fraudulent in the description thereof. Beyond this he is non-committal.

"We shall see what we shall see," he has said.

Meanwhile these anti-Palladinoists and the pro-Palladinoists, Hereward Carrington and Howard Thurston, between the latter of whom no dissension has yet arisen, are laboring to formulate set rules for THE TIMES Tower séance.

Of course, the most important point is the matter of judgment on the data obtained at the séance. What percentage of the entire phenomena occurring shall form the basis of La Palladino's victory or defeat? By whom and by what means shall the judgment be reckoned?

It was suggested at the last conference that the evidence consisting of the stenographic report of the séance, the signed statements of the persons in the circle, and the photographs taken by flashlight be submitted to a disinterested committee to pass on. This method, however, is objected to by both the anti-Palladinoists and the pro-Palladinoists on the ground that it is absolutely essential that those passing judgment shall not only have been present at the séance, but shall also be well equipped as regards mediumistic history, methods, and experience.

It is quite possible that final judgment may be based upon the written and pictorial evidence produced, together with personal observation on the part of the judge or judges. That point is still in the air. Here, however, are eight rules which have been unanimously agreed to as supplementary to the general conditions already set forth:

1. The seance must not begin until it is evident to Mr. Rinn and others that the fastenings are adequate safeguards against deception.
2. Spirit raps are not to be considered evidential, since any one in the company may secretly produce them and Eusapia would get the credit for them.
3. When the conditions are so poor that we can't judge whether the medium herself is producing the phenomena, such phenomena are to be considered non-evidential.
4. Stout twine to be used—not rope.
5. She can't dictate the nature of the method of fastening.
6. If at any time the nature of the control has been impaired, Eusapia shall be requested to rectify it.
7. It is expected that any person present detecting fraud shall state the fact and make objection.
8. Since Mr. Rinn has been forced to abandon his own proposition (the sack test) and has been obliged to accept Eusapia's, she must give her regular seance, including the cabinet phenomena.

A gentleman of learning and experience, with many false mediumistic tests to his credit, and, according to his own statement, a certain number of "real ones," told a TIMES reporter that La Palladino is well within her rights when she demands absolute tranquillity and entire freedom from annoyance.

"If she be a genuine medium," he said, "her psychic powers may be easily disturbed by roughness, excitement, or hostile criticism. These things are not at all necessary to determine whether her power lies within herself or in some natural force unrecognized by science; or whether it lies, as she claims, in some intelligence outside herself. Let the test be absolutely fair; neither side to introduce in any way irrelevant things."

Then he added very seriously: "The test cannot be too exacting in the way of tying the medium, &c."

The Italian papers of New York are showing keen interest in the projected séance. Several of them have translated and reprinted, but without comment, parts of the articles and interviews that have appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES. Il Telegrafo, an afternoon paper, reprinted yesterday the Italian text of La Palladino's signed statement as it appeared in THE TIMES, and under a double-column headline which read: "La Palladino Accetta la Sfida," ("Lt Palladino Accepts the Challenge.")

TO OBTAIN PHENOMENA.

Mr. Carrington Urges That Some of the Medium's Wishes Be Consulted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the test séance about to be held with Mme. Palladino, I may perhaps be allowed to say one or two things. The majority of Americans seem to imagine that this case is entirely new—a medium whom I have brought to this country to be studied for the first time. But inasmuch as she has been carefully studied by scientific men in Europe for the last twenty years, I think we are entitled to assume either one or two alternatives: either that all her phenomena are fraudulent, or, on the other hand, that some of them are genuine, although the medium sometimes tricks.

When the famous Miller report was published it was thought by some that Eusapia's case, so far as the American public was concerned, was settled. At the critical juncture, however, Howard Thurston witnessed her levitations, became thoroughly convinced, and risked $1,000 that they were genuine—at least that some of them were. He risked his professional reputation in taking this bold stand in an unpopular cause, and he deserves the thanks of all sincere students.

Coincidental with this came the interview of THE TIMES reporter, in which he admits that Eusapia produced some levitations which he could not explain, and which, he asserts, were not accomplished by the methods disclosed by Prof. Miller and Prof. Jastrow. The statements of Prof. Montague and Prof. Pitkin also appeared, from which it appears that they did not consider the case settled after all. Following this comes the statement from Prof. Wood, in which he asserts that he also saw table levitations which he could not account for. This has been informally admitted also by another member of the scientific committee. Added to this testimony is that of all the sitters who attended my séances—some scores of them—who believe that the phenomena are real. In view of all this evidence, then, I think we are entitled à priori to think that the case is still unsettled and undecided.

Nof if—and I would like to repeat it in capital letters—if some of these phenomena are genuine, they probably occur under certain "conditions." Probably we are dealing with subtle and delicate forces, of which we know little or nothing. Light may have a great effect—just as it does on the photographic plate—or as sunlight has on animal or vegetable protoplasm. Other conditions may be required—conditions which we cannot understand, but which the medium says are necessary. If these conditions do not admit of fraud, I think they should be granted. If they are not granted, the medium says we shall get no phenomena.

If, then, in the forthcoming test, we prohibit fraud—but, on the other hand, do not grant the conditions required by the medium—we may expect nothing to happen. In fact, nothing could happen. A blank séance, therefore, proves nothing one way or the other. Her own conditions must be attended to if we wish phenomena to occur; and, as I have said before, if the conditions do not allow fraud, they should be permitted and subscribed to. I say this in anticipation of but little occurring; as, under the difficult and trying conditions—mental and physical—to which this medium is to be subjected, but little may occur.

This is, I repeat, what we should expect if the phenomena were genuine—just as we should expect them if they were genuine. Only a series of tests can settle the question—and not one séance. Her success or failure cannot be said to rest on the outcome of this noe sitting.

HEREWARD CARRINGTON.

A Cheating "Medium."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A number of persons afflicted with mental astigmatism are telling us that the person who detects fraud at a spirit seance is an ass. It is claimed that if a medium is "properly restrained," genuine phenomena are sure to follow, because in such a case cheating would be impossible, and the medium would then have to draw on her vital forces to produce manifestations, even though her health were "impaired."

Isn't such rot sickening? But granting the assumption, will it be claimed that your method of fastening Mme. Palladino is in any way unfair, since her own friends tell us that she cheats if you do not restrain her?

DOCTORS QUESTION EWALD'S REPORT

Medical Society Entertains Charges Following His Paper on Freund's Operation.

SAID HE DID IT 69 TIMES

Physicians Allege Young Surgeon's Experience Could Not Have Covered So Many Cases.

At the meeting of the Medical Society of the County of New York, to be held next Monday, action will be taken, it was said yesterday, upon the charges which have been filed with the society by another member against Dr. Louis Anton Ewald of 48 East Eighty-seventh Street, a prominent German physician and a member of many New York medical societies.

As a result of similar charges which have to do with the alleged performance by Dr. Ewald of many surgical operations of a remarkable nature, he is no longer connected with the New York Obstetrical Society. Action in regard to Dr. Ewald is still pending, also, by the officials of the German Hospital and Dispensary, of which he is a member.

Although the charges against Dr. Ewald were made some time ago in the case of the New York Obstetrical Society, and although there has been much dissension among the staff of the German Hospital over the matter, they have been guarded with the utmost secrecy.

The charges against Dr. Ewald form an almost unparalleled chapter in the history of medicine in New York. Although only 39 years of age, he has had a remarkably successful career in his seven years in the city, and although he has been in private practice only about three years, he has built up an extensive practice among the wealthy on the upper east side. He was graduated from the Wuerzburg University in 1896 and is a member of the American Medical Association.

When he first came to New York Dr. Ewald, through influential German friends, became connected with the German Hospital and Dispensary, in East Seventy-seventh Street, between Park and Lexington Avenues. He especially came under the observation of Dr. Francis Foerster of the hospital staff, and was looked upon as one of the rising young physicians of the city.

On Aug. 14 last the hospital celebrated the fortieth anniversary of its founding. To show what the institution had accomplished in that time a book called the "Festschritt" was issued, containing articles descriptive of the work accomplished by several of its physicians. Among the contributors were Prof. Abraham Jacobi, Dr. Ewald, Dr. Gustav Seeligmann, and Dr. Foerster.

The book was edited by a medical board composed of Dr. Otto G. T. Kiliani of 44 West Seventy-seventh Street, Dr. Rudolph Denig of 56 East Fifty-eighth Street, and Dr. Louis Peiser of 52 East Eightieth Street, who has long been connected with the German Hospital and who has recently been decorated by Emperor William of Germany.

Dr. Ewald's article was on Freund's radical operation, an abdominal operation said to be extremely rare and to have been performed but a few times, and then only when every other means failed. Dr. Ewald wrote, it is said, that he had performed the operation sixty-nine times.

His associates were dumfounded at the disclosure, for he had been practicing independently only about three years, and they considered it remarkable that he should not only have met with sixty-nine cases requiring the unusual operation, but that he should have performed it so often when they, much older men, should have performed it very infrequently.

When they asked Dr. Ewald about it he stoutly maintained, it is said, that what he had written was true. Several of the hospital staff openly took issue with him, and charged him with perverting the facts. The officials of the hospital took the matter up at many meetings, and Dr. Ewald, it is said, was called upon to substantiate his statements.

Dr. Peiser, who had gone to Germany, was hurriedly recalled, and for a time it looked as if the Board of Directors of the hospital would take prompt action. Friends of the accused physician came to his rescue, however, and all action was indefinitely postponed. One of the officials who believed in Dr. Ewald, it is said, was Herman Ridder, the publisher.

The New York Obstetrical Society, of which most of the medical staff of the German Hospital are members, demanded a thorough investigation. Dr. Ewald was called before the society and put though a cross-examination. He stoutly maintained that what he had written in regard to the Freund operation was true, and when Dr. Kiliani and Dr. Foerster disputed his claim angry words were passed, it is said.

As a result of the row, Dr. Ewald began suits for slander against both Dr. Kiliani and Dr. Foerster for $30,000 and $10,000 respectively. He engaged the law firm of Rushmore, Bisbee & Stern to represent him, but later changed to Henry W. Unger of 256 Broadway. The suit was begun last Friday, Dr. Ewald demanding $10,000 for this statement, which, he said, Dr. Kiliani made on Nov. 29 in the presence of witnesses at the German Hospital:

"I have called a meeting to hear the opinions of those present about the well-known case of Dr. Ewald, whom the Medical Board found guilty of knowingly falsifying an article in 'The Festschrift.'"

He asked [illegible] allegation that Dr. Kiliani on Nov. 28 composed and published the following:

> The Medical Board charges Dr. Ewald with conduct detrimental to the reputation, character, and interests of the German Hospital, as well as the welfare and interests of its patients, in that he performed certain serious operations dangerous to the life and detrimental to the health of certain patients.

The matter was also taken before the Medical Society of the County of New York and the charges preferred against Dr. Ewald. There have been several hearings, but the society has not taken any action as yet. At these hearings, it is said, Dr. Ewald was given every opportunity to defend himself. Many witnesses were called, including several well-known gynaecologists.

Few would discuss the matter yesterday, those interested for the most part being anxious to let the matter quietly drop. A. C. Vandeveer, counsel for the County Medical Society, said he could not discuss the case at this time, as no action had yet been taken.

"I do not care to say anything about the matter," said Dr. Ewald. "It is all in the hands of my lawyer. I have not been notified if the County Medical Society has taken any action. I may have something to say later."

"Dr. Ewald's statement that he had performed sixty-nine cases of the rare Freund radical operation came as a big surprise to the physicians of the German Hospital," said one of the hospital officials last night. "This operation is one of the most serious known. Very few surgeons have occasion to undertake it at all, and it seems unheard of that so young a physician as Dr. Ewald should have performed it sixty-nine times. The operation is for the removal of a cancerous growth, and I frankly stated from the start that I did not believe Dr. Ewald had ever performed any such number.

"The greatest possible effort has been made to keep the whole matter secret, but if the County Medical Society takes action Monday night it is bound to come out. That society is different from the Obstetrical Society, which is in the nature of a private club. The membership of the latter is limited to seventy-five. Only regular physicians of good standing, residing in the city, who have been in practice five years and who make obstetrics, gynaecology, or pediatrics a prominent part of their practice are eligible."

Dr. Ewald, it is said, has not yet been naturalized. He was only recently married.

NATIONAL CREDIT FIGURES.

Controller to Have Information of the Standing of Borrowers.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Information on credit, which will be of great value to National bank examiners, hereafter will be a feature of the office of the Controller of the currency, according to plans outlined to-day by Mr. Murray, the head of the bureau. From the information available examiners may obtain data showing the financial standing of individuals, firms, and corporations so far as their borrowing privileges with the National banks are concerned.

Reports conveying information of this character are to be made to the Controller's office semi-annually after the meetings held at those periods by the district examiners. They are to show the general conditions in the districts, the number of examinations of banks that have been made, a list of those requiring examination more than twice a year, a list of defalcations, of financiers of "questionable methods," of the "outside or foreign" paper of borrowers whose principal headquarters or places of business are outside of the district covered by the reports, doubtful or questionable paper in which officers or Directors or persons or firms are interested and large or extended lines of credit.

The semi-annual district meetings which are to be an innovation are to be held early in July this year.

UPHOLDS STOCK DEALS.

Exchange's Clearing House Transactions Legal, Says the Court.

The victory of J. R. Williston & Co. in a suit brought by a client who had been sold out aroused considerable interest in the Street yesterday because of the justification of the operations of the Stock Exchange Clearing House pronounced by Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum in dismissing the suit.

J. R. Williston & Co. were sued by Jennie Connell to recover $850, the amount of her loss in a transaction in Smelters in 1908. She alleged that it was a gambling transaction, and therefore contrary to the statutes.

The defense contended that the stock was actually bought on the Exchange and passed through the Stock Exchange Clearing House with other transactions of the firm. The question of the legitimacy of the Clearing House's function was raised by counsel for the plaintiff.

In dismissing the suit Justice Greenbaum said:

"The Stock Exchange Clearing House is evidently like the Clearing House of the banks, and performs a duty similar in all its effects."

Transactions through the Stock Exchange Clearing House, he said, could not be upset except by clear proof that they were not regualr.

BROKERS ASK EXTRA HOLIDAY.

Request That the Stock Exchange Close on Saturday, May 28.

The active members of the Stock Exchange voted unanimously yesterday for a holiday on the Saturday preceding Decoration Day. The petition must go to the Governing Committee for final action, but there is little doubt in the Street that it will be granted. If the market continues sluggish up to the end of the month the extra holiday is looked upon as assured.

The Cotton Exchange, which was expected to close for at least part of the session on Friday, the day of King Edward's funeral, will have a full session, it was announced yesterday, because on that day falls one of the notice days for May cotton contracts.

HALTS RECEIVERSHIP OF HOCKING VALLEY

Ohio Circuit Court Suspends Order, and Receivers After Taking Charge Are Ousted.

ACTION IN FEDERAL COURT

Hocking Valley Attorneys Are Seeking to Have the Case Transferred from the State's Jurisdiction.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 17.—Judge C. W. Dustin of the Circuit Court to-day, in Springfield, suspended the order of Common Pleas Judge Kinkaid of Franklin County, issued at Columbus yesterday, appointing John M. Sheets and Henry J. Booth, Columbus attorneys, as receivers for the Hocking Valley Railway Company. Judge Dustin sustained Judge Kinkaid in his injunction against the proposed retirement of $15,000,000 preferred stock. The Hocking Valley Company to-night gave supersedeas bond of $25,000.

Their attorneys said to-night that they would not press to-morrow's proceedings begun to-day in the court of Federal Judge John E. Sater to block the receivership, as the litigation will remain in the Circuit Court until reviewed on error on its merits in that court. Meantime the receivers who took charge of the company's headquarters at Columbus during the day are temporarily removed from custody.

In the Federal Court action the Hocking Valley Company is represented by Mr. Cutcheon of Byrnes & Cutcheon, attorneys for the Chesapeake & Ohio; James H. Hoyt, attorney for the Hocking Valley, and Mr. Maxwell, who also appeared for the railroad interests.

As matters stand no one knows just where the coming legal fight is to be fought. On Monday the railroad attorneys had finished with the Franklyn County Courts, and ready to fight in the United States Court. Their action to-day leaves the matter still in the jurisdiction of the State courts, temporarily, and attorneys for Mannington and Gould were inclined to think that possibly the railroads, by appealing to the State Circuit Court, had waived their right to ask a transfer to the United States court.

The Circuit Court having granted the stay prayed for in the petition in error, it is possible that the fight may be continued in the State courts, and that the transfer to the Federal courts will not be insisted upon.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, which recently bought a controlling interest in the Hocking Valley, a control declared illegal and void by Judge Kinkead is not an Ohio corporation, and attorneys declare the case properly belongs in the United States courts.

The $15,000,000 is on deposit with J. P. Morgan & Co., New York, for the retirement of the preferred stock of the Hocking Valley, and is held up by Judge Kinkead's decision of yesterday, and affirmed by the Circuit Court, that the vote of the Directors to retire this preferred stock was illegal and void.

George W. Stevens, President of the Hocking and Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, who arrived in the city to-day, believes the whole matter could easily be settled out of court. He thinks the railroads would be seriously injured by being dragged through a receivership.

Fire Starts in Bridge Ties.

Thousands on roof tops and elsewhere watched a fire on the Williamsburg Bridge yesterday afternoon. The fire started on a wooden tie on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit tracks. It was on the eastbound tracks going to Brooklyn between the Brooklyn Tower and the Brooklyn anchorage. Fire apparatus also went out on the bridge, and the firemen, with the aid of many volunteers, succeeded in subduing the blaze.

Exhibition of Household Art.

An exhibition of household art by the teachers of the Domestic Training Department of the Public Schools of New York will open with a reception in the galleries of the National Arts Club this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. This work has all been executed under the supervision of Mrs. Williams and Augustus Vincent Tack.

E. P. Ripley Takes a Rap at Congress.

President E. P. Ripley of the Atchison, on his return to Chicago yesterday from a trip of inspection through the West, said in an interview which was telegraphed to the financial district here that what the country needed to insure prosperity was to have Congress adjourn for five years, and that the home investor had been frightened by the railroad bating of politicians till it was no wonder that the railroads had to go abroad for their money.

Quincy Mining Co. Dividend Cut.

The Quincy Mining Company Directors have declared a quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share, against $1.50 paid in the first quarter. The dividend is payable on June 20. In 1907 the company paid 54 per cent., and in 1908 reduced the rate to 18 per cent.

Smith Gray & Co.

Foremost Clothiers Since 1845.

The crucial test of worthiness is growth in popular favor. The demand for Smith Gray 1910 Spring garments is greater than that of any previous season we have known.

Hundreds of Smith Gray & Co. Suits and Spring Overcoats, regularly priced 20 and 22.50, 15.50

Hundreds of Smith Gray & Co. Suits and Spring Overcoats, regularly priced 22.50, 25 and 27.50, 18.50

These values are created with a distinct purpose—to acquaint and familiarize those who appreciate good clothes, possessing identity and individuality, with the many excellent qualities of Smith Gray clothes, at prices so unusual as to compel consideration.

The 15.50 garments are our regular lots specially priced. The 18.50 garments are small lots, one, two or three of a kind which are our best sellers, and which are usually held until July or August, but which we think best to offer now—that more may know Smith Gray quality and, knowing, become and remain Smith Gray patrons.
